Last Carranza General Leaves Capital and Guerrilla Warriors Enter.

VILLA TWENTY MILES AWAY

CARRANZA MOVING TO PORT

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 24.—The capital has been evacuated by Gen. Lucio Blanco. The Zapata forces are entering the city

Gen. Blanco and a force of about 3,000 men represented the last organized authority in Mexico City. All the other armed forces were withdrawn last week, and with them went all the national, Federal District, and city officials. The Chief of Police deserted his post along with the others.

The followers of Emiliano Zapata have defied all the powers in Mexico for several years. They carry on a guerrilla warfare, living off the country, and levying tribute on the towns they seize. Under Huerta they overran the State of Morelos, south of Mexico City, and for some weeks past they have been terrorizing the suburbs of the capital. The fear has frequently been expressed that if they ever got into Mexico City nothing could prevent serious rioting and looting. Delegates of Zapata at the meeting of the Chieftains at Aguascalientes were said to have had an understanding with Villa.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 24.—It is reported here that the advance guards of Gen. Villa's army have reached Teoloyucan, about twenty miles north of Mexico City.

In a statement today Gen. Obregon said that Gen. Villa had arrested Julio Madero, brother of the late President Madero. Gen. Obregon declared that he and Gen. Pablo Gonzales had sufficient troops to defeat Gen. Villa, but that they had desisted in order to allow Villa to enter the city, where the entire Constitutionalist Army would bottle him up.

"When Francisco Villa and Emiliano Zapata are found together in the National Palace," said Gen. Obregon, "the republic will feel a convulsion of repugnance which will shake it to its foundation. It is then that we will start our campaign to eliminate them, and we will be successful."

ANXIETY IN WASHINGTON.

Disorder Under Zapata Feared—Has Large Band Nearby.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—Despite the apparent roseate character of messages received from Special Agents Silliman, Canova and others, who are representing the American Government with the camps of the rival factions in Mexico, the eyes of the Administration are tonight focused on the situation in the Mexican capital.

There was distinct interest in official circles here, as well as among Mexican leaders, in the special dispatch to THE NEW YORK TIMES, received tonight from Mexico City, which said that the capital had been evacuated by Gen. Blanco and that the Zapatistas were entering the city.

Both in American official and Mexican circles the statement was made that no advices had been received confirming THE TIMES special, but it was admitted that the message to THE TIMES was not surprising. In official circles, though open comment was withheld, it was regarded as unfortunate, if true, that the Zapatistas were entering the Mexican capital ahead of Gen. Villa. Villa has issued an order to the effect that any of his soldiers caught molesting women or looting would be shot on the spot. Zapata has given no such assurances. Whether Zapata will be able to restrain his men is a question.

Gen. Blanco was regarded, on the basis of official dispatches, by American officials as a neutral, leaning neither toward Carranza, Villa, or Zapata. Blanco is a distinguished cavalry leader of the Constitutionalists who served in the army of Gen. Alvaro Obregon and figured prominently in the capture of Guadalajara, the Denver of Mexico, which success broke the backbone of Huerta's regime, being followed shortly afterward by the departure of Huerta from Mexican soil.

Zapata Men Near By.

Advices to the State Department during the past few days have shown that Zapata was within half an hour's journey by train of Mexico City. His headquarters were at Cuernavaca, just south of the capital. An official of the State Department said tonight that if Blanco had evacuated the capital the Zapatistas would undoubtedly move into the city at once, as they were near enough to the capital to enter the moment they were sure of no opposition.

Mexicans in Washington who have remained loyal to Carranza interpret the evacuation of the capital by Lucio Blanco as meaning that Blanco, concerning whose position Mexicans and American officials alike were guessing, has decided to throw his support to Carranza. Among Mexicans in Washington there have been two opinions as to Blanco. The Carranza faction has insisted that Blanco would hold control in Mexico City until the last minute preceding the arrival of Villa or Zapata, and would turn the city over to the first of these who should arrive there by shifting to them the responsibility for the maintenance of law and order and

SIEGEL THREATENED BY FEDERAL ACTION

May Be Indicted for Using Mails to Defraud—Ex-Banker Returns to New York.

Henry Siegel, who was convicted of a misdemeanor in the Supreme Court in Geneseo, N. Y., on Monday and sentenced to ten months' imprisonment with a fine of $1,000, may have to face further charges. The Federal authorities in this district are about to consider his case to see whether there is ground for a Federal indictment on the charge of using the mails to defraud.

"We shall ask District Attorney Whitman about the case and inquire particularly whether it is intended to press any of the other indictments found against Siegel," Roger B. Wood, Assistant United States District Attorney, said yesterday. "We shall confer also with Assistant District Attorney Train, who tried the case."

Whereas Siegel was convicted only of a misdemeanor, the use of the mails to defraud is a felony and is punishable by imprisonment in Atlanta Penitentiary and by a fine.

District Attorney Pelletier of Boston has written to District Attorney Whitman asking for full particulars of the trial. He was interested particularly in the way in which Justice Clark granted Siegel a stay of the prison sentence until the second Monday of June, and his promise to take into consideration then whatever restitution Siegel had been able to make to depositors. Siegel is now under indictment in Boston, and it is understood the pressing of charges there will depend a good deal upon restitution.

Siegel arrived in New York on the Empire State Express, which reached Grand Central at 10:10 last night, but a crowd which gathered at the station failed to catch a glimpse of him. Among the last of the passengers who filed through the exit gate was John B. Stanchfield, his counsel, who explained that Siegel had left the train at 125th Street.

Siegel went directly from the 125th Street Station to the Hotel Majestic at Central Park West and Seventy-second Street, where friends waited to congratulate him on gaining temporary freedom at least, and, after sending a cable message to his daughter in London telling her about the outcome of the trial, he went to his room.

About fifty depositors of the Siegel bank attended a meeting at the University Settlement, 184 Eldridge Street, and most of those present seemed gratified that he had an opportunity to make some money to repay them. A standing vote of thanks was given Assistant District Attorney Train, and it was decided to hold another meeting on Friday evening.

BRITISH ENVOY TO VATICAN.

Sir Henry Howard Appointed—No Representative Hitherto.

ROME, Nov. 24.—The appointment of Sir Henry Howard as envoy from England to the Holy See was announced here today. Great pleasure at this appointment was expressed at the Vatican, where it was said that it had always been regretted that Great Britain and the United States were not represented among the diplomats accredited to the Pope.

Once, in the course of the reign of the late Pope Leo, England sent Sir George Errington to Rome on a mission to the Vatican, and in 1902 the United States Government sent William Howard Taft to settle the Philippine friars land question. Neither country, however, has ever been represented by a permanent diplomatic agent at the Vatican, as have other non-Catholic countries, like Prussia and Russia.

Sir Henry Howard is well known in this country. He married an American, Miss Cecilia Riggs, daughter of the late George W. Riggs of Washington. She died in 1907, after forty years of married life.

Sir Henry was born in 1843, and it was while an attaché of the British Legation at Washington that he met Miss Riggs. Later he served as Secretary of Legation, Secretary of Embassy, and Minister in various parts of the world. He was made a Knight Commander of the Bath in 1907.

Well-Known Families Will Have to Sell, Art Dealers Say.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—According to art dealers, many well-known families here will be forced at the conclusion of the war to get rid of art objects of great value.

The heirs of some prominent families have been killed in battle, and it is believed that this will mean the dispersal of some famous collections. Speaking of this, a dealer said today that for a long time after the war art dealers would have to look to America and its millionaires for the disposal of works of art.

It was said at Christie's today that no auction sales had been planned for months to come.

FORD EMPLOYES' PROFITS.

$5,000,000 Worth of Homes Bought Since Opening of Sharing Plan.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 24.—As a result of the ten months' operation of the Ford profit-sharing plan employes have purchased on contract homes valued at $5,000,000 upon which they have made payments aggregating $1,200,000, have taken life insurance to the amount of about $3,000,000, and have saved on an average of $48.65 per month each, which is either in savings banks or invested in real estate. These figures were made public today.

About 9,200 employes are under the profit sharing plan. More of them are coming up to the qualifications constantly. Since the plan went into effect the average gain per man in bank deposits has been 130 per cent.; in life insurance, 86 per cent., and in homes owned, 87 per cent.

An amusing feature of the plan has been the deceptions practiced by men who could not qualify for the profit-sharing. They have borrowed bank books, passports, children, and even "wives," inducing women to pose as their spouses. Hundreds have obtained a share of the profits under such false pretenses.

No less than $8,000 has been paid back to the company by men who dishonestly obtained it.

MURDER MERCHANT AND ESCAPE IN AUTO

LURED BY TELEPHONE CALL

Crowds Miss Car Number—No Clue to Murderers—Victim Often Threatened.

Two men who afterward escaped in an automobile which had awaited them with motor running shot and killed Bernard Baff, one of the largest poultry dealers in the city, in Thirteenth Avenue near Thompson Avenue, Washington Market, just before 6 o'clock last night. One bullet hit Baff in the chest, and passed through his heart. A second entered his left shoulder. As he fell his assailants fled to the motor car, and escaped through Gansevoort Street.

Baff is said by other poultry dealers in West Washington Market to have been the man whose testimony enabled Assistant District Attorney William A. De Ford to prosecute the so-called Poultry Trust and to send thirteen of its members to jail. Baff was known as an independent dealer, but only a few weeks ago the New York Poultry Dealers' Protective Association held a meeting at which Baff was criticised harshly. He was regarded as a sort of trust representative himself, and it was charged that he controlled the retail poultry trade and was accustomed to fix the wholesale price and then undersell retail dealers who had bought from him especially at times of Jewish holidays, when unusual quantities of poultry were sold on the east side.

He had a main place of business at 60, 62, and 64 Thompson Avenue, West Washington Market, and a string of retail stores throughout the city. Five men entered one of his shops at 420 East 109th Street last March and robbed several customers there. There was several thousands dollars in the safe, but Celia Rabinowitz, the cashier, slammed the door of this and neither she nor the store manager, Morris Newark, could open it after the combination had been turned. On last Sept. 10 some one exploded a bomb in the doorway of this store, but little damage was done. Baff had received several Black Hand letters and these continued after the explosion.

His friends believe that he was killed yesterday by one of the enemies whom his testimony against the Poultry Trust or his activities as an independent dealer had made for him. He was in his shop in the market just before 6 o'clock when he told his son Harry, who was a partner in the business, that he was going across the street. In the office of another firm he received a message that he was wanted in Thirteenth Avenue. The police have been unable to discover from whom this message came.

Baff answered it, apparently unsuspecting, and the two men attacked him as he reached the corner. There was a crowd in the market, but no one tried to stop the assassins who leaped into the motor car after firing two shots at Baff. Friends picked up the wounded man and carried him into a near-by store, where Dr. Kellogg from New York Hospital was called. He found that Baff had died instantly.

Later a boy found a revolver in the street and turned it over to the police. Many persons saw the shooting, but none seemed able to give a description of the murderers, and practically the only clue obtained by the police was the revolver.

In Baff's office a number of newspaper items clipped from trade papers had been pasted on the wall. Some of these read:

"March 20.—Baff under ban. Boycotted by New York Buyers' Association. When requested to give up distributing markets he refused to comply. Trouble started."

"B. Baff & Son were boycotted by the buyers' organization of Live Poultry Dealers' Protective Association. At a meeting he was asked to give up distributing markets, of which he has four. Baff refused and he was boycotted."

In parenthesis following this was:

I refused their demands. I have not lost nerve yet. I will fight to a finish.

There were other clippings, which referred to his son being blackjacked a few months ago, to the bomb explosion at one of Baff's stores, and one warning buyers not to deal with Baff & Son, under penalty of suffering from horse poisoners' activities.

MIND OPEN ON FRANK CASE.

Gov. Slaton Says He Is Not Familiar with the Evidence.

Gov. John M. Slaton of Georgia, in whose hands, as the Executive of that State, may rest the final decision in the case of Leo M Frank, convicted of the murder of Mary Phagan, the Atlanta mill girl, whose trial Justice Lamar of the United States Supreme Court has refused to review, is at the Waldorf.

"I did not know," said Gov. Slaton last night, "whether the case would ever reach me, and I am not acquainted with it except in the most general way. Under the Constitution of Georgia the Governor has absolute power in a matter of this kind. The case would first be heard before the Prison Commission, and the Governor would then be at liberty to accept the recommendation of that body, or disregard it.

"Without knowing, I presume that immediately upon my return, I shall be requested to grant a respite until the Prison Commission can hear the case and make its recommendations. Then the procedure would be for me to review all the evidence and examine the arguments, and then reach my conclusions. It would be open to me either to commute the sentence to life imprisonment or less, or to grant a pardon, or to refuse to interfere.

"My mind is perfectly open about the matter, since I am unacquainted with the evidence."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—It was said here tonight that counsel for Leo M. Frank, undiscouraged by the denial of the application to Associate Justice Lamar of the United States Supreme Court for a writ of error, probably would ask the full bench of the Supreme Court on Monday for leave to file application for a writ of error. The court probably would not give its decision for a week.

NEWEST ZEPPELINS FLYING FORTRESSES

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The Standard's Amsterdam correspondent telegraphs that fresh stories are in circulation there about the feverish haste with which the Germans are turning out Zeppelins. It is said that the Germans now have available forty of the new type of Zeppelin. The chief improvement lies in the fact that the explosives no longer are discharged from the navigating cabin, but are fired when the craft goes into action from a special car suspended 500 yards below the airship proper. Only one man occupies this magazine car, so that if anything goes wrong the loss of life will be comparatively insignificant, while, on the other hand, the chances of damage to the airship by premature explosion or other mishap are reduced to next to nothing.

It is again asserted that the new Zeppelins are being fitted with a kind of torpedo, from thirty to forty of which will be carried by each ship. Their explosive power is said to be fully equivalent to that of a shell of the famous 42-centimeter siege guns. For defense purposes a number of quick-firers are carried fore and aft, as well as on a special gun platform on the roof of the airship. A new lookout also has been rigged up on top of the envelope, with a telephone to the commander.

CAPTURED SUBMARINE CREW LANDED AT LEITH

Only Member Lost Was One Who Opened Valve to Send Vessel to Bottom.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

EDINBURGH, Nov. 24, (Dispatch to The London Daily Telegraph.)—Twenty-six members of the crew of the German submarine U-18, which was rammed by a British patrolling vessel off the northern coast of Scotland yesterday, were landed at Leith as prisoners of war. It is understood that one of the German officers, speaking of the sinking of the submarine, remarked that the only member of the crew who had lost his life had opened a valve in the submarine so that the vessel might sink and not be captured. It appears that the Germans jumped into the water just before the submarine sank, and that they were all quickly pulled aboard the patrol ship.

Gratitude was expressed by the officers for the kindness bestowed upon them by the British military and naval authorities. They were anxious to know if there would be an exchange of prisoners.

BERLIN, Nov. 24, (by Wireless Telegraphy to Sayville, L. I.)—The Official Press Bureau made denial today of the statement of the Secretary of the British Admiralty yesterday that a German submarine had been sunk off the coast of Scotland by a British patrolling vessel.

"British reports concerning the destruction of German submarines," says the Press Bureau, "are unfounded. No submarines are missing."

SEA FIGHT IMMINENT OFF BRAZILIAN COAST

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 21.—British steamers are being held at Montevideo for orders. The German fleet is reported off La Plata River, a British fleet is off the coast and a naval battle is expected hourly.

MILLIONS IN CARGOES FREED BY TEST CASE

British Court's Ruling, Our Consul Predicts, Will Have Sweeping Effect on Shipping.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The decision of the British prize court in the case of the Miramichi, the British ship which sailed before the outbreak of war from Galveston with a cargo of wheat destined for Rotterdam and thence to two German firms will have an important effect upon American shipping interests.

The court upholds the American contention that the cargo was the property of Americans and ordered its release. Consul General Skinner said to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent: "This was a test case. The decision should mean the release in a reasonable time of millions of dollars of American shipping of similar status."

GERMAN MISSIONARY TRIES TO BLOW UP SHIP

When Asked About His Act, Says He Is a Soldier First, a Missionary Afterward.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—A German tried to blow up the British gunboat Dwarf with an infernal machine in a West African harbor recently, according to a report to the Colonial Office.

It was discovered that the German was a missionary.

"When questioned as to how he found such an action compatible with his profession," says the report, "he replied that he was a soldier first and a missionary afterward."

RICHARD CROKER, 71, IS TO MARRY AGAIN

BRIDE'S NAME A SECRET

Ceremony at St. Agnes's Tomorrow—Son Denies and Brother-in-Law Doesn't Believe Report.

Richard Croker of Glencairn, Ireland, 71 years old, who returned to New York last September to attend the funeral of his wife, has invited his most intimate friends to his wedding at St. Agnes's Roman Catholic Church, Lexington Avenue and Forty-third Street, tomorrow morning. Despite every precaution for secrecy the news was spread about late yesterday afternoon that the former Tammany Hall leader was to be married a second time.

Close friends of Mr. Croker's admitted to a TIMES reporter last night that they had received verbal invitations to "the affair." They always referred to it as an affair, but admitted on close questioning that it was a wedding. They held their hands to their lips when questioned as to details.

"We are under solemn promise not to say a word, not a word," they said. "We'd like to help you out, but we can't."

"Who is the bride?" was the question put last night to a number of old-time Tammany politicians who know Richard Croker like a father.

"Ah, that's the secret," they replied. "We're going to the affair, but we don't know whom he is going to meet at the altar. Honestly, we don't know. Of course, we wouldn't tell if we knew, but we don't know We were just tipped off to come around to the church, and that is all we know about the affair."

Relatives Not in the Secret.

"There is absolutely nothing to it," said Howard Croker, who lives at the Croker town house, 5 East Seventy-fourth Street. Young Mr. Croker could not be seen by the reporter, but he sent his denial of the printed reports of the approaching marriage through a friend at the National Democratic Club.

"I hadn't the slightest idea that Mr. Croker would marry again," said Dr. Amos T. Jenkins, brother-in-law of Richard Croker, at his home on Staten Island last night. "If he means to marry again, he has kept the thing most secret. I am sure that none of the relatives were let in on the secret. I cannot believe that the report is true."

Only one man could be found by THE TIMES reporter who admitted that he knew the bride's name. This was John M. Riehle, a candidate for the Presidency of the National Democratic Club, where Mr. Croker is staying.

"Is her name Mrs. Dickinson?" asked a reporter, on the strength of one of the reports which had become current.

"That is not the young woman's name," replied Mr. Riehle. "I know her name, but I can't tell you—not a word."

"Is she Mr. Croker's housekeeper?"

"That report is not true," replied Mr. Riehle. "Mr. Croker's housekeeper at his home in Ireland, Mrs. Beaumont, died some months ago. She was his niece. I don't know of any other housekeeper."

The National Democratic Club was astir with the news last night. Mr. Croker was in the clubhouse in the afternoon, but when he discovered that the newspaper men wanted to see him he went away in an automobile."

"He will not return tonight," said the clerk. "I can tell you that positively. I don't know where he went or where he might be found."

There was a dinner at the club last night at which an oil painting of Supreme Court Justice Donnelly was presented to the club. It had been expected that Mr. Croker would attend, but he did not appear, according to a number of diners who were seen.

Ceremony at St. Agnes's.

The ceremony tomorrow is to be performed by Mgr. H. A. Brann, the rector of St. Agnes's Church. Mgr. Brann received reporters last night, but when asked about the Croker wedding he replied that he could not answer one way or another regarding any such wedding. He had absolutely nothing to say and considered weddings to be strictly private. He refused to discuss a report that the future Mrs. Croker only recently had been converted to Catholicism from the Presbyterian faith.

According to the plans as admitted by one of the men invited to the wedding, the church ceremony will be held at 10:30 o'clock. Then there will be a dinner for a few friends. The couple will go to Palm Beach for their honeymoon. Mr. Croker is well known in Palm Beach.

Mrs. Croker died in Austria on Sept. 6 last. She was Miss Elizabeth Frazer, daughter of Samuel Frazer of this city. She was married to Richard Croker in 1873. Nine children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Croker, and five of them are dead, three dying at an early age. Frank H. Croker, one of the sons, was killed in an automobile accident in Florida in 1895. Herbert Croker died in the same year on a train in Kansas, and the circumstances of his death suggested foul play. Richard Croker, Jr., of Port Chester, N. Y., the eldest son, is 37 years old. Howard Croker is 26 years old. There are two daughters, Ethel and Florence, the latter being the wife of Count Louis San Martini of Naples. Ethel Croker was married to John Breen and they were later divorced. She is now living with her brother Howard on East Seventy-fourth Street.

Lived Apart from First Wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Croker lived apart for many years after the children were grown up. There were reports of several reconciliations. Mr. Croker was in Ireland when his wife died in Austria. He hurried here to attend her funeral, and surprised his friends on his arrival by appearing with his white beard shaved off.

Mr. Croker is believed to be immensely wealthy. His estate in Ireland is a fine one and he has large land holdings. He has always maintained his business interests here, and they brought him to New York many times. When attacks began on Charles F. Murphy, the present Tammany leader, it was reported that Croker was planning to get back into political power. He has vigorously denied, however, any intention of getting back into the political game.

Within the last few weeks Mr. Croker has been seen much on Fifth Avenue, and he has looked up all of his old political friends. Some of these friends who live in the suburbs were called on the telephone last night. They had not heard of the coming wedding and professed great astonishment.

RUSSIANS VICTORS IN TEN-DAY BATTLE, PRESSING GERMANS BACK IN POLAND

OWN LINE SMASHED IN TURN

MANY PRISONERS CAPTURED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 24, (Dispatch to The London Morning Post.)—Grand Duke Nicholas has scored against Germany's finest troops another success which none but a military man would hesitate to call a signal victory. As modestly put in the official report the Germans have begun a retirement from the line indicated by the following points, which all lie between the upper reaches of the Bsura River and the Warthe, a couple of miles east of Sieradz, namely, Strykow, Zgierz, Szadek, Zdunskawola, and Vozniki.

On this line, the extreme points of which are more than forty miles apart, the most stubborn battle yet fought in this war has been in progress for the last ten days. I am in the position to give in brief outline some account of this fortnight's great campaign, but would again call attention to the fact that these forty miles represent only a small section of the great front on which the grand strategic scheme of the Russian Commander in Chief is now rapidly developing.

Victory or defeat in the modern titanic struggles of armed nations can only be properly appreciated with a knowledge of the entire strategic scheme. The Grand Duke applies the word "victory" solely to this final realization of his complete strategic scheme, and therefore abstains from calling the present retirement of the Germans even a local success.

Certain critics have found fault with the original Vistula operations for meeting the Germans west of the river instead of allowing them to cross over to certain extermination. They got away by sacrificing their allies and reserves, and soon came back again with their characteristic rush. The Russians again admitted them into Poland until they reached a point where the strategic scheme required that they should be stopped. These critics, once more dissatisfied, are afraid the Germans have not been admitted far enough, and may again escape utter destruction; but Russia's friends abroad will rightly rejoice at the result of the ten days' magnificent fighting by Russian troops against Germany's best in overwhelming numbers, especially commissioned to wipe out the stigma of the previous flight, and fighting like tigers to that end in vain.

Cossacks Harried Advance.

After the triple defeats—the first near Warsaw, the second south of the Pelica River, and the third on the San River—of the Austro-German armies of a couple of million men, the Russian cavalry shepherded their flight across half of Poland, and entered Prussia at their heels. When the Germans, hurrying up troops from the western front and home garrisons on the East Prussian front and everywhere whence it was possible to assemble first-class troops, turned to avenge their defeat in Poland the Russian cavalry led them back, harrying their advance as it had harried their flight, while the main forces were busy repairing the havoc wrought on the Polish railways and roads, and were taking up their positions on a line where it was decided to bring the Germans to battle.

The strategic scheme required that the Germans should be held and kept occupied for a certain length of time on a certain line. The Russian right rested on the Vistula, about half way between Warsaw and the frontier near Gombin. The country here provides for an admirable flank defense. West of Gombin a high cluster of hills commands a wide area opposite the bank of the Vistula near Plock, while between Gombin and the hills a lake several miles long further strengthens the position. Thence the line passed southwards in the neighborhood of Lowicz to Rawa, where the railway ends, and on to Opoczno, in the neighborhood of which was the Russian left.

This front rested on a vast area of impracticable marshland, extending between Vlosczovt and Konsk. Its total length was about a hundred miles. The northern end for a score of miles was in more or less hilly and broken country, then for fifty miles in pretty level open country with occasional extensive areas of forest becoming patchy toward the south, where the line ended in irregular, wooded, marshy land.

The German scheme was to break through the centre of the whole Russian strategic position from the Baltic to the Carpathians, with ten or twelve army corps, say half a million men—a minimum when reinforcements which arrived continually are added to the original corps. Similarly, on this hundred-mile section of the whole strategic front the Germans again struck for the centre.

How the first seven days of actual hard fighting passed we are only vaguely informed. Attempts to outflank were made several times by the Germans, first on one flank and then on the other and finally both together, but all in vain. Nor were the Russians entrapped into advancing too far in the centre when the Germans purposely weakened it to make attacks on both flanks. All I can say is that the fortunes of the battle covered a considerable area. There were varied suc-

Portugal's Parliament Votes to Join the Allies Whenever that Step Is Considered Necessary

LONDON, Nov. 24.—A dispatch from Lisbon says that the Portuguese Congress today decided that Portugal should co-operate with the Allies when it considers the step necessary. The Minister of War will issue a decree for partial mobilization.

Portugal has ready for the field 30,000 troops. The mobilization would increase this force by 35 regiments of infantry, 8 squadrons of cavalry, and 24 field batteries, or 100,000. A second mobilization would bring this figure up to 245,000—a conservative estimate. Portugal has in commission 5 protected cruisers, 3 destroyers, 4 torpedo boats, and 3 submarines. There is also an obsolete battleship and some old gunboats.

GERMANS ATTACK ALLIES IN FORCE

SHIPS SHELL ZEEBRUGGE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

NORTHERN FRANCE, Nov. 24, (Dispatch to The London Daily Chronicle.)—The combined French and British armies have been attacked by the Germans in force from Ypres to La Bassée, and a battle on the scale of the battles on the Marne, of the Yser, and of the first and second battles of Ypres has commenced.

In this terrific struggle, into which the Germans enter with large reinforcements and fresh guns, the French and British armies are acting in direct concert. Already the fight has been in progress forty-eight hours.

The mightiest guns in the world's history have been brought into action, carrying death and destruction for fifteen to eighteen miles from their emplacements. Under cover of these infantry attacks are being developed.

The German objective is the town of Ypres, to capture which they sacrificed thousands of lives under the fire of the British during last month. Their guns are battering the town once more.

Everywhere along the line I hear that the Allies have succeeded in checking the Germans' assaults. The invaders were allowed to exhaust themselves, so that a fresh and significant phase of the battle has opened—a phase in which the whole line of German trenches is threatened by the English and French infantry.

Of actual details of the fighting I will write later, when the issue is no longer in the balance, but I am able to state that the English artillery has thwarted every movement of the Germans. The opening stages of the battle have, in fact, been dominated by the guns of the Royal Garrison Artillery.

Frost has hardened roads and fields so that both armies lost no time in snatching new vantage points for their heaviest pieces. In snatching such advantages the Royal Garrison Artillery has performed astonishing feats.

Although the strain of laying their guns is enormous they replied to the German fire on Sunday in the lightest of moods. In the intervals of hurling shells at the German batteries they sang a variation of "Hold Your Hand Out, Naughty Boy," which was expressly worded for the Kaiser. They sang, "Hold Your Hand Out, Billy Boy," to the amusement of the battalions of supporting infantry, who were awaiting developments ahead.

Fresh activity, reminiscent of the lightning advance on Paris, has spread through the Germans.

Since Saturday their aviators have thrown bombs on Hazebrouck, Cassel, Amiens, and Armentières. Civilians were killed in each place and at Armentières alone were the aviators punished. Here they exposed themselves to the fire of English aerial guns. Two of their machines were brought to the ground and their four occupants were killed.

Kaiser Has Ordered Calais Taken.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WEST FLANDERS, Nov. 23, (Dispatch to The London Standard.)—Behind the statements of the German official wireless news one may read determination to continue the attack and confidence in the ultimate triumph of Germany.

An effort is to be made this week to burst through to Calais, and half a million German troops will be engaged in it. Within the next few days perhaps, 100,000 Germans will lay down their lives in the effort to form a pathway for the survivors, obeying the Kaiser's order that Calais must be taken by Dec. 10.

The Germans know how to die, and legions are marching across Belgium to join in the battle with the Allies in the decisive contest in this region.

There are two dominant impulses which make the Germans fling themselves headlong upon death with such recklessness as to inspire sincere admiration in their enemies.

One is genuine devotion to the Fatherland. Every German soldier now realizes, whatever his opinion about war in general, and this war in particular, that success for the German arms can alone avert disaster from his beloved country.

The other result is terror of their officers. The tyranny permitted to the German officer enables him to make his

CHILE CHARGES GERMAN AFFRONT

Insists That Kaiser's Warships Repeatedly Have Violated Nation's Neutrality.

WASHINGTON IS SUSPICIOUS

SANTIAGO, Chile, Nov. 24.—An official statement issued by the maritime authorities today says that it has been proved that German warships have violated the neutrality of Chile by staying for several days at the Juan Fernandez Islands, capturing two neutral ships, seizing coal and provisions, and sinking the French bark Valentine a half mile distant from the Chilean coast.

VALPARAISO, Nov. 24.—The Chilean training ship General Baquedano was sent by the Government to the Juan Fernandez Islands to make an investigation into the charges that the Germans had established a base of operations on the Island of Mas a Fuera, one of this group.

The French Consul here has lodged a protest with the Chilean Government that the French bark Valentine was sunk by the Germans within the territorial waters of this island.

Furthermore an investigation is being made as to the statement that the American steamer Sacramento, formerly the German steamer Alexandria, from San Francisco, Oct. 15 for Valparaiso, transshipped her full cargo of coal and provisions to a German vessel within the territorial waters of the Island Mas a Fuera.

There is considerable public feeling here on the assumption that the Germans have repeatedly violated the neutrality of Chile, and the Government has decided that it will take energetic measures to preserve its neutrality.

INVESTIGATES SACRAMENTO.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—The American Consul at Valparaiso, Chile, has been asked to report the circumstances attending the arrival at that port last week of the American steamship Sacramento, without her cargo of coal and provisions. The case of the Sacramento, it is believed, involves elements of great importance.

The Sacramento, which formerly was the Hamburg-American steamship Alexandria, was transferred to the American flag under the new ship registry law, was taken over by a newly formed American company, and was renamed the Sacramento. Under this name the vessel sailed from San Francisco on Oct. 15, having cleared for Valparaiso with a cargo of 6,000 tons of coal and a quantity of provisions. The Sacramento has just arrived at Valparaiso, but without the cargo of coal and provisions.

The commander of the vessel, Capt. Jacobson, it is reported, explained the absence of his cargo on his arrival at Valparaiso by saying that his ship was halted by a German warship, seized and taken to the Chilean Island of Juan Fernandez, where, he asserted, the coal and provisions were confiscated by the officers of the warship.

The case of the Sacramento is important for two reasons. If the Sacramento was transferred in perfect good faith to a new American company and to American registry, and it is also true that its cargo, while sailing under the American flag to a neutral port, was seized by a German warship, a serious diplomatic incident with the German Government may follow.

On the other hand, if the transfer of registry was not in good faith and the coal was not actually seized by the Germans, but was secretly intended to be delivered to German warships cruising off the Chilean coast, then it becomes a case of possible collusion against the neutrality of the Government of the United States. There seems to be no doubt that the coal disappeared mysteriously from the Sacramento, and its disappearance must be explained to the satisfaction of the American Government. Whichever angle the case takes in the pending investigation, the outcome is considered highly important.

The case of the Sacramento is different from that of any other steamship transferred to American registry under the new law. Most of the other ships thus transferred were owned or controlled for years by Americans. The Sacramento, on the other hand, was an out-and-out Hamburg-American company's steamship. There was some difficulty about obtaining American reg-

By this time the Germans had again concentrated their efforts at breaking through the Russian centre. This attack was directed along a line, roughly, from Strykoff to a few miles north of Ebeff, where the Warsaw main line to Vienna takes a sudden sharp bend. West of the railway, in the neighborhood of Brezin, is a hilly country affording ideal artillery positions, while a considerable part of the approach to the railway here is covered by forests. The Germans made here superhuman effort and actually succeeded in breaking temporarily through the Russian defense and getting in the rear of the Russian position.

German Line Smashed in Turn.

They do not appear to have fully realized their chances. At any rate they failed to take advantages which less pedantically scientific soldiers would probably have turned to victory. The Russians countered by piercing the German lines at another point, and proceeded to make hay of everything within reach. The Germans withdrew, losing a whole battery of heavy artillery and a couple of regiments of prisoners.

Doubtless the failure of this most determined attack, which was almost a success, has had a disheartening effect upon the Germans, for when their ordinary hammer-and-tongs fighting was resumed the Russians in a couple of days convinced them that the time had come to retire, and the Germans are now in retreat along the line already indicated.

Large bodies of reinforcements are moving up on the German right rear from the neighborhood of Wielun. They consist principally of new formations, and their arrival may have been the signal for the German retreat, the duty of the newcomers apparently being to sacrifice themselves in order to enable the Germans to extricate what was left of their best troops after a fortnight's extremely heavy fighting.

On the other hand it is equally likely that the Germans were so thoroughly defeated that not even the proximity of large forces hastening to their support could prolong their stand against the vigorous, sustained onset of the Russians.

Attempt to Turn Flank Fails.

LONDON, Wednesday, Nov. 25.—"The German attempt to turn the Russian flank at Wielun Pass was expected and checked," says The Times Petrograd correspondent.

"The difficulties of the Russian operations in Poland were enormously aggravated by the havoc the Germans wrought during their retreat from Warsaw.

A Russky Slovo correspondent who visited the scene says it is difficult to find a solitary foot of undamaged railroad roadbed for hundreds of versts. The scene, he declares, suggests the visitation of a tremendous typhoon or earthquake. The devastation of the country runs from Warsaw to near Kutno, where the destruction becomes less complete.

The commencement of the bombardment of the Cracow forts bears out the official Russian reports that the Russians are approaching the fortress from three directions, namely, Miechow, Woinicz, and New Sandec."

BIG HAUL OF PRISONERS.

Two Regiments Yield in Upper Poland—6,000 Prisoners in South.

LONDON, Wednesday, Nov. 25.—The Daily Mail Petrograd correspondent, describing the capture of Germans in the fighting near the River Bsura, says:

"Three German regiments were caught with their back to the river and suffered heavily from the Russian artillery, while the Russian infantry was creeping ever nearer. Their only way of escape was across the river, but this attempt was frustrated by the Russian cavalry. Seeing their position was hopeless, the whole force, amounting to two and a half regiments, surrendered."

PETROGRAD, Nov. 24, (via London, Nov. 25.)—An official report issued here tonight says there have been continued Russian successes on the Czenstochowo-Cracow front, where on Nov. 22 the Russians took 6,000 prisoners.

The battle of Lodz continues. At one point Russian cavalry attacked a body of retreating infantry, inflicting great losses and capturing heavy guns.

"The Russians on the east of the lake region (East Prussia) made themselves masters of a field work fitted with guns but not garrisoned."

This statement refers to a redoubt near the village of Przykop, which on the night of Nov. 17 a company of the Siberian Regiment, under command of Capt. Ossihoff, stormed and occupied. The next day the Germans concentrated on the redoubt a violent fire from large-calibre howitzers, and kept up the attack on it for four hours in an effort to retake it.

During this attack the German columns were compelled to advance over a small isthmus between the lakes Voinoff (south) and Bonvelno and the lake Levantin. After the battle this isthmus, which is about 400 feet long, was piled up with the bodies of Germans killed during the attack.

After fierce fighting the redoubt remained in our possession.

NO RESULT YET, SAYS BERLIN.

BERLIN, Nov. 24 (by wireless telegraph to London.)—An official communication given out today by the German Headquarters Staff says:

In the Eastern war theatre the situation has not yet been decided. In East Prussia our troops are holding their own to the northeast of the plain of the (Masur) Lakes.

In Northern Poland the fierce fighting which has been taking place still has been without result.

In Southern Poland the battle in the region of Czenstochowa has come to a standstill.

On our southern wing to the northeast of Cracow our attack is progressing.

The official Russian report that Gens. Liebert and Tannewitz were made prisoners in East Prussia is an invention. Gen. Liebert at present is in Berlin and Gen. Tannewitz is at the head of his troops.

BERLIN, Nov. 24.—(By Wireless Telegraphy to Sayville, N. Y.)—The following information was given out today by the Official Press Bureau:

While an eventual victory for the Teutonic Allies in the eastern theatre of the war is expected as confidently as ever, official reports from the German and Austrian military headquarters make it appear that a decision will not be reached as soon as had been expected. The final result has been delayed by the advance of new Russian forces from Warsaw.

The Austrians announce that they have abandoned to superior hostile forces several passes in the Carpathians. The Russian troops, which are investing Przemysl, are said to have been driven back by a sortie and are not within range of the cannon of the forts.

The tremendous extent of the battles now raging in the east is apparent from the fact that contests are now in progress along a front extending over 400 miles between the positions on the extreme north and south.

LONDON, Wednesday, Nov. 25.—A Reuter official dispatch from Vienna, coming by way of Amsterdam, says:

The battle in Russian Poland, in spite of the bitter cold, is being energetically continued. Our troops have captured several bases of operation and are progressing, especially toward Woldromand, on both sides of the Pilica. Numerous prisoners have been taken.

At other places the situation is unchanged.

BOMB MISSES OUR CONSULATE.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—A bomb from a German airship fell in front of the American Consulate at Warsaw early today, breaking the windows of the consulate but injuring no one within, according to a telegram dated today from Ambassador Marye at Petrograd. Several persons in the street were killed and wounded, but no Americans were among them.

American Consuls received instructions early in the war to leave zones of great danger whenever invading forces arrived in their vicinity. It is expected here that if Warsaw becomes a battle ground of the German and Russian armies the American Consul and his staff will withdraw to a place of safety.

TERRITORY RUSSIA WANTS.

East Prussia and Galicia, According to a Diplomat.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

ROME, Nov. 24.—A prominent Russian diplomatist, speaking today on the situation in the eastern theatre of war from the Russian point of view, says:

"Our aspirations are almost realized, as what we desired to obtain was the annexation of Galicia, which already is in our hands, and the conquest of East Prussia, which is about to occur, thus fulfilling the promise of the Czar to reunite Poland under the Russian sceptre. Poland, therefore, is returning free in faith, language, and autonomy. The occupation of East Prussia as far as the Vistula River is a strategical necessity for Russia. It is a question of life for Poland which otherwise would have no outlet to the sea.

"Other problems which Russia wishes solved are the neutralization of the Bosporus and Dardanelles, the independence of Armenia, which now is divided among Russia, Turkey, and Persia, and the freedom of the Balkan States from any Austro-German threats."

GERMAN DUKE'S CLOSE CALL.

Bomb Explodes Near Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, Killing Three of Staff.

AMSTERDAM, (via London,) Nov. 24.—According to a Berlin dispatch to The Telegraaf, the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha narrowly escaped death in the eastern theatre of the war by a shell which exploded near where he and his staff were standing.

The explosion killed Col. von Berg and wounded two other officers.

URGE BULGARIAN ACTION.

Leading Deputies of Sofia Ask That Macedonia Be Occupied.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—In the course of the sitting of the Bulgarian Parliament today, says a dispatch to the Central News Agency from Sofia, the leaders of the Agrarian, National, and Liberal Parties delivered speeches in which they called for the formation of a genuine National Ministry.

The Deputies also urged the occupation by Bulgaria of Macedonia, which, it was argued, could be carried out in agreement with the Triple Entente powers.

Austrian troops, said the speakers, were approaching the Bulgarian frontier, which, it was feared, they would cross with a view to co-operating with the Turks.

HELD UP BY BULGARIA.

Medical Supplies and Clothes for Servian Army Stopped.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 24.—Medical supplies and Winter clothing purchased in Moscow at a cost of $50,000 for the Servian Army have been held up by the Bulgarian authorities, who have refused to allow passage through that country. The purchaser is the Archimandrite Michael, head of the Servian Church and Vice President of the Slavic Society in Russia.

IN NO HURRY FOR PEACE.

Berlin Quotes Danish Answer to English Reports.

BERLIN, Nov. 24, (By Wireless Telegraph to Sayville, L. I.)—The following was contained in the information given out to the press today:

"The Copenhagen Politiken states that English reports that Germany wishes peace are absurd, and that their only aim is to keep England in good humor. Germany has no reason for wishing peace, since her armies are on foreign territory and her navy is uninjured."

REPORTS FRENCH DISASTER.

Berlin Press Bureau Tells of Defeat —French Report Later Victory.

BERLIN, Nov. 24., (By Wireless Telegraphy to Sayville, L. I.)—The French losses in the recent fighting near Khenifra, Morocco, during the attack on an encampment of mountain tribes, are given today in reports from Madrid which were issued by the Official Press Bureau as twenty-three officers and 600 men killed.

The fighting resulted, according to these reports, in a defeat for the French, who, it is said, lost two batteries.

Reports from Paris on Monday said the French, strongly reinforced from Zeedla and Fez, drove back the Berbers to the Mountains, and also recovered war material that they had been obliged to abandon in the earlier fighting.

MEDAL FOR MME. POINCARE.

President's Wife Honored for Her Services as a Nurse.

BORDEAUX, Nov. 24, (via Paris.)—The Bar Association has presented to Mme. Poincaré, wife of the President of France, a specially designed medal as a mark of admiration at the example she set by working as a simple nurse in a hospital organized by the association.

Mme. Poincaré, who early in the war completed a course in nursing that qualified her for duty in the Red Cross, volunteered her services as soon as she arrived at Bordeaux, when the seat of Government was moved to this city from Paris. The address, accompanying the presentation, says:

"We all remember with sincere emotion the kind, unassuming nurse, who took up her humble duties early each morning, and whose perseverance brought each day to our dear wounded most attentive care and deeply appreciated encouragement."

TURKISH MOB WRECKED SAN STEFANO CHURCH

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 24, (Dispatch to The London Daily News.)—A former official of the Turkish tobacco monopoly has reached Odessa from Constantinople. He says a mob of 12,000, led by officers, wrecked the interior of the San Stefano Cathedral. Hand grenades were thrown, but the steeple was undamaged.

The mob then looted shops in Stamboul belonging to Christians and crossed to Pera, where they looted foreign Consulates.

Minister of the Interior Talaat Bey had assured the American Ambassador there was no danger to foreigners, and he had ordered the removal of sentries from the British Consulate.

The mob seized and carried off some German civilians by mistake. Thereupon the German military mission ordered Enver Bey to release them immediately and punish the mutineers, otherwise the Turkish Government buildings would be shelled.

KAISER LOST 120,000 BY DASH FOR CALAIS

French Army Bulletin Summarizes the Gains of Six Weeks' Fighting.

SAYS GERMAN PLAN FAILED

France Not Crushed, Belgium Not Annexed, and Britain Not Menaced.

PARIS, Nov. 24.—The Bulletin des Armées, in its issue tomorrow, will publish a summary of the military operations of the last six weeks. This article, given out officially this afternoon, is as follows:

"With the fresh success of the Allies in the battle of Flanders the moment has come to recite the accomplishments of the last six weeks. These may be summed up as follows:

"The formidable effort undertaken by the Germans during this time first, to turn our left wing, and, second, to penetrate it, has resulted in failure. By this effort the enemy was endeavoring to make good his defeats on the Marne; instead, he only added another check to the check he suffered in September.

"Nevertheless, in order to flank us in accordance with its recognized method, the German General Staff neglected nothing along that portion of the front extending from the River Lys to the sea. It massed between the beginning of October and the beginning of November four corps of cavalry and two armies, comprising in all fifteen army corps.

"The Crown Prince of Bavaria, Gen. von Fabeck, Gen. von Demling, and the Duke of Württemberg, to stimulate the morale of their troops, issued several appeals and exhortations. We found their orders on officers who fell in battle or were taken prisoners.

"All these documents agreed that it was a question of a decisive action against the French left. It was necessary to penetrate to Dunkirk or Ypres for the reason, according to one of these orders, that the decisive blow was yet to be delivered. And this blow must be decisive, delivered with all speed and carried through at all cost. It was desired to obtain a decision in the western arena of operations before again turning toward the adversary in the East.

Planned to Annex Belgium.

"These various orders recited, furthermore, that Emperor William was there to animate his soldiers by his presence. He had announced that he wanted to be in Ypres on Nov. 1, and everything was prepared so that on that date there could be proclaimed the annexation of Belgium.

"In short, everything was provided for, every single thing except the victorious resistance of the allied army. To make this resistance possible it was necessary for us to oppose to the enemy forces if not equal to his own, at least sufficient.

"What was then the situation at the beginning of October?

"The Belgian Army had come out of Antwerp intact, but too exhausted to take part in any manoeuvre. The English Army was leaving its front on the Aisne for a field of operations in the north. Transportation and the movements of supplies occasioned long delays.

"The army under Gen. de Castelnau did not extend its left wing beyond a point south of Arras. The army of Gen. de Maudhuy extended from this point to the south of Lille. Further on we had cavalry, territorials, and marine fusiliers. This force was not sufficiently strong to enable Gen. Foch, called by Gen. Joffre to take command of the armies in the north, to break the will of the enemy. Reinforcements were, therefore sent him.

"Then for three weeks we saw the reign of the railroad and the automobile. Day and night troops were being moved by these methods of transportation, and they arrived in time. Divisions and army corps, not so strong numerically as those of the enemy, but sustained by an admirable spirit, moved into action as they disembarked from the train. For thirty days these divisions were at the front.

Battle Line on Oct. 20.

"About Oct. 20 our front was outlined as follows: From Nieuport to Dixmude one of our divisions of infantry and our marines held the railroad line, while the Belgium army was reorganizing itself in the rear; to the south of Dixmude we were installed along the canal, and from here our line extended to the east, making in front of Ypres a vast semi-circle held by four corps of the French Army and one corps of the English Army. The line then dropped to a point to the south of Messines and Armentières, forming two segments, the first held by the remainder of the British Army and the second by ourselves.

"The German attack was an effort first to occupy Dunkirk and reach Calais or Boulogne. They tried to flank us and to cut the direct communications of the British Army with the sea coast.

"All the heavy artillery of the enemy brought from Antwerp was there, ready to be used again.

"Beginning the 5th of November the attacks were repulsed. From the railroad we marched toward the Yser, rolling up the enemy, who had succeeded in crossing to the left bank of the stream, and drowning his rearguards in the floods. One can still see near Ramscappelle German cannon half buried in the mud and the corpses of German soldiers half submerged.

Desperate Fight for Ypres.

"Then the enemy, finding it impossible to get around our flank, endeavored to cut through. This was the battle of Ypres, an engagement desperate, furious, and relentless, during which the German army hurled its units forward in dense masses without counting its losses, sacrificing everything in a fierce endeavor to attain its object. But the effort was in vain.

"For close on to three weeks we stood up against repeated frantic assaults. Every one of them was repulsed. Our front, with its circular formation, was not easy to hold, but nevertheless we were successful in keeping it intact.

"On the 30th of October the British troops, particularly the cavalry, had been obliged to withdraw for several hundred yards before a powerful onslaught of the enemy.

"Our troops, attacking in conjunction and at the same time with our allies, were successful in re-establishing the impassable barrier which closed the approaches to Ypres. That which was done here by our army corps, working in close harmony with the English corps which it encircled, is worthy of a place in the finest records of military history.

"On the 12th of November the enemy had succeeded, at a point north of Ypres, in crossing the canal over two bridges. By the 13th we had been driven back to the other bank. Also on the 12th the enemy succeeded in occupying a certain territory in the region to the south of Ypres. This territory was recaptured from him.

"On the 15th the attacks of the enemy were less intense, and our position, already strong, became impregnable. This result was obtained by the Belgian Army, under the orders of Gen. d'Urbal, together with the participation of the armies of Gens. de Maudhuy and de Castelnau. These three armies constituted the group of armies under the command of Gen. Foch. The two last mentioned contributed brilliantly to our success by repulsing all the attacks directed against them, and by occupying, between the Oise and the Lys, several positions of importance.

"The decisive assistance that we were able to lend under these circumstances to the British troops, tightened further the bonds uniting the Allies in a brotherhood of arms.

"Finally the energy of our resistance inspired the Belgian Army with confidence. This army, which had reorganized on its own territory, is now ready for the engagements of tomorrow.

"The losses of the Germans have been considerable. They undoubtedly exceed 120,000 men. In certain trenches 120 meters long there have been found more than 2,000 corpses. This in spite of the fact that we know that the Germans, whenever it is possible for them to do so, remove their dead from the field of battle.

"Such heavy losses on the part of the enemy are to be explained by particular circumstances. If the Germans for three weeks attacked in dense masses, the reason was to be found in the recent form of organization of some of their army corps. The numerous pieces of artillery that we grouped at a point to the south of Ypres opened in these masses of men sanguinary breaches. It was all an indication of the importance of our success.

"The greatness of the result obtained by us becomes particularly significant and striking if one will realize that the Germans themselves always regarded the breaking of our line at Ypres as most important. In checking their offensive movement we inflicted upon them a most humiliating defeat.

A Summary of Military Gains.

"We have obtained further results, the importance of which should be set forth. Here they are. The Belgian Army having been driven from its own land, Emperor William was not only on the point of realizing his project to proclaim at Ypres the annexation of this courageous nation, but he was also on the point of glorying in the annihilation of at least one of his adversaries. This double satisfaction was refused him.

"If Dunkirk, Calais, and Boulogne had been taken, Great Britain would have been hampered in communicating with her army on the Continent.

"Finally, France in maintaining impossible the front of her armies from the sea to Arras adopted the best and the most efficacious guarantee against a return to the offensive movement of the enemy on Paris.

"The foregoing is an outline of our success. To present it more definitely it might be well to throw on the screen of the campaign a comparison of the fronts occupied by our left and by the German right in the beginning of September and then in the middle of November.

"The outcome is this: We have to our credit not a series of momentary successes, but a continuous progress, which has made vain the persistent and uninterrupted effort of the enemy.

"After our victory on the Marne had, in the middle of September, obliged the German Army to undertake a precipitate retreat, the enemy endeavored at once to win back its advantage, and always by trying to turn our left wing.

"At no point were the Germans successful. During this time, on the contrary, we succeeded in extending our left as far as Belgium, and even as far as the sea. We then maintained our line impregnable in its new positions.

"The successes won in Flanders, in which the French troops supported the principal burden, is thus seen to be a continuation, an extending, and a development of the victory of the Marne. The glory of this success is due to our leaders and to our soldiers. It is exemplified also by the ability of our General Staff to read clearly the purposes and intentions of the German commanders. Our staff is ready everywhere and always not only for parade but for retaliation.

Troops Gain Defensive Power.

"As for our troops they have acquired certain qualities which they perhaps lacked at the beginning of the operations, particularly the ability for rapid defensive organization. The trenches they build today are as good as those constructed by the enemy.

"However satisfactory these evidences of success may be to us they do not by any means exhaust our other reasons for confidence. Along with the progress of our arms there should be observed the progress of the Russian armies, which has been becoming more noticeable since the 3d of November. At the doors of Cracow and of Kalisz our allies are now making their weight felt in the scale of opposing forces.

"It is in this field that we should draw our conclusions, for here it is that one may perceive in the full light of day the failure of the German plan. This plan, the project of von der Goltz, of Bernhardi, and Falkenhayn, was, as often has been recalled, to crush France in three weeks and then to turn to Russia.

"Today the fourth month of the war is drawing to its close, and still France has not been crushed. On the contrary France, counting from Sept. 5, has enjoyed nothing but success and this in spite of the arraying in opposition to her of a mass of soldiers who in the aggregate represent more than fifty army corps. These fifty army corps (we say it again and again for it is the truth and in this truth is found our honor,) are still all confronting us.

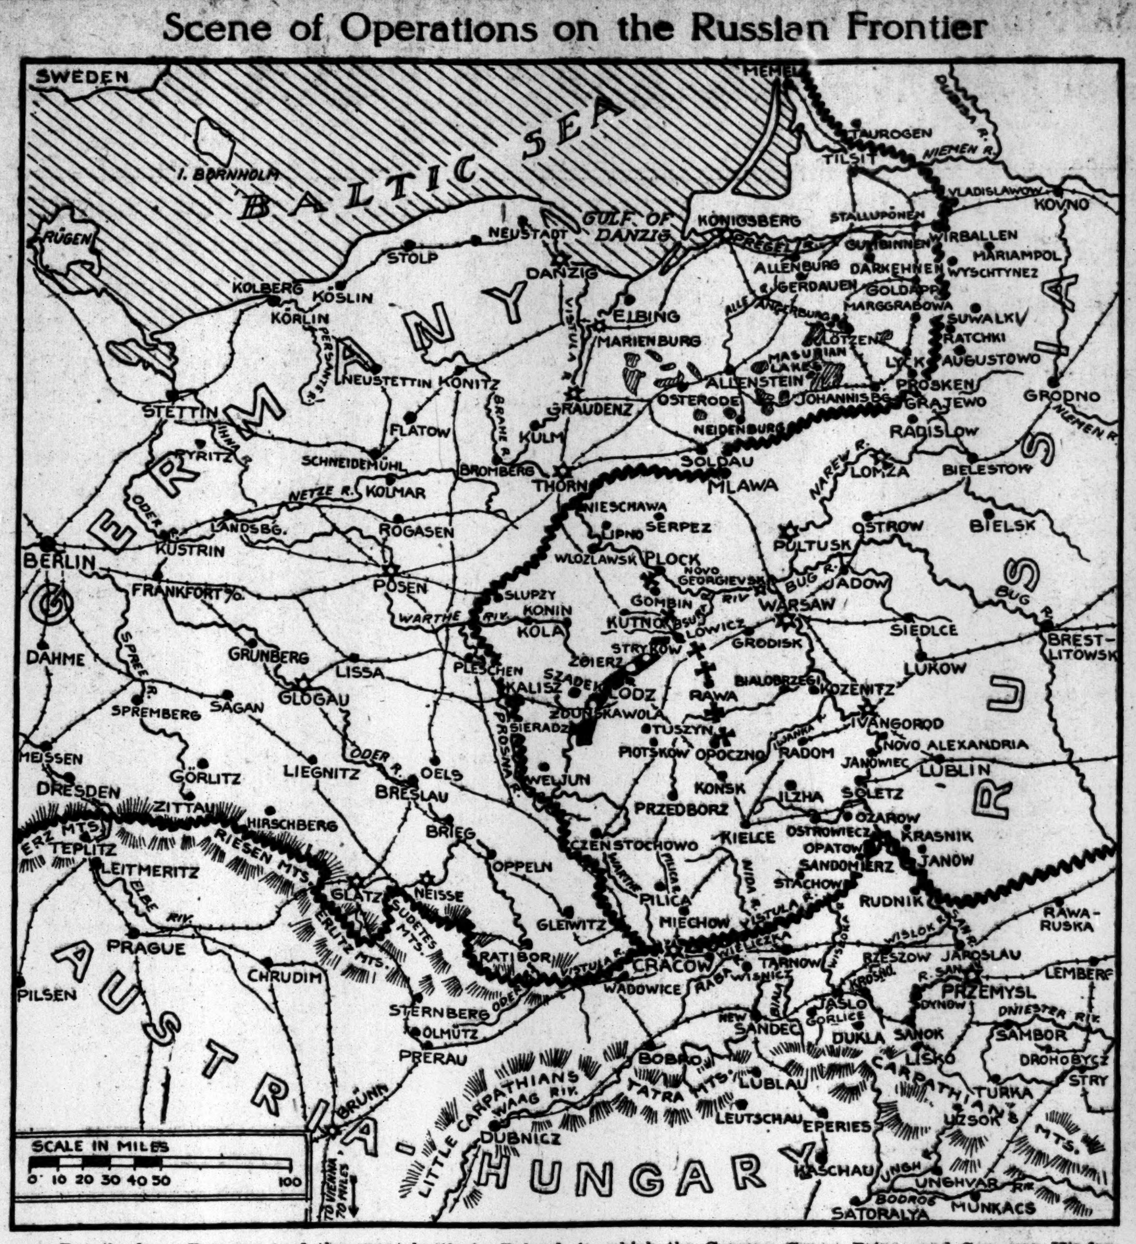
"We repeat and we desire to emphasize that since Sept. 6 the formidable masses of troops, who have assailed us, have not been able, no matter how courageous their attacks, to make us give way any place on the line. On the contrary, at a number of points the enemy has been driven back before the strength of our advance."

Scene of Operations on the Russian Frontier



Details from Petrograd of the great battle in Poland, in which the German Crown Prince and Gen. von Hindenburg, with half a million men, tried to smash their way to Warsaw and by a decisive victory compel the independent Russian armies operating successfully in East Prussia and in Galicia to fall back, show that the Russian forces that blocked them were massed on a line (indicated by crosses on the map) extending from Gombin southeasterly through Lowicz to Rawa, and on to Opoczno, where the left flank was protected by impracticable marshland extending to Konsk.

In the course of the fighting the Germans were driven back to a line (indicated by black squares on the map) stretching from Strykow, through Zgierz, Szadek, Zdunskawola to Sieradz. Latest official advices from Petrograd announce that the Germans are retreating from this line toward the frontier and their bases, which are the fortresses of Posen and Thorn.

BRITISH SHIPS SMASH GERMANS' BELGIAN BASE

Zeebrugge Set Afire and Sections of Six Submarines Reported Wrecked by Shells.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ON THE BELGIAN FRONTIER, Nov. 24, (Dispatch to The London Daily Express.)—The value of Zeebrugge as a German naval base against England has been destroyed by the fleet of the Allies.

The warships again bombarded that portion of the coast all yesterday afternoon, wrecking a number of buildings used for the enemy's stores, setting ablaze large quantities of petrol and other inflammable materials, and thoroughly clearing the coast of Germans between Nieuport and the Dutch frontier, except some artillerymen, who were left to work a few big guns three miles from the sea.

This concentrated attack by powerful warships, which stood well outside the enemy's mine field around the Zeebrugge Breakwater, caused surprise and consternation, and resulted in a hurried movement toward Bruges of all the sailors, marines, and naval staff and civilian workmen from Hamburg and Kiel, who had been employed along the maritime canal for the last fortnight.

There was a scene of wild confusion at the Zeebrugge railway terminal, where endeavors were being made to load trains with supplies for removal to Bruges. Lyddite shells fell among the harbor buildings, and apparently a large quantity of stores was abandoned, for some shells tore up the railway line.

A number of trawlers used by the Germans for mine laying were assembled behind the mile-and-a-half-long breakwater. They were believed to contain mines, ready for use. Several unusually heavy explosions, following the dropping of the Allies' shells around the harbor, are believed to have been caused by the blowing up of these vessels.

A massive crane in the inner basin, which had been a great help to the enemy, was reduced to scrap iron.

Reports Submarines Wrecked.

LONDON, Wednesday, Nov. 25, 3:35 A. M.—"Germany's scheme to establish a naval base at Zeebrugge has been thwarted by British warships," says The Daily Mail's Rotterdam correspondent.

"Zeebrugge is burning, the Solvay works near the Bruges Ship Canal are a heap of ruins, and the sections of six submarine boats, which had been brought there, are reduced to twisted iron. A large quantity of stores also was destroyed.

"The bombardment lasted from 2 o'clock until 5 o'clock Monday afternoon. The coast guard building and the public schools were destroyed. The military trains at the Solvay works were blown to fragments and a large crane, which was being used for putting the submarines together, simply disappeared.

"In desperation the Germans tried to remove their stores, including the apparatus for making hydrogen for the Zeppelins, to Bruges, but found a section of the railway had been blown up.

"For several weeks the enemy had been collecting stores at Zeebrugge and fortifying it in the hope of making it a strong naval base."

A dispatch from Amsterdam quotes a message received by the newspaper Tijt from its Sluis correspondent. It says:

"Yesterday after British aviators had reconnoitred cleverly hidden German gun positions along the coast a combined attack was undertaken by the Allies' infantry against the German trenches. The attackers were aided by a bombardment from the Anglo-French squadron, consisting of three small cruisers, and numerous torpedo boats and torpedo boat destroyers, which came close to the coast. The Germans replied with a heavy artillery fire.

"During the afternoon a second squadron appeared between Ostend and Weenduyn, but neither here nor at Nieuport was there any success for either one side or the other.

"Near Westende two German batteries were silenced, but the British and French squadron was forced to retreat, owing to the good marksmanship of the German artillery, which damaged one of the destroyers.

"The second squadron then steamed to Zeebrugge, probably with the intention of destroying German submarine boats. Before sunset the electric works were fiercely burning, and also the Palace Hotel and other buildings. The church steeple at Heyst was damaged, and it is reported that the sluices at Zeebrugge were destroyed.

"The German firing suddenly stopped and the German submarines left the port. After manoeuvring, the British fleet disappeared in the fog. Part of Zeebrugge was burning, and the people had fled in all directions."

Official Report of Bombardment.

LONDON, Wednesday, Nov. 25.—The Admiralty announces that all points of military significance in Zeebrugge were subjected yesterday to a severe bombardment by two British battleships. The German opposition was feeble. The extent of the damage done is unknown. The British ships returned in safety.

BERLIN, Nov. 24, (by wireless to London.)—An official communication given out by the German Headquarters Staff says:

British warships again appeared off the Belgian coast yesterday and bombarded Lombaertzyde and Zeebrugge. Our troops suffered but slight damage from this bombardment, but a number of Belgian villagers were killed and injured. Otherwise no actual changes have occurred in the west.

Paris Tells of Argonne Fighting.

PARIS, Nov. 24, 10:14 P. M.—This official bulletin was issued tonight:

Today has been relatively quiet.

There has been intermittent cannonading on the front and a few attacks in the Argonne, which have all been repulsed.

The afternoon bulletin said:

Speaking generally, it may be said that the situation, during the day of Nov. 23, has shown no important changes.

Along the greater part of the front the enemy manifested his activity particularly by an intermittent cannonade which was, however, less spirited than on the preceding day. Nevertheless there were here and there some infantry attacks, all of which were repulsed. As we have come to expect, these attacks were particularly violent in the Argonne, where we gained some territory, and in the region of Four de Paris.

There is nothing to report between the Argonne and the Vosges, and, furthermore, a very heavy fog has interfered with operations.

GEN. STENGER REPORTED DEAD

French War Office Once Said He Issued "No-Quarter" Order.

BORDEAUX, Nov. 24, (via Paris.)—The death of Gen. Stenger, who commanded the Fifty-eighth German Infantry Brigade, was reported here today.

Gen. Stenger figured in the war news in September, when the French War Office stated that he had issued an order that no prisoners should be taken; that all who fell into the hands of his men, including the wounded, should be shot. The Germans repudiated this report.

France May Prolong Moratorium.

PARIS, Nov. 24.—A dispatch to the Journal Des Debats from Bordeaux says that the French Government before the end of the month will probably prolong the moratorium for another period.

BURROW AND SLAY IN FACE-TO-FACE WAR

BATTERIES ROAR BEHIND

Shifts of the Battle Front Shown by Shell Wreckage and Abandoned Defenses.

PARIS, Nov. 24.—The General in command of the troops along the battle line between the Oise and the Somme assigned a staff officer, says a dispatch to the Havas Agency, to show sixteen French newspaper men something of the military operations there.

"When we approached the firing zone," says the dispatch, "we descended into the main trench, with which is connected a system of cuts. The trench is six feet wide and three and one-half to four feet deep. We followed it as it wound up a slope for a distance of two and a half miles, while the noise of the musketry came nearer and nearer.

"We were exchanging our new and thrilling impressions when our guide told us that we must be silent.

"'The enemy can hear us,' he said.

"We had arrived on the first firing line. We were immediately made aware of this fact by what we smelled and heard at the same time. The crashing voice of the three-inch guns, which we had left behind as we advanced, was now almost obliterated by the nearer and quicker staccato reports of the machine guns and the Mausers.

"At a distance of 100 yards was a gray winding ridge of earth, the advance line of the enemy's trenches. Here, face to face and within range of each other's forces, men were shooting each other down point blank, while from every ridge and every mound, covered with four inches of snow, unseen batteries completed the turmoil of war.

"Here and there a head rises cautiously above a white-crested trench. There are six quick shots, and then the head disappears, as if swallowed by a sea of snow. This is all the spectators see of the hundreds of thousands of men in the burrows, who are ready to issue forth at the slightest alarm.

"The vast chambers, roofed over with the branches of trees and with stout wooden pillars in front supporting sacks of earth, protect the men inside alike from shells and the tempests. These are underground forts for modern warfare, with sanitary ditches, kitchens for the mess, and bunks for the riflemen awaiting their turn on the firing line.

"In front rises an ancient windmill, neutralized without the form of an armistice, whence provisions are brought to the trenches of both the combatants. Further on the trenches are so near each other that the Germans and French exchange newspapers.

"Complicated barbed wire fences protect the trenches here from surprise. At a converging point on one spot stands a building at the walls of which the enemies arrived at the same time and a German rifleman, breaking a hole through a wall, thrust a bayonet under the nose of a French sentinel.

"This is the spot where the situation was critical for the French ten days ago and where a Brigadier General in a brilliant action saved the day and gained the stripes of a General, commanding an army.

"To the right and to the left black clouds from bursting German shells are interspersed by chimney stacks from which the smoke of industry curls up as in days of peace. Further down the line appear the crumbling ruins of Arras, where the war has been more pitiless and where no industry remains standing.

"At nightfall the humble village of Quesnoy, with its ruins standing out like phantoms, marks the scene of a formidable clash, which will make the place historic. The town is now nothing but a heap of stones and smoking ruins, in the midst of which are seen the narrow trenches from which the Germans resisted the onslaught and which now contains the heroic dead. Twenty batteries played upon these trenches, while fifteen battalions in echelon charged with bayonet to a mighty chorus of 'Vive La France.'

"A formidable fusillade and machine gun fire stopped the onrush, but half the ground had been gained. The next day the batteries reopened and the infantry line charged again, this time carrying the trenches and chasing the Germans from the position. Quesnoy had cost the French 2,000 men to take it and the Germans lost 6,000 men.

"From Arras where the German shells still rage, though little remains to be destroyed, to La Bassée canal, a tug of war continues across the same dead line as during the last three months. Over this line bullets whistle and shells screech unceasingly and dark clouds that mark the targets of the German heavy artillery stand out in gruesome relief against a background of snow. Here it becomes apparent that though the trenches are close, the real zone of battle action has a width of four to eight miles, which can be easily followed by the scars left everywhere by the great storm of shot and shell.

"Abandoned trenches show the earlier fluctuations in the line, while recent changes are traced in the white blanket of snow and by the deep excavations made by the larger calibre shells."

SCRAP LOCOMOTIVES TO GET WAR COPPER

German Metal Famine So Acute, Says English Report, that Railways Will Suffer.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 24, (Dispatch to The London Daily Standard.)—The scarcity of copper is such throughout Germany that orders have been given to dismantle as many locomotives on the State railways as possible, in order to use the copper and brass for making ammunition.

istry for the vessel, and several puzzling incidents arose in the course of the investigations. So suspicious were the Government officials at San Francisco, that it was fully a month after the beginning of the negotiations before American registry was granted.

In order to effect the change of registry a new American company, known as the Northern and Southern Steamship Company, was organized to buy the vessel. The ship was then loaded with 6,000 tons of coal at San Francsico. One interesting feature of the case which was not developed until after the Sacramento had sailed for Valparaiso, was that between $7 and $8 a ton was paid for the 6,000 tons of coal. This was exactly the price at which coal in considerable quantities could be bought at Valparaiso, and the coal on the Sacramento ostensibly was being taken to the Chilean port to be sold in competition with Valparaiso coal. It was also learned after the vessel left San Francisco that the owners of the ship were to receive about $8 a ton for transporting the coal to Valparaiso, so that by the time the coal arrived there it would cost approximately $13 a ton, and was to be sold in competition with coal that could be bought in the Valparaiso market for half that price.

It was on Nov. 21 that word was sent from Chile that the Sacramento had arrived without her cargo. Capt. Jacobson explained that his ship was seized on the high seas by a German warship. There is a suspicion here that the coal originally may have been intended for the Germans, but Washington is withholding judgment until the American Consul at Valparaiso makes his report.

The British and French Governments have protested strongly against the alleged use of Chilean and Ecuadorean ports as well as islands off their coasts as German bases. The British Government is concerned and chagrined over these allegations because it was off the Chilean coast that the German warships in the Pacific made a rendezvous with the Scharnhorst and the Gneisenau and won the notable naval battle over Admiral Cradock, sending to the bottom the Good Hope and the Monmouth, one of these being Admiral Cradock's flagship, in which he lost his life, together with the entire crew.

They know where they stand

Take the case of a New England manufacturing concern whose sales run into millions of dollars a year and whose activities bring it in touch with Uncle Sam, on the one hand, and fair-sized general stores in small cities, on the other.

They do business on the basis of their ability to make prompt delivery, and they pay a pretty stiff penalty if they are late.

They have a stock record that prevents them from being caught "out of stock." It enables them to take advantage of favorable market conditions. Library Bureau furnished it. They use three different cards—one for raw materials, one for the finished product, one for the assembled product.

There is not another business in the country whose problems are quite like those of this particular manufactory.

But there are a thousand other businesses whose problems are as difficult.

BELGIAN APPEALS TO GERMANS VAIN

American Relief Agents Deny That Any Willingness Was Shown to Feed the People.

EVEN SALT WAS REFUSED

Report That No One Is Starving "Cruelly False," They Say—1,500,000 Wholly Dependent.

GERMAN POSITION STATED

Frederick Palmer Says They Need Every Bit of Food for Their Soldiers.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The American Commission for Relief in Belgium today issued the following statement:

"With regard to a statement published in America, and credited to Gen. von Frankenberg, Governor of Antwerp, to the effect that if America had not been so kindhearted as to send foodstuffs to Belgium the Germans themselves would have considered it their duty to bring food from Germany, we cannot conceive that the German Governor of Antwerp ever authorized such a statement, and are inclined to believe that the report is unfounded.

"The following cities, through their representatives, have made repeated appeals to the German representatives in Antwerp for food: Malines, Lierre, Willbroeck, Boom, Duffel, Torhagen, St. Nicolas, Contich, and Waehlem. They were refused.

"Last Friday two town Councilors of Antwerp came to our headquarters in Rotterdam and stated that they had been released by the German authorities under bond of 5,000,000 francs ($1,000,000) to obtain help for the destitute of Antwerp, and upon their urgent representation we sent 540 tons of supplies to Antwerp.

"The Provinces of Limbourg and Luxembourg, adjoining the German frontier, have made repeated appeals to the Germans for the right to buy food in Germany and import it into Belgium and have been consistently refused. On the minor question of salt alone, of which there is an abundant supply in Germany, the privilege of importation was refused, and we have had to send salt from the British Isles.

"These are only a few of the instances which make it impossible for us to believe that any such statement as the one referred to was authorized by a responsible German official. The first and most natural inquiry we made when we were asked to undertake the work of relief was 'Why do the Germans not supply the civil population with food?' and it was not until we were absolutely satisfied through American Minister Whitlock and by such corroborative evidence as to the Germans refusal of, or inability to, supply specific requests for foods that we undertook the responsibility of advising the American people that the feeding of the Belgians was up to them.

"If the Germans are prepared to feed the Belgians an early announcement to that effect and an organization for that purpose will be immediately required to save the lives of millions of people. As regards the report that no one is starving in Belgium, the official statements of the Spanish and American Ministers in Brussels, the appeal of Cardinal Mercier, and the daily detailed accounts from every source of widespread suffering prove that such a report is cruelly false, and that there are considerably more than 1,500,000 people dependent on the soup kitchens at the present moment is in itself sufficient evidence."

STATES GERMANY'S POSITION.

Frederick Palmer Says She Must Save All Food for Army.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—Frederick Palmer, the American war correspondent, who has just returned from Germany, today made the following statement with regard to the position of Germany in the feeding of the people of Belgium:

"The food required to keep the Belgians from starving this Winter would feed five army corps for a year. Any German Governor who diverts that amount from Germany's supplies will have to reckon with German public opinion.

"Germany is not in want of food at present. If the crops are good next year she will have enough, economically managed, to last for two years, but she has garnered every grain of wheat, planted big acreages, and is husbanding food stores. In case the war lasts a year her people look forward to short rations. The one valuable life, the one person to be fed, is the fighting soldier or one who may recover to fight again. If she gives her military prisoners only enough for bare existence, she will not spare any gratuities to Belgium, no matter how many Governors say so.

"Germans can think of Belgium only with angry bitterness. Not humanity, but do-or-die patriotism governs their emotions. They blame the Belgians for spoiling their plan of campaign. Nothing is too bad for the Belgians. Let the Belgians take care of themselves represents the German public feeling. This is without saying the Germans are naturally inhumane. They are at war; their ports are closed; they are desperate in the determination not to be starved out.

"Food is plentiful in Antwerp or Brussels restaurants frequented by German officers. This does not mean plenty for poor people. Only neutrals like Americans, who investigate, can know the truth of the Belgians' needs.

"Germany will and must think only of her soldiers. Her military commanders cannot help neglecting the people who have ruined her offensive campaign. Belgium needs food; it can only come from outsiders. Belgians are sure of getting it only under outside direction. Let Berlin appropriate food and German troops at the front will get it. That is the bounden result of military necessity. Commanders of other countries than Germany would do the same. It is a condition of freezing, helpless women and children that appeals. If America feeds them, we know they will be fed."

GIVES ROCKEFELLER PLANS.

Dr. Rose and Others of Commission Leaving for the Continent.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The War Relief Commission of the Rockefeller Foundation has completed its preliminary investigation here, and will depart for Holland tomorrow night. Dr. Wickliffe Rose, head of the commission, outlined his plans today.

"We expect to spend two days," he said, "in investigating conditions among Belgian refugees in Holland. Then we shall depart for Belgium with H. C. Hoover and Millard K. Shaler, members of the American Relief Commission.

"We shall spend as much time as possible in touring Belgium, in the hope of gaining a comprehensive idea of the needs of that country. In the meantime, Henry James, Jr., leaves for Paris to consult with Myron T. Herrick, the retiring American Ambassador, concerning the needs in France. He will rejoin the commission later in Belgium.

"After its tour of Belgium the commission will go to Havre to consult with the Belgian Government, and thence to Bordeaux to get in touch with the French Government. Our next stop will be Paris, where we will visit the local relief agencies. Then we go to Switzerland, and later, perhaps, to Austria and Servia.

"An agreement has been reached whereby the distribution of food to the Belgians will be left in the hands of the American Relief Commission, while the Rockefeller Foundation continues the work of gathering supplies in the United States. Such supplies should be shipped in care of the American Commission in London. After the cargoes already under way have been handled the actual shipments of supplies from America also will be in the hands of the American Commission.

"In countries other than Belgium the Rockefeller Commission will get in touch with the existing relief agencies.

"The utmost harmony exists between the two commissions, which will co-operate with each other in efforts to provide speedy relief in Belgium, especially in the remote sections, where suffering from cold and hunger already is intense.

"The time of our visit to Germany has not yet been set. While we are in Holland we shall communicate with German authorities in regard to a plan for making an investigation of conditions in Germany."

STARVING BELGIANS RESORT TO PLUNDER

BRUGES, Nov. 24, (via The Hague and London.)—In some of its aspects civilization has been set back several centuries by the war in parts of Belgium. Conditions in Bruges and the surrounding region are so unsatisfactory that the entire countryside seems likely to return to a state resembling the period of the religious wars in the sixteenth century, when the famished population resorted to stealing, plundering, and smuggling.

Such occurrences are being reported now along the Dutch frontier. They have led to sanguinary fights between Belgian smugglers and German soldiers and Dutch frontier guards. Lawless elements of the population are raiding farms, killing or wounding the occupants, and stealing their possessions.

The Germans are doing whatever they can to preserve order. Marauders are pursued relentlessly.

In cities like Antwerp prices of the necessaries of life have risen greatly. The German authorities, while refraining from the imposition of direct taxes, demand large sums from the people through a complicated system of stamp taxes. These taxes are imposed for infraction of any one of the many petty rules which have been made.

All of the Austrian troops which were engaged so actively in the operations at Antwerp have disappeared.

Prices of essential commodities have risen at Antwerp since the beginning of the war as follows: Salt, from 3 centimes three-fifths of a cent) a kilogram (2.20 pounds) to 17 centimes; sugar, from 36 to 60 centimes a kilogram; oil, from 8 to 35 sous (35 cents) a litre, (nine-tenths of a quart;) coal, from 32 to 45 francs ($9) a thousand kilograms.

BRITISH LOAN BIG SUCCESS.

Applications So Numerous That Allotment Will Take Some Days.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—Lists of subscriptions to the greatest war loan in history, amounting to £350,000,000 sterling, $1,750,000,000,) or rather more than half the total of the British national debt, were closed this afternoon, and the loan, it is freely stated in the City, will be a great success, although no official figures are as yet available.

Coming at a time when the London Stock Exchange is closed and immediately after $300,000,000 of fresh taxation had been imposed, the result is considered remarkably indicative of the determination of the country to enable the Government to prosecute the war to a successful end.

The subscriptions poured in from the provinces and from insurances houses and banks, Colonial as well as in the United Kingdom. The offerings ranged from a modest $475 to the biggest insurance company's subscription of $5,000,000.

The enormous number of applications created considerable pressure at the Bank of England, and some days must elapse before it is possible to announce the allotments. The cash payment of £2, ($10,) per $500 required with the applications will temporarily take off the market some millions of pounds sterling.

HARVARD MAN IS KILLED.

Lieut. Williamson First American Graduate to Die in the War.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The first graduate of an American college to be a victim of the war is Lieut. George Williamson, who belonged to the West Riding (Duke of Wellington's) Regiment.

Lieut. Williamson's name appears in today's casualty list as among those who have died as a result of wounds. He was graduated from Harvard in the class of 1905.

According to an obituary notice received by THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday, Lieut. Williamson was wounded in battle in Belgium on Nov. 8. He was removed to the Fourth Clearing Hospital and died on Nov. 12.

Lieut. Williamson was the only son of Lady Skinner and lived at 2 Summerhill Avenue, Montreal. He was 31 years old. While at Harvard he was a member of the Hasty Pudding and Dickey Clubs and of the Institute of 1770. New York State Senator-elect Ogden L. Mills was a classmate and an intimate friend of Lieut. Williamson.

SAYS INDIA'S ARMY CAN EQUAL RUSSIA'S

Maharaja of Idar Interviewed at Cairo on His Way to Join Allies at Front.

FIVE PRINCES NOW SERVING

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CAIRO, Monday, Nov. 23, (Dispatch to The London Daily Chronicle.)—I have just obtained an interview with his Highness the Maharaja of Idar, Dhiraj Shri Dolat Singhji, who is passing through Egypt on his way to join the General Staff at the front. He is the fifth of the Indian Princes to leave India on active service.

The Maharaja is the adopted son of the renowned Sir Pertab Singh. He was able to give an excellent idea of the great wave of imperial enthusiasm, loyalty, and devotion which, aroused by the war, has swept over the peoples of all races and creeds throughout the length and breadth of the Indian Empire.

"The size of the Indian army which will take part in the great war," he told me, "depends, of course, on the wishes of the King-Emperor, but I may say that every Indian, old and young, would most gladly and enthusiastically respond to the King-Emperor's call.

"Our one difficulty is that only a comparatively small number of men may go to the battlefield at present. As it is, many officers and Indians of high birth are going in the ranks. My two saices, or grooms, are Captains; my personal servant is very well-to-do, and they came with me because it was impossible for them to go in any other capacity. Even the grooms who came to Bombay with our horses and then had to return home went away dejectedly and in tears. It was with great difficulty that they were persuaded to return."

The Maharaja told me a pathetic story of his own military secretary. After bidding farewell to the Mahajara the secretary called together his family and friends, said good-by to them, and shot himself, overcome with grief that he could not proceed to the front with his master.

The Maharaja of Jodpur, who is only 17 years of age, was at first thought to be too young to serve with the army in the field. The young ruler's mother, however, supported him in his desire to fight for the King-Emperor, and at last he wrote to the Viceroy. "Why, he asked, am I not allowed to go? I have three brothers, so if I am killed in battle it does not matter." Permission was no longer withheld.

"You know," added the Maharaja, "we Indians believe that those who die in battle go straight to Paradise. To die in battle is not to die. Our names live, and we are proud. Now is a very good time to die."

Asked whether, now that Turkey had entered the great world war, there was any feeling on the part of Mohammedans on the side of Turkey, the Maharaja replied:

"Emphatically, no. What is Turkey now? She is only a football, driven on and coerced by the Germans. She has no claim to represent Mohammedanism. No, indeed! We are all, without exception, on the side of the empire to which we are so proud to belong.

"Take the case of Rajputana. That State has an army of 30,000 men, but no fewer than between 500,000 and 600,000 men have offered themselves and are willing and eager to serve. Nepal's army consists of 80,000 men. They are all at the Emperor's disposal.

"If, indeed, the Emperor requires an army as large as that of Russia, India is able to supply it, and will be proud to do so.

"So determined are the tremendous numbers of the people of India to fight for the King-Emperor that, if only the battlefield were nearer and not separated by seas from India, they would go even without orders to fight."

SALAAMS OF INDIAN STAY GERMANS' FIRE

Quick-witted Trooper Spends the Night Among Kaiser's Troops and Gets Back Safely.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The life of the Indian troops in the trenches is described in a bulletin from the front which was issued by the Official Press Bureau tonight.

"There have been trenching, counter-trenching, and a good deal of hand-to-hand fighting," says the report, in denying any sensational occurrence, "but no Gurkha regiment has penetrated behind the German lines and blown up a powder magazine."

An incident of the quick-wittedness of the Indians is related. Two of them were creeping toward a German trench on a scouting expedition one night, when a searchlight was thrown upon one of them.

"He was quick-witted enough to realize that no ordinary resource would save his life," says the report. "He immediately rose to his feet and advanced, salaaming, to the German trench. Its occupants ceased to fire, disconcerted."

The Indian indicated by signs that he wanted to kill the British, and as a result spent a luxurious night in the German lines. In the morning, on making signs that he could bring other Indians, he was allowed to return to his own side. He was promoted for this exploit.

The report says that the Germans have not attacked the Indian trenches as desperately as they have the other parts of the line, and have been repelled without difficulty. When the Germans have captured an Indian trench, it has invariably been recaptured, usually at night with the bayonet.

Despite the cold weather, the health of the Indians is better than that of the white soldiers who accompanied them from India. While feeling the hardships of the trenches acutely, they have not complained.

In describing German attempts to seduce the Indians, the report says that the operator of a Taube aeroplane threw down over the trenches many leaflets, bearing the announcement by a German professor that Sheik-ul-Islam had proclaimed a holy war. All the leaflets fell into the hands of white soldiers, who were puzzled by them.

THE WAR SITUATION.

(An Associate Editor of The Army and Navy Journal.)

The official bulletins from France report an almost complete cessation of active operations. All along the line of battle both sides maintain an intermittent bombardment and show themselves ready to give a warm reception to attacking bodies.

The only fighting officially reported from France is at Four de Paris, six miles southwest of Varennes. The French captured this point from the Germans about Nov. 1 and the latter have been trying to recapture it for a week. This village lies at a cross-roads on an important route through the Argonne forest, making its possession necessary for an advance in this region.

For nearly a week now the opposing armies in the western theatre of operations have been gathering strength. If the Allies continue to act on the defensive they are in a way playing into the hands of the Germans. As soon as the latter have prosecuted the present campaign in Poland to success or to failure they will probably turn to make their next important move in the west. By attacking now the Allies gain the advantage of making progress while the German line is temporarily weakened.

Dispatches from Berlin and Petrograd confirm the early reports of a check administered by the Russians to the German invasion of Poland. It comes out that the Germans advanced well beyond Lowicz and Lodz and turned south against the flank of the main Russian Army in Southwest Poland. The latter force evidently abandoned its position along the Warthe and fell back rapidly to the line through Piotrkow and Skierniewice. Here the Russians succeeded in massing such in strength that they have beaten back the German advance guard at Brzeziny and Tuszyn, east and south of Lodz.

Petrograd asserts that the Germans were driven out of Styrkow and Zgierz, north of Lodz, and from Szadek, twenty-five miles west of Lodz.

Apparently the Russian strength surprised the advanced forces at the head of the German columns and drove them back twelve to fifteen miles. This is the natural distance between the reconnoitring forces in front and the main body of the army. It seems likely that the German advance guard has fallen back to gain the support of the main body. The final outcome has not yet been decided, and will depend upon the fighting that must now be taking place between the main forces of the two armies.

The battle has passed through the first stage in which the large reconnoitring bodies come in contact. The next step is the continued advance of the more aggressive side, working its way up to close contact with the enemy's main body. When these forces come together the fighting develops more slowly. The outcome must be determined by assaults on intrenchments or a strategic move against the flanks.

In this case the German right flank is protected by its junction with the German armies to the south. Only on their northern flank are the Germans exposed to a turning movement. It seems probable, then, that the Russian campaign will consist of holding the German front between Sieradse and Lowicz while they push forward an army of cavalry and artillery into the gap between Lowicz and the Vistula River. Important fighting may be expected in this district before the great battle is decided.

The principal advantages that the Germans possessed in this invasion were its suddenness and the unexpectedly large force that they concentrated for their advance. Their campaign was in the nature of a raid, in which the chances of success were increased by surprise. The check which the Russians have administered is, then, a disadvantage for the Germans, because the Czar's commanders gain time for a concentration of still greater strength in defense of their right flank.

The German position will be a serious one if they are unable to overcome the Russian opposition. They cannot afford merely to hold what they have gained. This would let the Russians make use of their immense reserves of troops and send forward a new army north of the Vistula to turn the German flanks. Such a policy in the east would also prevent the strengthening of the German lines in France. In both fields the numerical superiority of the Allies would soon give them the advantage over the Germans, and the latter in trying to hold both fronts might be unable to hold either.

For these reasons the Germans will seek an early decision of the battle at Lodz. If defeated, they will have to save their forces by a rapid retreat to the German border. There the service of their railroads would then nearly double the power of their troops so that they could better hold a defensive line with reduced numbers.

The Austrian advance in the district north of Cracow has pushed the Russians back five miles to Pilica. This Russian retirement extended along about twenty miles of their front, but was soon stopped. Along the new line they have checked the Austrian advance. The Russians seem to have followed in this field the same policy of drawing in their forces that won success in the battle of the Vistula.

TO UPHOLD THE PAROLE.

German Officers Who Fled from Holland to be Punished.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 24, (via London.)—The Berlin correspondent of the Telegraaf states that the two German officers who broke their parole and escaped from Holland, have arrived at Osnabrück, Hanover.

They will be summoned before a court of honor, the correspondent says, and must leave the army.

British Arrested in Brussels.

LONDON, Wednesday, Nov. 25.—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Amsterdam says the Germans have arrested 300 British subjects who still remained in Brussels.

PORT OF LONDON VERY BUSY

Stock of Foodstuffs Five Times What It Was a Year Ago.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—J. G. Broodbank, a member of the London Port Board, states in an interview that the port has never been busier in its history than at present.

Timber and sugar are pouring in. The stock of foodstuffs is five times larger than at the same time last year. Meat supplies have been well kept up. Twenty per cent. more dock laborers are being employed than is usual at this time of the year.

Mr. Broodbank particularly remarks the tremendous trade between London and Archangel, Russia.

PAY BRITISH OFFICERS MORE.

Captain's Daily Wages Are Raised from $3 to $3.50.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—New rates of pay for army officers, showing increases of 10 to 25 per cent., are announced in an army order.

The new daily rate for a Captain is raised from $3 to $3.50, and for a Lieutenant from $2 to $2.50. These increases are augmented by various special allowances.

INSURE AGAINST SEIZURES.

Dutch Bankers Form Company to Protect Shipping Houses.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—Leading banks and shipping companies, according to Reuter's Amsterdam correspondent, have formed a Dutch oversea trust company, which will insure Dutch exporting and importing houses against loss on goods which may be or already have been declared absolute or conditional contraband by the belligerents. The correspondent adds that the company is a national institution and that its profits will be given to the Dutch Relief Committee.

AMERICAN SUFFERS UNDER SPY CHARGE

Held Nine Days in Brussels in a Room with Nine Other Prisoners.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, Nov. 25.—After nine days under arrest by Germans at Brussels on suspicion of being an English spy, Philip Dollow, an American photographer, reached London yesterday.

"All went well until I got to Brussels," he said.

"I reached Brussels on Nov. 11, and the next morning obtained from the American Consul an introduction to the German military authorities with a view to getting a permit for taking photographs. Armed with this I went to German headquarters, was sent to another building, then to another until at the end of a day and half I reached a certain Lieut. Kampf, and after all my trouble he told me the permit I wanted was only issued at the office of the General Staff.

"I decided to return to Antwerp and Holland, and went to the office to get a pass. Then my trouble began. I handed over my passport on demand, and to my surprise was presently confronted with one of the German secret police, who marched me into another room between two soldiers with fixed bayonets and took down my statement through an interpreter. I said I was an American photographer, taking photographs for American papers, and as the necessary permit had been refused I wanted to return to Holland.

"While I was being questioned other men entered the room, and not knowing I understood German, one of them said: 'We know these Americans. The American Embassies all over Europe are issuing passports to Englishmen to act as spies.'

"Then I was taken to another room, stripped, and searched. In one of my pockets they found a card bearing the name of an English newspaper given to me by an acquaintance on the Flushing boat. At once they said, 'Ah! here is an English journalist to whom you send information,' and when they found an English sovereign in another pocket they were convinced. 'You are English, because you have English gold in your pocket,' they said, ignoring the fact I also had Belgian and Dutch money.

"At 6 o'clock that night, after a day with nothing to eat, I was taken to 6 Rue de la Loi and put into a room with nine other prisoners there. I asked the sentry to get me something to eat. As soon as he heard me speak English he crossed the room and shook someone who was sleeping on the floor and said, 'Wake up, Englander, here's another Englander.'

"I found him to be a man named Dunstan Hall, who had been arrested by a German picket while he was driving a motor car near Ghent. He claimed to be an American, but had no passport, only an English motor driver's license.

"At 4 o'clock on the morning after his arrest he was awakened and told he was to be shot at once. He went out in his shirt and trousers, saying he didn't want a coat to be shot in. However, when they got to the firing party he still insisted he was an American, born in the United States, and said he was spared and brought to Brussels. There he was tried four times on a charge of being an English spy, and finally it was decided to send him to Germany until the end of the war.

"We were all in one big room with straw mattresses. Coffee and bread were brought to us in the morning, but the chief meal of the day was one big basin of soup for ten of us, with no spoons or plates. Finally I got a special permit to have meals sent in from the Casino, and it cost me 2s. 6d. for each meal of scraps that had been left by the officers.

"Most of the prisoners had been arrested on false charges or no charges at all, and were released as soon as they paid a big fine.

"From the window of our room I could see two Zeppelins being fitted together, and the soldiers told us eight more were to come from Germany.

"One day I was taken to St. Gilles Prison to be photographed and measured and to have my finger prints taken. On the way back to my room in the Rue dela Loi I saw thirty-six of the new German 38-centimeter guns, and was told they were to be used at Calais to fire on Dover.

"Last Thursday evening I was called down stairs, and there found the American Consul. He told me he had called every day to demand my release, and finally had refused to leave the building unless I accompanied him. Finally, after two days, I got my passports and cameras back and made my way to Antwerp and thence to Flushing for England.

"From all I heard the Germans do not propose to hold Brussels in case of a retreat, but intend to hold on in Antwerp to the last man."

ZANGWILL LAUDS SCHIFF.

Says He Speaks as a Patriotic American, Not for Germany.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, Nov. 25.—The Times publishes the following letter from Israel Zangwill:

"The interview with Jacob Schiff, reported by your Washington correspondent, on the proposal for permanent peace that shall end not only this war, but all war, comes as one gleam of light in the world's darkness.

"But why does he almost extinguish it under the head of 'German press campaign'?" And why does he speak of Schiff's 'brief for Germany'?

"As one associated for many years in philanthropic work with this noblest of millionaires, I should like to testify that despite his early associations with Germany he is one of the most patriotic Americans I have ever known.

"Descended from a long line of Jewish rabbis and scholars, (one of his ancestors was Chief Rabbi of the Great Synagogue of London in the eighteenth century,) Jacob Schiff himself might have sat to Lessing for a portrait of 'Nathan der Wise.'

"And in proposing a conference to end Prussian militarism (and every other) he speaks, not as the mouthpiece of Berlin but with the voice of Jerusalem."

BRITAIN WILL PROTECT JEWS.

His Excellency Sir Cecil Arthur Spring-Rice, Washington, D. C.:

The Day, National Jewish daily, published last week statement by German Ambassador to effect that Germany urged Turkey to protect Jews of every nationality Turkish Empire. Now that Jaffe (Jaffa) is reported in hands of England, beg to inquire whether England will give same protection to German and Galician Jewish residing in Turkey.

HERMAN BERNSTEIN.

Herman Bernstein, 444 Pearl Street, New York:

Jews of all nationalities who may come under British control can of course count on the same protection and liberal treatment which England has always extended to them. I have, however, no information that Jaffe is in hands of England.

OUR KRAGS NOT FOR SALE.

Government Won't Let Guns Go While War Lasts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—President Wilson will not permit any of the obsolete Krag-Jorgensen rifles to be sold by the United States Army while the war in Europe lasts. Secretary of War Garrison was approached a few days ago by agents; but before they had an opportunity to present their credentials he informed them that even if the "King of the Sandwich Islands" wanted the rifles they were not for sale.

About 40,000 of the Krag-Jorgensen rifles, now discarded, are stored in army arsenals. They were the standard rifle of the army at the time of the Spanish War. Some of those on hand have been in service, but many are brand new. They have been superseded in the equipment of United States troops by the new Army Springfield.

DEFEAT TURKS IN ARMENIA.

Russians Pursuing Them—Fighting in Persian Territory.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 24.—The following announcement from the General Staff of the Russian Army in the Caucasus was made public tonight:

"In the region of the Tchoruk River (Russian Armenia) the battle increased in intensity yesterday.

"In the direction of Erzerum we threw back the Turks on the whole of the front and forced them to retreat hurriedly. Our troops are still pushing them energetically.

"There is no change in the situation in the other regions."

An earlier communication, made public today, from the General Staff in the Caucasus, under date of Nov. 22, says:

"In the direction of Erzerum the advance guard of the Russian Army continued to drive back the enemy, after having thrown into disorder a Turkish column, caissons and an ammunition train being captured.

"From Kara-kilisse to the Alashkerd Valley some engagements took place, with results favorable to us.

"In the Persian Province of Azerbijan the Turks were defeated in the region of the Khanasur Pass, and also in the passes leading from Dilman in the direction of Katur. In these engagements the Russian troops captured some Turkish artillery."

The most accomplished examples of polite apparel that ever saw the light of day!

¶ In your day clothes you may introduce variety—you may wear a light suit or a dark suit and vary it with colorful shirts and new astonishments in neckwear.

¶ But evening clothes offer no room for such diversification — they are simple studies in black and white, and wholly dependent upon style for their claim to distinction.

And even as Style alone makes an evening garment, so a Saks evening garment stands alone for style.

GERMAN FIGHTER PRAISES ENGLISH FOE

SPORTSMAN'S SKILL SHOWN

Best Use Made of Cover and the Trenches Are Cleverly Constructed—Patrols Superior to Germans'.

BERLIN, Nov. 14, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—An earnest warning against underestimation of the British troops such as has been customary with a certain section of the German press is sent home by a well-known Berlin newspaperman who is serving as First Lieutenant with a regiment facing the British forces near Ypres.

His regiment, he writes, marched out with the idea that the British had legs only to run with, and that real fighting spirit or skill in arms was lacking in them. A few hours' contact with the British, however, showed that they were no easy enemy.

"The English infantry which opposed us there in the vicinity of Ypres must be characterized as troops of the first quality," he writes. "From the start it was noteworthy with what high energy the British troops defended their positions against our attacks. After being driven out they kept trying again and again, particularly by night attacks, to regain the lost ground. They were supported most effectively by their field artillery, which, like the French, is at least as good as ours. The British had also brought up heavy naval guns in the vicinity of Ypres, and the English shells and shrapnel caused us considerable loss.

"As the British commenced to feel more and more our enveloping movements they made desperate efforts to break through our lines, particularly in the neighborhood of Becelaere, but vainly. In one of these energetic attempts we captured about 500 English, including twenty officers.

"The chief strength of the English lies beyond doubt in the defense and in the proper use of cover. The natural hunting instincts of the sport-loving Briton come out more strongly in these specialties than is the case with our average infantryman. The minimum of hunting instincts that we of the present age inherit is brought to a higher degree of development in the Englishman by regular participation in sport than in men of other nations.

"The Englishman as a sportsman undoubtedly has quicker nervous reactions than the average German. It is unquestionably easier, therefore, to instruct the British recruit than the German in shooting, in the use of terrain and in patrol duty.

"The skill of the British soldier in utilizing every advantage of the country was very noticeable in the numerous engagements in the vicinity of Ypres. The British trenches were usually so skillfully constructed that they could not be made out with the naked eye. When we had stormed the first trenches we were astonished to find how well laid out they were, particularly in depth, side protection against shell fragments, splinter proofs, and, above all, in regard to the way in which plates of steel and iron were built into the breastworks.

"The shelter pits evidently had been arranged with all possible comfort for an extended stay, and our men rejoiced at the wonderful canned goods, corned beef, ham, and other supplies they found in them.

"The British often lay out dummy trenches, setting up turnips or clods of earth to deceive us. The firing line, taking full advantage of cover, lies so far in front or behind these trenches that it suffers very little from our fire, directed against the supposed trenches. It often happened that we came under heavy infantry and machine-gun fire from the edge of a wood, returned the fire, and stormed the wood, to find only when we entered it that the defenders were in the treetops, not on the ground. As to patrols, I have often followed British patrols for some distance with the glass, and, so far as I could see, they missed none of the fine points of the game—something which cannot always be said of our patrols.

"In night fighting the enemy often follows tactics new to us. It is our rule in night fighting to refrain from shooting, if possible, but to use the bayonet, and to shoot in any case only when it is light enough to aim. The Allies, on the contrary, have in many instances adopted for infantry the same principle as for artillery fire, namely, that of strewing a certain area by night with fire.

"The village of Becelaere, which my regiment had stormed and occupied after nightfall, was subjected for hours to such a hail of infantry fire that we finally had to evacuate it. We then occupied trenches near Becelaere, and were subjected the whole night through to fire from infantry and machine guns, which caused us little loss, it is true, but gave the tired troops not an instant's rest. That probably was the enemy's intention."

ASK $3,000 FOR MILK FOR BELGIAN BABIES

Cablegram Says Children Are Starving and That Aid Must Come Quickly.

That there is great suffering among the poor in Antwerp and that $3,000 was needed immediately to buy milk for starving babies was the message that came by cable to Pierre Mali, the Belgian Consul General, yesterday. Mr. Mali did not disclose the name of the sender, but assured a TIMES reporter that the standing of the sender was such that the accuracy of the cablegram could not be questioned. The cablegram said that of the thousands who fled from Antwerp when the Germans began the bombardment many, practically all of them of the poorer people, had returned, and that the suffering among them was very great.

"The cablegram says," said Mr. Mali, "that there seemed to be sufficient food in Antwerp just now, but that there was no money with which to buy it. I was also informed that $3,000 was needed at once to buy milk for babies, and I was asked to see if it was possible for that amount to be cabled by the Relief Committee.

"In letters I have received, written early in November," Mr. Mali added, "I am informed that the Relief Committee in Liége is feeding 20,000 persons, and that about the same number in Verviers are also being cared for by those in charge of the relief work. The trouble in many Belgian cities and towns is that the Germans, by levying heavy fines on the municipalities, have taken all of the cash both from the banks and from well-to-do people. Likewise by commandeering the flour in the hands of bakers, they have made it impossible for the bakers to extend credit to the poor. In a few weeks, under conditions now existing, I am informed, the rich, as well as the poor, will be compelled to take their places in the bread lines.

"The consumption of flour in Belgium is estimated at betwen 40,000 and 45,000 220-pound bags a day in normal times. That means about 4,000 tons of flour or a shipload a day, and that when there are other foods avaialable in the land. We estimate therefore that to feed the Belgians properly it would take a boatload of flour every day. Today, taking into consideration all the various relief organizations, we estimated that for some weeks to come we can send them a shipload a week, which is about one-seventh of the amount the people used before the war. This indicates the situation Belgian people face this Winter.

"With reference to the relief that we hear the Germans are extending in Belgian territory they occupy they are bringing some flour in from Germany and have fixed the price at about 50 per cent. more than the market price in normal times. Only the wealthy are able to buy it and their means are decreasing steadily and will continue to decrease for many months, I fear.

Small Hope for Industry.

"We also hear that the Germans are trying to revive commerce and industry and that they have allowed some merchandise to be exported from Belgium. But it is difficult to keep any industry alive when communication with the outside world is cut off, for Belgium exports about half her industrial output. Then, too, the domestic market is dead.

"The thing that would help Belgium the most would be to re-establish railroad and mail service. That, it appears, is out of the question now."

The American Belgian Commission received yesterday from London instructions concerning flags to be carried by American Relief ships. Each vessel will have a white flag twelve feet square, with red letters reading "Commission Belgium Relief, Rotterdam," also long banners with the same legend on the sides

In addition the steamship Northwestern Miller will sail from Philadelphia about Jan. 15 with a cargo given by the flour men in the Northwest. This is a collection made by William Edgar, editor of The Northwestern Miller of Minneapolis.

Yesterday's Belgian Collections.

The Belgian Relief Fund now amounts to $535,356.11. Of this amount $5,322.69 was received yesterday. All subscriptions to this fund should be sent to J. P. Morgan & Co., 23 Wall Street, or the Belgian Relief Committee, 8-10 Bridge Street. Yesterday's contributions, cents omitted, follow:

Proud of the Red Cross.

The following letter from Mrs. James W. Gerard, wife of the American Ambassador to Germany, was given out at the local offices of the American Red Cross yesterday:

I have just seen Count Talleyrand, who returned today from Gleiwitz, where our nurses and doctors are. He is most enthusiastic over all they have done.

He says that the surgeons have made a name for themselves already in Silesia, and that they want three more sent, if it is possible. I believe only the badly wounded are sent to them, which speaks volumes for the way they are looked upon here. I cannot tell you now proud and happy I feel.

If all goes well I shall go to Gleiwitz the end of November to see them, and then go to Budapest to visit my sister, where I shall also have a chance of seeing the work we are doing in Hungary. What a comfort to think that our Red Cross can do so much good to help all in this terrible, terrible suffering!

The Red Cross announced yesterday that in response to a request from Russia two additional Red Cross surgeons would be ordered to report to the military authorities in that country. It was also stated that the Red Cross has sent to Belgium 1,300 blanket shawls and twenty cases of clothing for women and children. A large consignment of hospital supplies has also been sent to the Red Cross in Paris.

Yesterday's contributions to the Red Cross amounted to $2,474.63. The fund is now $366,625.32. Subscriptions should be sent to Jacob H. Schiff, Treasurer, 130 East Twenty-second Street, or 52 William Street.

Mercy Aid for New York Women.

The Committee of Mercy yesterday appropriated $1,000 from its fund for relief among unemployed women in New York City. It is the policy of the committee to appropriate portions of its fund from time to time for this purpose. The details of this expenditure will be in the hands of August Belmont, Frederick H. Allen, and Joseph M. Price, who will co-operate with any organization recognized by Mayor Mitchel as being capable of meeting the situation which is known to exist in New York.

The committee also apropriated $1,000 from the French Fund for the purchase of shoes for women and children in France. An appeal for this aid came to Frederick H. Allen, Chairman of the Finance Committee. Among the contributors reported during the day was Senator Elihu Root, who sent his check for $500.

The Committee of Mercy Fund has reached $42,781. August Belmont acknowledged the following contributions:

The committee appointed by Mayor Mitchel at the opening of the war for the relief of New York citizens abroad, has reported to the Mayor. Ex-Mayor Seth Low was Chairman.

Since Aug. 6 the committee has met 135 vessels bringing in 103,276 passengers. On 62 of these ships there were persons in need of help ranging from 1 to 57 on each ship. A total of 810 families were assisted materially, including in most cases lodging over night and transportation to their homes. About 1,200 families besides were helped in various ways not involving financial outlay.

More than $500 for the British Red Cross was realized last night through a bridge party at the Hotel Martinique given by Niagara Chapter, Imperial Order Daughters of the British Empire. The money will be spent in hospital and surgical supplies. Accompanying the supplies will be three graduate nurses fully equipped and with all their expenses paid by the chapter.

The American Girls' Aid for collecting clothing for war victims in France and Belgium has sent out its second consignment of clothing by the steamer Touraine, the first cases having gone out by the Rochambeau a week before. Garments to clothe 1,500 persons were sent, and much larger shipments will be made. Parcels may be sent to the committee, Gladys Hollingsworth, Mrs. Gaston Pinto, and Elizabeth Hollingsworth, at Pier 57, North River.

PRIVATE VIEW OF WAR FILMS.

Will Be Shown with "Pandora's Box" for Vacation Committee.

A number of patronesses and members of the committee in charge of "Pandora's Box," the ballet to be given at the Seventh Regiment Armory on Dec. 4 and 5 under the auspices of the Vacation War Relief Committee, were invited to the committee headquarters at 38 West Thirty-ninth Street yesterday by Miss Anne Morgan, Miss Gertrude Robinson Smith, and Miss Maude Wetmore to see the first exhibition of the moving pictures which will be displayed at the entertainment. The pictures were taken by representatives of The Chicago Tribune through special arrangement with the Belgian Government, and will be put on display at the Thirty-ninth Street Theatre next Sunday for a run.

$160,000 FOR RELIEF FUND

Other German Aid Organizations Have Fared Equally Well, ex-Colonial Minister Says.

Dr. Bernhard Dernburg, ex-German Colonial Minister, who has been in this country since soon after the outbreak of war in the interest of the German Red Cross, issued this report last night with reference to the support of the German Red Cross in the United States.

The grand total of the contributions to the work of the German Red Cross, for wounded soldiers, widows and orphans of those killed during the war, and sufferers in general, received by the New York Delegates of the Central Association of the German Red Cross Societies, amounts so far to $576,671.

This amount does not include the very considerable sums sent through other channels or collected by other German societies. The German Relief Fund in New York for instance has collected more than $160,000.

It is impossible to say how much has been contributed in this way, but it is safe to say that in the aggregate at least twice as much as the amount given above has been donated by persons of every nationality and creed for the alleviation of the suffering caused by the war in Germany. Of course the largest part came from German-American sources.

This list gives the amounts down to $300 that have been remitted from different collection centers in this country:

Chicago, Ill.	$154,127	Albany	1,000
Baltimore	101,535	Aurora, Ill.	1,000

The delegates of the German Red Cross Societies deeply appreciate the fact that the contributions from America have so far kept pace with the ever-growing demand for relief caused by the continuation of the war, and they take these means to express their gratitude to the donors whose number is so large that an acknowledgment by the publication of the complete list of the contributions is unfortunately impossible. This must be left to the local papers, which have, with full understanding of the situation, responded to the necessity and have done work deserving unlimited praise.

While the result stated above is highly satisfactory and encouraging, it must, of course, not be forgotten that the demands made upon the Red Cross and the affiliated societies are very large and likely to increase greatly with the beginning of the Winter.

COMSTOCK ENDS WAR RAFFLE.

Automobile for the Belgians Will Be Sold by Auction Instead.

Reports that complaint had been made to the District Attorney by Anthony Comstock were responsible yesterday for calling off an automobile raffle that was to have been held at the Hotel Knickerbocker tonight for the relief of Belgians. It was contended that the raffle, although for charity, constituted a violation of the gambling law.

James B. Regan, proprietor of the hotel, announced that there would be an auction sale instead, and that the car would be sold to the highest bidder. It was said that nearly $8,000 had been received for chances in the raffle. The money will be returned.

Quiet Colors Only for Soldiers' Garb.

The British War Relief Fund of 200 Fifth Avenue announces that it has received information from England that some of the articles of clothing which it has received and forwarded for the soldiers of the British Army are unsuitable for use at the front on account of their bright colors. The fund has procured a large quantity of wool of the correct khaki color and has it on sale at its headquarters.

Holland Kermis for Red Cross.

The Tercentenary Celebration is to be rounded out by a Holland kermis on the afternoon and evening of Dec. 4 and 5, the eve of the Feast of St. Nicholas, in Old St. Mark's Church, the site of Dutch traditions. The proceeds of the kermis are to be divided between the neighborhood parish and the Red Cross Fund. A Dutch village square is to be on the background for bakeshop, cheese and flour markets, and other activities. The Hollanders at play, Dutch peasant dances, and Court dances will be shown.

Britons Invited to Prayer.

All members of British and Canadian societies and their friends are invited to take part in the American Thanksgiving and English Harvest Festival service in St. Paul's Chapel at noon today. This will be the sixth service of its kind. The opportunity will be given to pray for the restoration of peace in God's time and in God's way, and to pray for widows and orphans and for wounded and dying soldiers and sailors. The offerings will be for Belgian widows and orphans.

Perceval Gibbon Describes an Impressive Scene with the Russian Invaders of East Prussia.

By Perceval Gibbon.

New York Times and London Daily Chronicle War Service.

RAIGRAD, East Prussia, Oct. 28.—She was due to arrive at 3 o'clock; at 2:30 the guard of honor which was to receive Her came up the village street at the quickstep, the gray overcoats swinging to the rhythm of the stride, and halted where the church, with its sky-blue, star-spangled domes, stood up among the little houses. From the other direction came the General, urbane and elderly among his long-legged young staff officers, his breast cuirassed with the orders and decorations he wore in honor of his visitor. Between the houses and along both sides of the single street thronged the men of the regiments, the proletariat of the war.

It was a day of October, brisk and chill; beyond the roofs a sky of mother-o'-pearl stood over the Autumn-hued hills and patchwork woods of East Prussia. A couple of hours of riding westward would carry one to the foremost of those trenches whence the stolid, blunt-faced Russian riflemen looked forth upon the German positions. The village in which we stood was newly restored to our hands, snatched ten days before from a stubborn German rearguard upon any day one might hear from it; the drum of artillery muffled among the hills; the ruts of the gunwheels were still deep in the road. And hither, to the verge of Russia, to the very cutting-edge of the army, she was coming to show Her servants the mild beauty of Her face, the droop of Her bowed and compassionate head, and the ancient glory of Her raiment.

Russia Made Visible.

A tight-belted officer was shouting orders; the guard of honor, like people moving in a quadrille, shifted, changed shape, broke asunder, and resolved itself into two lines facing each other across the roadway. Between them, among his tall young men, came the General, at the easy gait of a boulevardier; a flaneur; his handsome and sophisticated face, with his gray mustache, smiled wisely; his gloved hands moved in little skilled gestures. French and fine, as he chatted. He was a man of the world, of the Court, of society, from his spurs to the oval badge on his cap, a man who could be efficient without ceasing to be decorative, a soldier who looked the part. He glanced while he talked at the watch on his wrist and then down the street; one judged he would require punctuality even from Her.

Beside me, where I waited on a doorstep, a huge-shouldered infantryman spoke to his neighbor in the clipped German of the Baltic Province of Russia. "I suppose we have to take our caps off?" was the sense of his question; and presently he turned his head and I saw his face, the black hair of it, the supple mouth, the contour and coloring of the Jew. There were many of them in the crowd, men from Riga and Libau and the towns of the Pale. A little further a group of high lambskin Cossack caps showed over the tide of khaki, surmounting lean, sinister faces of new levies from the Caucasus and featherweight cavalry from Southern and Eastern Siberia, with braided belts drawn tightly over long-skirted papachs and dripping with pendent daggers. Lithuanians, Letts talking together in their strange tongue, Poles, Cossacks plain, and Cossacks colored—it was Russia made visible in a little scope, an empire on the scale of an army, all its variety and diversity subdued to the single tone of war.

"She Comes!"

A mounted officer at the street-end was signaling with his sword; a murmur trickled along the crowd, "She comes!" The General and his young men broke off their talk and posed themselves ceremonially. There was a shuffling and jostling of those behind to see over the shoulders of those in front. Then, where the street turned there appeared figures, white-robed and pacing slowly, and over their heads a pale gleam of gold, the first light of Her countenance. Already about Her, as She advanced, there rose the voices of those along the way, low cries as of joy and entreaty from many mouths. The Russians near me surge forward, staring and peering excitedly. Heads were bared; the guard of honor clashed to the salute; and at Her own pace, borne in a litter on the shoulders of men, with Her escort of ringletted popes before and on either hand, She moved past.

The great frame that inclosed Her was gold, with open doors of gold, enhanced by the soft shine of jewels; against its barbarous magnificence She was dim and slight, a brief and pale vision of a face tender and delicate, a meek grace of attitude, long hands crossed beneath the bosom. In front of me the soldiers dropped to their knees upon the wet earth; all the street was lined with kneeling figures, gazing up at Her, the broad, war-beaten faces transfigured in a sudden ecstasy. They called to Her, their fingers racing to and fro in signs of the cross: "Sviataia Bogoroditsa!" they called; "Holy One! Mother of God!"

The Great Movement.

Their voices, their beseeching hands and the contagion of their earnestness—they made the poor street, with its mud and ugliness, suddenly august. These were the men who, a few days before, had taken the village with the bayonet, storming the street in which now they knelt, strewing its length with their dead and the dead of the enemy. Upon their khaki clothes the stains of that slaughter were still horrible. In the middle of them, between the rigid lines of the guard, the General, bareheaded, was upon his knees likewise, his staff kneeling behind him. His fine elderly face frowned heavily in utter earnestness as he crossed himself again and again over the orders and medals that shone on his breast. She went by him without halting, and turned in at the gates of the church where a place was prepared for Her, and till the last of Her escort had disappeared within, none rose. Then, abruptly, the staccato bark of the officer commanding the guard of honor restored the note of everyday.

"The gold alone is said to be worth 100,000 rubles," said the big Jew to his neighbor, replacing his cap on his head.

The crowds along the roadside broke and began to drift, talking and laughing; the great moment was over. From the church there sounded momentary snatches of music, swells of splendid bass singing by the bearded popes, where a service was in progress before a congregation of high officers. But for the men, She had come and gone, and life had again its commonplace aspect. They moved away in slow groups toward the camps behind the village, where the smoke of their fires rose in the windless air in slim spires of ghostly gray. My own way took me by a stony path under a breast of hill barred by the horse-lines of the last-arrived Cossacks. Where the path wound about the end of it, a man was kneeling.

He was barefooted; his hands were stretched forth in front of him; he was clad in the long, wide skirted papach of the Caucasian horseman. For him, there was no picture resplendent in a setting of gold, no gracious and visible presence to awe and uplift him. His back was to the dull west, his face to the east where, beyond the early dusk that was already thickening over the bleak lands, Mecca and its tomb were potent and holy.

Anna Pavlowa and her company of Russian dancers gave a special performance last night in the Metropolitan Opera House for the benefit of the Red Cross Fund. The house was filled, and the receipts amounted to more than $12,000. Two ballets, not yet given by this dancer in New York, were seen last night, "Puppen Fee" ("The Fairy Doll") and the "Walpurgis Night" Scene from "Faust," which has been omitted from the opera as performed in more recent years. Among the nine divertissements offered, there were also several numbers which had not been given here.

"Puppen Fee" is a fantastic ballet in two scenes, in which the mannikins of a toy shop are exhibited to buyers, going through the mechanical tricks with which the toymakers have endowed them, and afterward, at the waving of a magic wand, indulging in more ecstatic revels when there are no humans about. Several captivating individual numbers are included, and the ballet was effective and interesting.

The "Walpurgis Night" scene was gorgeously costumed, and many interesting stage groupings were arranged. Mephisto, as portrayed by the Russians, was a weird and compelling figure. In this ballet Pavlowa had excellent opportunities, and her leading male dancer, Mr. Voliníne, excelled anything he has shown at the previous appearance this season. The orchestra did scant justice to Gounod's music.

PRESIDENT LAUDS HERRICK.

Says Ambassador's Work During Trying Days Was Admirable.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—President Wilson paid a tribute today to Myron T. Herrick, who is retiring as Ambassador to France, to be succeeded on Dec. 1 by William G. Sharp.

Mr. Wilson said he was very much pleased with Mr. Herrick's work, and that his conduct during the trying days of war in the French capital had been so admirable he had been left in charge as long as possible. The President added, however, he felt he should not keep two Ambassadors in France any longer than was necessary.

Mr. Herrick is retiring from the diplomatic service and returning to the United States.

ENGLISH CIVILIANS TOLD NOT TO FIGHT

H. G. Wells's Appeal to Them to Take Up Arms if Invader Comes Thought Dangerous.

PROTEST BY MAY SINCLAIR

She Has Been in Belgium as a Nurse and Has Seen the Results of Civilian Interference.

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—George Bernard Shaw and H. G. Wells have once again furnished proof of the adage that the cobbler should stick to his last. These distinguished literary lights were the authors, respectively, first, of an appeal to all the combatants in the western field of war to evacuate Belgium and cary on no more military operations in that much tried country, and, second, a fervid, not to say hysterical, series of letters in which the civil population of England was exhorted to take up arms, even if those weapons were only shotguns or carving knives, to defend their homes against the Germans.

Mr. Wells's articles have been more widely referred to than Mr. Shaw's, but even Mr. Wells has not had what the French call "a good press." Practically all the comments upon his suggestion have been condemnatory. The War Office has issued an announcement to the effect that in the event of the enemy attempting to invade this country instructions would be issued by the proper authorities as to what non-combatants were to do. Some of Mr. Wells's supporters took this to mean that the War Office was, to some extent at least, in sympathy with his views, and counted upon making use of civilian resistance in case a German force should be landed on British shores.

There is excellent authority for stating that this inference is entirely erroneous. The War Office announcement was intended simply to allay any hysterical alarm which might have been aroused by the novelist's articles, and to prevent the spread of a doctrine which was believed to be pernicious. By stating that the War Office had the matter in hand, it was felt, individual action along the lines preached by Mr. Wells would be obviated.

Belgian Civil Guards' Fate.

With the experience of that section of the civil population of Belgium which attempted to resist the German invaders to go upon, the British Government would have no option but to prevent by all the means in its power any but military opposition to any invading army in Britain. In Belgium the Germans would not recognize the Civil Guard, which is a regularly constituted body, as a military organization; and though The Hague regulations are wide enough to include among legitimate combatants volunteer and militia corps which satisfy all of the following conditions: (1) They must be led by a person responsible for his subordinates, (2) wear a fixed distinctive emblem recognizable at a distance, (3) carry arms openly, and (4) conduct their operations in accordance with the laws and customs of war—these regulations are purely academic, for they settle nothing unless the belligerent powers abide by them. Neither in 1870-71 nor in the present war has Germany shown any disposition to recognize as legitimate combatants any but fully and regularly organized military forces.

The "Levee En Masse."

One of Mr. Wells's contentions is that The Hague regulations recognize a levée en masse in territory not yet occupied by the enemy and when it is spontaneous. Article II. provides that "the inhabitants of a territory which has not been occupied who, on the approach of the enemy, spontaneously take up arms to resist the invading troops without having had time to organize themselves in accordance with Article I. shall be treated as belligerents if they carry arms openly and if they respect the laws and customs of war."

In this connection an authority on international law points out that the word "spontaneously," which has hitherto been construed as dispensing with a State order or call to arms, is shown by an incidental and indeed irrelevant remark in the German official explanation of the sack of Louvain to be construed very strictly by the Germans. A rising organized by the Government providing arms in advance is on this view not "spontaneous," and persons who join in it are not legitimate combatants. A national rising on this view must rely on privately owned weapons, rifles, (if possible,) shotguns, and pitchforks. There can be no question that any such rising would be speedily and ruthlessly put down by a well-equipped invader.

Miss Sinclair's Protest.

One of the most notable contributions to the discussion of Mr. Wells's scheme has been furnished by another novelist, Miss May Sinclair, whose works are largely read in America. Miss Sinclair, who has been in Belgium, acting as a nurse, writes to The Manchester Guardian:

"I wonder whether the good civilians—who no doubt are laying in a stock of rifles and revolvers in response to a recent civilian call to arms—would be quite so eager if they had been in Belgium lately, and had seen the endless procession of refugees flying from towns and villages which were leveled to the ground because some civilian had chosen to defend his wife's honor and his children's lives at the expense of his village or his town? I was in Ghent on the night of Oct. 11 when the Germans were advancing on that city. Ghent had every prospect of safety. The citizens had taken to heart the lesson of Termonde and Louvain. Their only fear was that some refugee (goaded to madness by his sufferings) would fire. I saw the crowd drawn up before the railway station. I heard them ordered to give up their arms. The fate of Ghent depended on absolute obedience to that order.

"And here in England we are still asking, 'Should civilians arm?' And the women have begun. I hear of women's corps to be trained to salute; also to shoot, if necessary, in defense of 'other women's' honor. Is there to be no censorship for this sort of thing? If it is better that ninety-nine war correspondents should be deprived of their 'scoop' than that one damaging item should leak through, what about other correspondents who are by no means at the front? A distinguished novelist with a theory may run amuck in all the papers and nobody is going to censor him. Yet his theory may be every bit as dangerous as the war correspondent's fact; especially if it is expounded with virile energy and carries the weight of a great name behind it."

GOSSIP OF WAR'S HAVOC TRIES LONDON'S NERVES

The Indian Troops Running Away, British Mutiny, Wounded Wanting to Quit, Brought Here.

One effect of the severe censorship exercised over the British newspapers, according to Americans returning from the other side, is that London is full of rumors, more or less pessimistic, about how things are going at the front. Perhaps few, if any, of these pieces of club gossip contain any larger germ of truth than the tale of the Russians who passed through England from Achangel to invade France, but they are implicitly believed in some form by many people.

Here are a few of the current pieces of gossip brought over by a well-informed passenger on the Franconia:

"Lord Roberts went to India to cheer up the Indian troops, who needed it badly. When the Gurkhas first came under fire they were exposed to a perfect tornado of shell. They had never experienced anything like it before and fled. They ran for miles, and it took several days to gather them together again.

"There has been a mutiny! The Blankshires threw down their arms and refused absolutely to obey their officers' orders to move forward to a position from which another regiment, for whom they were acting as supports, had been shelled. As to what happened after that nobody knows.

"The 'missing' in the casualty lists total about 17,000 to date, and even with these included the percentage of killed and wounded is high, out of a total fighting force that has been put at 250,000. The butchery of the war is frightful, and among the men who have been in it there is little desire to get back when their wounds are healed. They'll go back, but it will be because they'll have to.

"A large percentage of the wounded are suffering more severely from shock than from their actual wounds. Their nerves have all gone to pieces. The German shell fire is terrible. The actual concussion of the bursting shells has an effect. No man can stand it for long. Arrangements are being made to provide the troops with shields and various other sorts of protective apparatus, such as thick leather gloves for the left hand and a sort of helmet for the top of the head, (against shrapnel,) but, of course, the censors are very carefully suppressing all that."

the protection of lives and property. The Carranza faction has been saying that upon the arrival of Villa or Zapata at the capital Blanco would withdraw and join the Carranza movement. On the other hand, the claim of the Villa faction has been that it was Blanco's purpose to await the arrival of Villa, surrender control of the capital to Villa, and then join the Villa movement.

Carranza Men Pleased.

The dispatch from Mexico City saying Blanco had already evacuated the city was received with jubilation by Carranza's followers here tonight. They construed it as meaning that Blanco had decided to abide by Carranza's order to withdraw from the capital. It is evident from statements made by followers of Carranza here that they expect the Carranza faction to execute a coup after both Villa and Zapata have arrived in Mexico City. Though they are very reticent when it comes to details, it is known that they expect Villa to clash with Zapata, and there are intimations that after Villa has reached the capital the Carranza forces will seek to surround the city and crush the Villa movement. One impartial observer in close touch with Mexican circles here said tonight that the "Carranza coup will either be a great success or a sublime fizzle."

President Wilson's course in ordering the evacuation of Vera Cruz was highly commended tonight in a formal statement from R. Zuburan Capmany, Chief of the Constitutionalist Mission in Washington, tonight. His statement follows:

"The evacuation of Vera Cruz by the American troops serves to tangibly establish the pre-existant facts not only of the unswerving steadfastness of President Wilson and the principles of justice that actuate a great political party, but also the genuine inclination of the great and powerful American people.

"Actions such as these bind strongly the ties of national cordiality and serve to strengthen the already existing feelings of friendship between two nations who have been called to similar destinies.

"I think I interpret the opinion of all Mexicans, certainly of all true, patriotic Mexicans, irrespective of class and faction, when I say that yesterday was with us a day of national rejoicing. It is not strange that in such moments some few words of displeasure may have been voiced. But when peace has been restored and the hot passions which agitate us today have been calmed, and after the turmoil of social and political reconstruction, we have resumed our daily peaceful occupations, then all Mexicans without distinction will recall with deep respect the name of President Wilson.

"The recent crisis which gave birth to the Constitutionalist revolution served to unify it by definitely classifying its supporters. On the one hand are those Mexicans who have at heart the true interests of our country, ranged under the leadership of Señor Carranza and supported by the people at large, and on the other hand remain the reactionaries, who have merely changed the name of their dictator from Huerta to Villa.

"These facts and not the stories of battles won in the newspapers will soon demonstrate upon which side is force, as is already reason and justice, and make clear it is today, as it was in the time of Huerta, with the Constitutionalist Party."

VILLA MEN LOSE HEAVILY.

Angeles Driven Back from Guadalajara in Fierce Battle.

Special to The New York Times.

AGUASCALIENTES, Nov. 24.—Gen. Felipe Angeles and his command of 10,000 Villistas were driven back from the gates of Guadalajara today, an official dispatch from the artillery commander announced. Angeles had been bombarding the ancient capital of the State of Jalisco since Saturday, and expected to be in possession of the place before this time. His troops, supported by 100 field and machine guns, attacked from the southeast, in an advance movement along the railroad line approaching the city and main plaza. After facing a withering fire directed at the advancing columns by the Carranzista defenders, in command of Col. Diegez, the Villa troops were beaten back after they had reached the Puerto del Sol and were about to make a general advance into the city proper.

The defeat was not a vital one, Gen. Angeles said, but was the cause of much loss of life. Gen. Diegez has 12,000 men, and is being reinforced from some point south or west. The attack is to be renewed, and Angeles has notified Villa that he will take the town before the end of the week.

Villa has also dispatched Col. Soto and 3,000 men to proceed against the two Arrietas and Maclovio Herrera, who have joined forces and are operating in the State of Durango. These troops will be reinforced from the garrisons of the north, in order to prevent Villa's line of communications toward the south being cut. The Arrietas are acting on orders from the Carranza Generals, and it is thought that they will succeed in making trouble for Villa.

CARRANZA AT COAST TODAY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VERA CRUZ, Nov. 24.—Triumphal arches have been built in the Plaza de la Constitucion to welcome Gen. Carranza, who arrives tomorrow. Houses are decorated with flags and lights.

The American troops' trenches have been occupied by Constitutional forces and the city is well guarded against possible attack. Absolute quiet prevails and there has been no disorder. The passing of Consul Canada in his automobile with a marine chauffeur is absolutely ignored. There is no communication with Mexico City.

Americans walking the streets are treated with the greatest respect. Gen. Aguilar repeats he will give the fullest protection to foreigners at all costs.

Three thousand workingmen, comprising all classes of laborers, paraded the streets tonight. Girls dressed as Liberty led a procession, and the streets were crowded with spectators. Saloons opened this afternoon without restriction. Hundreds of plain clothes men on the streets kept order.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—From Juarez it was reported today that wire communication had been interrupted south of Monterey and Saltillo.

SEARCHLIGHT IN BORDER FIGHT

Gen. Hill Able to Drive Back Night Assault on Naco.

NACO, Ariz., Nov. 24.—Gov. Maytorena of Sonora directed a night attack on the Carranza defenses of Naco last night, but Gen. Benjamin Hill, the garrison commander, turned searchlights on the attackers and, with machine guns, forced them back.

The attack was directed against the Hill trenches in the southeast, and Maytorena's men were within 300 yards of the defenses when the searchlights got into play.

CAPT. HILL EXPLAINS.

Did Not Give an Interview Predicting Trouble at Vera Cruz, He Says.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—Capt. Walter N. Hill of the navy today telegraphed to Secretary Daniels a denial of the statement that he had granted an interview on the Mexican situation. Capt. Hill's message was in reply to a request by the department asking whether he had been correctly quoted in the interview published in yesterday morning's newspapers saying there would be burning and looting in Vera Cruz when the American troops left.

Capt. Hill's explanation is that he had granted no interview, but that the reputed interview was evidently based on statements Capt. Hill had made to a personal friend of his father, and these statements had not been correctly quoted.

Six Censors for Carranza News.

MAIL FROM HOLLAND HELD UP BY BRITISH

Complaint Made Here That Letters Mailed to America Have Never Arrived.

ROTTERDAM WAS DETAINED

According to passengers of the steamship Rotterdam who were interviewed yesterday morning at the Holland-America Line pier, Hoboken, on her arrival, the ship was ordered into Dover Harbor by the British Admiralty officials and detained five hours while a search was made in all parts of the vessel by six officials dressed in naval uniform.

The Rotterdam left Rotterdam on Saturday afternoon, Nov. 14, with 1,854 passengers. She was piloted through the North Sea by an English pilot sent across to Rotterdam by the Admiralty from London who knew where the mines had been laid. On receipt of orders from the flagship, Capt. G. Stenger took his ship into the outer harbor at Dover and anchored on Sunday.

Shortly afterward a small naval vessel, resembling a small scout boat or miniature destroyer, came off and put six officers on board in naval uniform who were afterward said to have been secret service agents from the Foreign Office. They told the officers of the Rotterdam that they were looking for twelve Germans who had been reported to be leaving for New York on the Rotterdam. During the five hours' detention at Dover the passengers noticed that the English officials did not have the passengers lined up, but walked about the decks and cabins and examined them in such a cursory manner that it was suspected they had some other motive in coming off to the ship.

Many complaints have been received in Holland from relatives in the United States that letters posted in Amsterdam, Rotterdam, and other big cities have never reached America. It was suggested by some of the passengers that many letters might have been picked out for inspection by the Dutch postal authorities and placed in a special bag ready for examination at Dover or any other port where the British officials boarded the steamship. No one was taken off at Dover, it was said, when the small vessel left for the shore with the six uniformed officers standing in her stern.

Fram Carried Cottonseed Cake.

It was learned last night that the Norwegian steamship Fram, which was seized by the English and taken to Lerwick, Shetland Islands, was carrying a cargo of 4,050 tons of cottonseed oil cake from Philadelphia to Odense and Nyborg, Denmark, which was shipped by the Southern Oil Company to a Danish corporation, said to be a regular customer. The Fram was chartered by the owners to W. J. Grandfield & Co. of Philadelphia and turned over the same day to the Hamburg-American Line.

QUEEN THANKS AMERICA.

Calls Christmas Gifts "Touching Proof of Generous Sympathy."

LONDON, Nov. 24.—Queen Mary has sent to Mrs. Walter R. Page, wife of the American Ambassador, a letter of thanks for the Christmas gifts from American children to children in England and on the continent. The letter is dated at York Cottage, Sandringham, Norfolk, Nov. 20, 1914, and is as follows:

"My Dear Mrs. Page: Having heard of the approaching arrival of the steamer Jason bringing Christmas gifts of warm clothing from the children of the United States to the children of this and the other belligerent countries, I am anxious to express through you my warm appreciation of this touching proof of generous sympathy, and to ask you to be so kind as to convey my heartfelt thanks to all who have contributed toward the presents, which will, I feel sure, be gladly welcomed by the children for whom they are intended, and received with gratitude by their parents. Believe me, yours very sincerely, MARY R."

KREISLER HERE, WOUNDED.

Back from the war, after having been officially listed as dead on the field of battle, Fritz Kreisler, the Austrian violinist, arrived here wounded yesterday on the Holland-America liner Rotterdam, accompanied by his wife, who served in the Red Cross hospitals in Austria until she broke down under the strain. Mr. Kreisler, who walked down the gangplank with the aid of a cane, said his wound had not interfered with his playing.

When the Austrian Army was mobilized the violinist joined the Third Jaeger Regiment and received a commission as Lieutenant. After drilling for a month the regiment was sent to the front at Lemberg, where it took part in the fighting in the trenches for four days.

"The Cossacks, mounted on their wiry little horses, attacked in irresistible numbers," said Mr. Kreisler, "and our defense was overcome. We shot them down for three days as they advanced in their whirling formation, but they always came on again.

"On the fourth day they burst across an open space before the trenches uttering blood-curdling yells, yells that the crackling of our machine guns failed to drown. It is no great pleasure to watch a Cossack charge if they are riding right at you. Our men faced them bravely, but they rode right across us. The hoof of one of the foremost horses struck my shoulder. Another Cossack galloped over me and in passing slashed me in the thigh with his lance. As he jumped the trench I fired at him with my revolver and he toppled over dead, while his horse galloped away."

Mr. Kreisler said he lay in the trench for seven hours, or until the Cossacks had been driven back. His orderly found him almost exhausted from loss of blood and exposure and took him to a hospital, where he lay for six weeks before his wife could locate him. The wound took a long time to heal sufficiently for him to travel, and then he received permission to make his concert tour in the United States. Mr. Kreisler expects to rejoin his regiment in the Spring, when he has fully recovered his health.

Mrs. Kreisler said Emperor Francis Joseph visited the wounded in the hospitals in Vienna every day.

EARTH SHOCKS RECORDED.

Instruments Throughout Country Indicate Severe Disturbance.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—Earthquake shocks were recorded today on the seismographs of Georgetown University, beginning at 7:20 A. M. and continuing an hour and six minutes. The centre of the disturbance was calculated to be about 1,200 miles from Washington and the observers believed it to be within the United States.

Up to a late hour tonight no news has been received of an earthquake in any part of the United States or Europe.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 24.—Two earth shocks were recorded on the seismograph at Harvard College today, the first at 7:11 A. M. and the second at 7:17. The origin of the earthquake was estimated at 2,470 miles from Cambridge. The distance curve skirted the coast of Southwestern California and passed through the Bay of Panama, according to Prof. J. B. Woodworth of the seismograph station.

MOBILE, Ala., Nov. 24.—The seismograph at Spring Hill College, near this city, recorded a slight earth shock today at 6:17 A. M. The disturbance was calculated by the observer to be central within a radius of 500 miles from Mobile.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 24.—The seismograph at the Dominion Observatory here recorded a severe earthquake shock today. The tremors began at 7:11:38 o'clock and continued for more than an hour. The distance to the epicentre was 3,200 miles. Officials of the observatory believed that the disturbance was probably in South America.

LAUGHS AT PLOT STORY.

Gen. Sam Hughes Hears Arrested Turks Planned to Kill Him.

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, Ontario, Nov. 24.—Gen. Sam Hughes received the report of a plot to assassinate him in London, Ontario, tomorrow with considerable enjoyment, regarding it as a joke. "Bully for them!" he remarked as he read the newspaper account. "This is fine!" He left for London tonight and will inspect the troops of that district tomorrow.

Inquiry of the Canadian secret service shows that no report of a plot to murder Gen. Hughes has been received by them, and they regard the story as "nonsense." They have been aware of the arrest of Turks at London, Ontario, but they were arrested, they say, simply because they were aliens of an enemy nation, and as soon as they can prove that they have no inimical intentions they will be paroled.

ARGENTINE SLAP AT BRITAIN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 23.—Residents of the Argentine Republic are angry over cable dispatches from the London Managing Directors of the Buenos Aires & Pacific and Central Argentine railways to the President of the republic instructing him to block the railroad pension bills before Congress.

The press says that England cannot control Argentin and that the attempt of certain foreign banks to hurt the branch banks which the National City Bank of New York has estimated here will only prove beneficial to those American institutions.

BOOKS ON IMPORTANT TOPICS

THE OTHER SIDE OF EUGENICS

Binding, cloth. Price, net, $1.50, postpaid.

"Professor Conn's previous works on Evolution of Today, The Living World, The Method of Evolution, etc., show the long study he has given to these matters. His newest book has for its purpose to show that the laws of evolution in animals and plants apply to human evolution up to a certain point, beyond which man has been under the influence of distinct laws of his own. These distinct laws the author groups under the general name of social heredity."—THE BUFFALO COMMERCIAL.

CHRISTIANITY AND THE NEW AGE BY GEORGE P. MAINS

"This is a remarkable book. It is distinguished by mastery of its subject, wide scholarship, broad tolerance, clear vision, an earnest and fearless reverence for truth as the only sure foundation of faith, a disregard for mere dogma and tradition, and by a thoroughly devout, cheerful, and hopeful spirit. Logical in its arrangement of argument and facts, philosophical in its reasoning, and delightfully free from sectarian bias."—THE NATION.

HELD A NIGHT TEST OF LIGHTED SHELLS

Persons Living Near Sandy Hook Thought a Big Naval Battle Was in Progress.

NEW MISSILES A SUCCESS

Gas Torches Which They Carry Enable the Gunners to Correct Their Aim in Night Firing.

Persons on ships in the lower bay and at sea near Sandy Hook were startled last night when they heard sounds of heavy cannonading coming from the direction of Fort Hancock, on the Hook. The shots were fired at short intervals for half an hour or more after 9:15 o'clock and many who could not see what was going on thought that ships of the belligerent nations were engaging in a naval battle. Those nearer the Hook saw lights in the air above the fort, lights floating on the water, and lights sailing through the air from the fort, and, although they did not think a battle was going on, they were puzzled to account for the strange manifestations.

The explanation was given at Fort Hancock. The officers of the fort were experimenting, it was said, with a new illuminated shell that was introduced recently. It is similar to other shells except that when it is fired a gas flame is ignited in the rear end that burns while the projectile is sailing through the air. This flame is known as a "trailer," and is to indicate the direction of the shell.

Last night lighted balloons meant to represent airships were sent up into the air and targets with lights on them were anchored at sea off the Hook. Then the illuminated shells were fired at these marks from the proving grounds of the fort. The tests were said to have been most satisfactory. About fifty shells were fired and, it was said, few went wide of the mark. And those projectiles that did miss the targets were not fired in vain, for the gunners were able to follow their direction by the "trailers" and tell how far wild they went. With this knowledge each gunner, when he missed, was able to correct his aim for the next shot. This aided materially, it was said, in improving the scores, and it was not long before all of the balloons and floating targets had been struck.

Col. Samuel E. Allen, commander of Fort Hancock, could not be seen after the target shooting last night, but it was said that he was well pleased with the efficiency of the illuminated shells. An officer who watched experiments with them said that, in his opinion, they were a valuable addition to coast defense. The position of an aeroplane, he said, was indicated at night generally by its outline against the sky or by a light in it, but it must be aimed at by simple sighting, as it is constantly in motion. It is difficult, therefore, for a gunner to find the range when shooting at airships at night, especially if he has no way of knowing how far he misses when he fails to hit. With the illuminated shells, it is said, a gunner can see just how far wide he is shooting and change his aim accordingly. Also the shells would be of value for repulsing a naval attack, it was pointed out, for often fast cruisers are nearly as difficult marks as aeroplanes.

The size of the shells used last night was not made known, but that they were fired from big guns was indicated by the fact that many persons living at Sea Gate and at other points along or near the coast, both in New York and New Jersey, heard the cannonading, and some reported that windows in their houses rattled while it was going on.

WE AID GERMANS IN CANADA.

Consuls Directed to Assist Them as They Would Americans.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—At the request of the German and Austrian Governments, the United States is looking after the interests of those countries in hostile territory all over the world. In Canada, where the United States has no diplomatic representative, American Consuls are charged with the duty of assisting, as far as they properly can, subjects of the two Tuetonic Emperors. It was explained at the State Department this evening that under instructions from the department, the American Consuls will act for German and Austrian subjects just as they would for American citizens.

THE TIMES of Nov. 14 published a letter from Arthur von Briesen addressed to the Secretary of State. In this letter Mr. von Briesen spoke of the discomfort of German and Austro-Hungarian subjects in Canada and suggested that their interests might be best looked after by American Consular representatives there. He also suggested that to facilitate such protection a German-speaking official be attached to the American Consul General office in Ottawa "so that at least one of our representatives would be able to understand their complaints and their needs."

SAYS MINE SANK AUDACIOUS.

One of the Naval Reserve men arriving on the Cunarder Franconia yesterday from Liverpool was on the Olympic when she went to the rescue of the battleship Audacious on Oct. 27 off the coast of Ireland. He said that there was no truth in the report that the Audacious was torpedoed by a submarine.

"The Audacious was hit by a mine," he said. "While we were standing by the trawlers swept up eighty-one mines in a zone of twenty miles, a zone that the Olympic had passed through that morning."

BUNDESRATH FIXES PRICES.

Forbids Sale of Gold Coin and Restricts Use of Flour.

BERLIN, Nov. 24, (via The Hague and London.)—The Bundestrat today issued a decree fixing the price which growers are to charge for potatoes throughout the empire.

For purposes of classification the country has been divided into four sections. The first consists approximately of the territory to the east of the Elbe, and here the price is fixed at 2.75 marks (66 cents) a decaliter, (9.08 quarts.)

The second section is the Kingdom of Saxony and the district of Thuringia, where the price is 2:85 marks (68½c.) a decaliter. In the third section, which is Northwestern Germany, the price is 2.95 marks (71c.) a decaliter, and in the fourth section, comprising the western and southern portions of the empire, the price is 3.05 (73c.) a deciter. These prices are for the best qualities. For inferior qualities the price is 25 pfenning (6c.) less.

Another measure adopted by the Bundesrat was to prolong by thirty days the time for protest on bills of exchange in Alsace, Lorraine, East Prussia, and a few cities in West Prussia. The regular time of protest, taken with this extension, gives at present a protest period of 150 days.

The Bundesrat decreed also that every attempt to buy or sell the gold coins of the empire at prices above their nominal value, or the aiding in such transaction, would be punished by imprisonment for one year and a maximum fine of 5,000 marks, ($1,250.) At the same time the coins destined for such transactions will be confiscated.

A decree has been issued for the City of Berlin and the Province of Brandenburg which sets forth that it is the duty of everybody to supervise with care the use of wheat flour. Bakeries, hotels, and restaurants using wheat flour must finish their baking before 2 P. M. every day, and they may not begin preparations for baking previous to 8 P. M. Wheat bread may not be placed freely at the disposal of guests in inns, cafés, and restaurants.

MARINES TO SANTO DOMINGO

The Hancock Sent There — Washington Had Got Roseate Reports.

HAVANA, Nov. 24.—The United States transport Hancock, with 800 marines on board, has been ordered to Santo Domingo City, and will depart thither tonight.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—Ex-Gov. Fort of New Jersey and Charles C. Smith, members of the commission sent by President Wilson to Santo Domingo to bring about peace, today called on the President and the Secretary of State. At the State Department Mr. Fort, as Chairman of the commission, left a written memorandum with Mr. Bryan.

In conversation with Mr. Wilson and Mr. Bryan Mr. Fort spoke hopefully of the results of the recent elections and of the spirit in which the President's plan for American observers at the polls had been received.

According to Mr. Fort, Jimenez's election seemed to give general satisfaction, and there was nothing to indicate that the defeated factions would resort to arms.

CANADIAN SHIP IN BATTLE?

French Cruiser Said to Have Rescued Rainbow from Germans.

Special to The New York Times.

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 24.—The little Canadian gunboat Rainbow, so a story current here goes, met the enemy out in the Pacific, off the Oregon coast, and escaped only "by the skin of her teeth" and the fortunate reinforcement of a French cruiser.

The Rainbow, according to the story, met the Leipsig and the Nurnberg and pluckily put up a stiff battle against them, although the odds were much against her. She was getting far the worst of it when the French cruiser Montcalm appeared. The Germans, after firing a few shots, sailed off in the face of the Frenchman's superior armament.

So effective was the German fire that the little Rainbow was completely disabled. The Montcalm towed her to the Canadian naval base at Esquimalt. A strict censorship bars any news of the engagement.

SHOOK DYING SPY'S HAND.

Officer in Charge of Firing Squad Granted Lody's Request.

An Englishman who recently returned to this country, yesterday told the following story concerning the shooting of the German spy Lody.

When Lody was about to be shot in the Tower of London, he said to the Lieutenant in charge of the firing squad of eight men:

"I suppose you won't shake hands with a spy?"

The officer, a relative of the man telling the story, replied:

And he did so.

AMBASSADOR VAN DYKE HERE

He Says Europeans Are Convinced America Is Fair.

Dr. Henry Van Dyke, United States Ambassador to the Netherlands, rereturned yesterday on the Holland-America liner Rotterdam, from his post at the Hague, for a rest after four months hard work dealing with the American refugees who flooded Holland after the outbreak or war.

"I have really come over to New York to get my eyes patched up," the Ambassador said, "and after that is done I shall return as quickly as possible to my post at The Hague and continue to work for world peace in the spirit of our President's declarations."

"What is the position of Holland?" he was asked.

"It is absolutely unchanged since the beginning," Ambassador Van Dyke replied. "Neutral, firm, and friendly. The kindness of Holland to American fugitives and to the poor Belgian refugees is beyond praise. In the minds of all reasonable people I believe America's standing is better than ever, because of our attitude in this war. The people of Europe believe us to be fair, and they know that we will be generous to give aid in the spirit of humanity. The work done by the American Relief Commission in Belgium to save threatened famine is ample proof of this."

SAYS SHE MADE GIRL BEG.

Wife of Former Government Official Held for Impairing Child's Morals.

A woman who said she was Mrs. Demetrius Demetriade of 543 West 156th Street, the wife of a former Deputy Consul General for the United States in Constantinople, was arrested last night at 160th Street and Broadway and charged with impairing the morals of a minor in that she forced her young niece, Fervonia Alexander, to beg in the neighborhood. The child was charged with being a juvenile delinquent.

Charles O'Hara of 545 West 160th Street caused the arrests. He told the police that the child had begged at his home and that, after giving her 25 cents, he had followed and seen her turn the money over to the woman. Mrs. Demetriade's husband appeared when she was arraigned in the Women's Night Court and insisted that she was not responsible and that the child had not begged. The woman also denied the charge against her. The woman was held for further examination and the child was sent to the Children's Society.

"A Little Bit of All Right!"

Today a Splendid Collection Of Men's Sample Overcoats From Robinson & Cleaver

Regent Street, London

At Half Price or Near It

If your Thanksgiving reunion is to be out in the country, you will thank us for timing this unusual sale for the very day before the holiday, and in real winter weather.

The Overcoats are the American samples used in securing this season's business by this famous London firm of merchants.

They are just what you would expect English Overcoats to be—splendidly soft, thick and warm as to material, though not burdensome. Cut on smart and roomy lines—single and double breasted, buttoning through or fly front, and plenty of typical Great Coats for the roughest weather.

Colorings are rich brown, gray and fancy mixtures—"Toggy" to the last degree.

Many of the Coats still bear the custom house tags, and all are British in every detail.

Besides this special sample lot there is a group of Foreign Overcoats in broken assortments from our regular stock, at the same reduced prices. Fourth Floor

The Gift Trappers

A veritable Holiday Club for people who are home for Thanksgiving—thinking of Christmas.

Hundreds of unusual, individual suggestions for those who respond to the spirit of sport — who feel a healthy thrill of optimism at the flash of a skate.

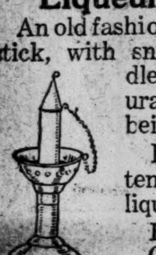
For snow sports and for the cosey den; for the fisherman and the bon vivant; for the big game hunter and the man who likes the latest after-dinner game from abroad.

The Nightcap Liqueur Candle

An old fashioned iron candlestick, with snuffer—the candle, of very natural appearance, being of glass. Holds the contents of a small liqueur bottle. Price, $2.50. One of a number of unusual den and country house novelties.



After-Dinner Golf

A new game which brings to the parlor the zest of the links. Played with your own mashie and putter—an approaching and putting game filled with uncertainty—presenting bunker, hazards and all the usual difficulties. Price, $3.50.

Luncheon Kit for Two

Price $8

Including two Thermos bottles, large sandwich case and cutlery for two people—all in a patent leather case. The best luncheon kit we have ever seen at the price. Others up to $120.

Abercrombie & Fitch Gift Suggestions

The "Wise Old Owl" liqueur receptacle; brass inlaid cigar and cigarette boxes; En Tout Cas cigar trays; Tantalus sets; Monte Carlo game tables; miniature mahogany clocks; country house porch and hall gongs; Jeffery's big game rifles; shotguns; air rifles; skates and skate sails; tobacco jars with lock and key; sporting jewelry.

POINT TO A MURDER HID BY CORONER'S AID

BODY QUICKLY CREMATED

Dr. Norris and Dr. Symmers Testify Victim Was Not a Suicide, as Certificate Declared.

Evidence to show that Eugene Rochette, found dead of a bullet wound at the Hotel Delaware, in Third Avenue, on March 9 last, was murdered and that the crime was covered up either with intent or by the inefficiency of the Coroner's office was produced yesterday at the investigation of the Coroner system by Commissioner of Accounts Leonard M. Wallstein.

In order to put the case on the public records, Mr. Wallstein read from testimony given at a private hearing by Dr. Charles Norris, Director of Laboratories at Bellevue Hospital, and Dr. Douglas Symmers, pathologist of Bellevue Medical College. Dr. Timothy D. Lehane, the Coroner's physician on the case, signed the death certificate "bullet wound on head; suicide," and permitted the cremation of the body the following day without an autopsy.

Dr. Norris and Dr. Symmers, under oath, said that there were no evidences of powder burns and that the indications were that the bullet which killed Rochette had been fired from a distance. In their opinion, they said, the wound was not self-inflicted, and they further swore that their efforts to interest the District Attorney in the case were frustrated by the fact that the body had been cremated.

When this evidence was introduced Dr. George Burgess Magrath, medical examiner of Boston, was on the stand. Mr. Wallstein explained the circumstances to him, and called attention to the fact that the hotel mentioned was under police surveillance.

"I should say," said Dr. Magrath, in reply to a question, "that the diagnosis of the Coroner's physician was not supported by evidence."

Investigate Gift to Dr. Weston.

Dr. Israel L. Feinberg, President of the Manhatan Board of Coroners, who attended the session, announced that he would confer with the other Coroners today in connection with the charge made by Robert A. Bowler that Coroner's Physician Albert T. Weston accepted a "gift" of $100 in connection with the death of Charles Lee Bowler, a Christian Scientist, on Feb. 9, 1910. The charge, said Dr. Feinberg, demanded immediate attention.

In the Supreme Court, Justice Pendleton adjudged Dr. Bodog Beck in contempt of court for refusing to answer questions by Mr. Wallstein in connection with the death on Nov. 6, 1913, of Isaac Weingart at his home, 285 Central Park West.

Mr. Weingart was found dead in a bathtub at his home and Coroner Herman Hellenstin, who was officially on the case, with Coroner's Physician Lehane, gave a verdict of death due to natural causes. Weingart was insured for $310,000, and there was a clause in the policy which made it void if he committed suicide.

Dr. Beck had been called by the Weingart family and it was asserted in the papers asking that he be held in contempt that he had described the case to Coroner Hellenstein as "a very doubtful and important" one. It was further said that he had talked with Coroner Hellenstein about the case at the Ritz-Carlton, the McAlpin, and elsewhere. He refused to answer the questions put by Mr. Wallstein on the ground that the relation of physician and patient existing between himself and the deceased made it impossible for him to testify. Justice Pendleton decided that no such relationship had at any time existed in the case as Dr. Beck was not called until after Weingart's death. The facts in the case, he said, could not be suppressed.

Coroner Hellenstein, who was found to be in contempt by Justice Newburger for refusing to answer questions, has been served with a subpoena by Commissioner Wallstein and will be recalled this morning at 10:30 o'clock.

Cites Richeson-Linnell Murder.

Dr. Magrath was on the stand most of the time yesterday. He testified that in many cases which were cited by Mr. Wallstein the Coroner's system here had been proved inefficient. The case of the murder of Avis Linnell by the Rev. Clarence Richeson was brought up as typical in which the alleged slipshod methods here might have allowed the guilty person to escape. Of this case Dr. Magrath said:

> It occasionally happens that the first hint of the fact that in connection with a death an unlawful act has been committed is obtained from the Medical Examiner's examination. As a case in point may be mentioned the recent tragedy in which the young woman, Avis Linnell, came to her death as the result of the homicidal administration of poison by a clergyman named Richeson.
> In this instance notice of the death was given to the Medical Examiner by a physician called into a students' boarding house because the young girl had died suddenly.
>
> There was no primary suspicion of foul play, and it was only when the post mortem examination disclosed a condition in the stomach suggesting poisoning by potassium cyanide that death from causes other than natural was suggested.
>
> The further discovery of a physical condition compatible with suicide strongly suggested this motive of death, and only the care and diligence of Medical Examiner Leary, who had charge of the case, led to a further investigation by the police resulting in the conviction of Richeson.

How Infanticide Is Made Easy.

The testimony of Dr. Magrath also went to back up the assertion of other experts that infanticide could be carried on here with impunity. He was told that in 442 cases in the past four years the Coroner's physicians had given infantile convulsions as the cause of death without autopsy. Such certificates, he said, should not be accepted as the death in many cases, might have been due to poison, a condition difficult to determine without a most thorough examination and investigation. Gastro entritis as a cause of death, without autopsy, he said, was not sufficient, as the death in those cases might have been due to poison. In many of the cases cited, he said, autopsies would be held under the Massachusetts system.

Testimony to show that in some instances the inquest by a Coroner's jury was a farce was given by Edward A. Moree, Assistant Secretary of the State Charities Aid Association. He served as a juror, he said, in the case of Charles Lang, who died in May, 1911, from blood poisoning, the result of an injury sustained while employed at the Johnson Iron Works. He thought some of the facts were not being brought out, and asked permission to question Merritt W. Alley, one of the witnesses. Coroner A. F. Schwennecke granted the permission, but soon stopped the questioning, and directed the jury to bring in a verdict of palpable carelessness on the part of the dead man. He protested, Moree said, and was held in contempt of court. Seven of the jurymen brought in a verdict censuring the company and five blamed the employe. The Coroner, he said, held that the verdict was against the evidence and set it aside.

Moree said he again protested and was fined $100 for contempt of court and was locked up. Five hours later he offered an apology, and was released. He filed a suit for $10,000 damages against the Coroner for false imprisonment, but the Coroner died while it was in the courts.

FINED FOR ANNOYING GIRL.

Chicago Man Arrested When He Encountered Her Father.

A tall, well-dressed man of 35, who described himself as Albert E. Robbins, a manufacturer of metals, living at 324 State Street, Chicago, was fined $10 last night by Magistrate Simms in the Men's Night Court for annoying 16-year old Louisa Banks as she was hurrying to her home at 605 Amsterdam Avenue early in the evening. The girl was returning from an errand, when she says a man said to her as he tipped his hat:

"Hello, girlie, whither bound?"

She quickened her pace, she said, but could not shake off her follower. When she got back to her home she found her father, Robert Banks, on the doorstep.

"There's a man following me," she told him, flinging herself into his arms. Mr. Banks stepped aside into the shadow and the next instant Robbins darted up the steps.

In court the man told Magistrate Simms that he had stepped into a café and "had a few drinks," and that he didn't remember exactly what he did after that. Magistrate Simms imposed a ten-dollar fine, declaring that he would have been more severe with Robbins if the latter had not admitted that he had been drinking. The prisoner, who said he was stopping at the Hotel Knickerbocker, paid the fine and left the court smiling. At the Hotel Knickerbocker it was said that no one by the name of Albert E. Robbins was registered there. A wire from Chicago also said there was no Albert E. Robbins known in that city.

FRIEDMAN DOCTOR HELD.

Sturm Charged with Assaulting Patient Who Demanded Deposit.

Dr. Maurice Sturm, 36 years old, of 237 West Seventy-fourth Street was arrested and locked up in the West Sixty-eighth Street Police Station last night, charged with felonious assault, on a complaint brought by Miss Laura Baird of 230 West Seventy-ninth Street.

Miss Baird told the police that she had been taking the Friedman cure from Dr. Sturm, and had deposited $20,000 worth of jewels with him to guarantee payment. On being discharged he refused to return the jewels, and she went last night to ask him for them. In the argument that ensued she alleges that Dr. Sturm threw a cut-glass decanter at her, breaking her nose and cutting her face.

She went from the doctor's office to Dr. Stern's office at 116 West Forty-fifth Street, who treated her injuries. Then she made the complaint and had Dr. Sturm arrested. The detectives said that the office was wrecked. Dr. Sturm said last night that he would not return Miss Baird's jewels until he was paid in full for the treatment he said she had received.

SHE SLAPPED HER ANNOYER.

Then Mrs. Millar Handed Him Over to a Policeman.

Mrs. Jeannette Millar of 220 East Twenty-fifth Street was sitting with her 9-year-old son, Robert, at a moving-picture show in the Jefferson Theatre, 114 East Fourteenth Street, last night, when she felt a tug at her skirt. When it was repeated she slapped the face of the man sitting next to her.

Clinging to her annoyer, Mrs. Millar forced her way to the door and turned him over to Policeman Coughlan of the East Thirty-fifth Street Station. He was taken to the Men's Night Court, where he told Magistrate Simms that he was Isidore Levine of 864 Cauldwell Avenue, the Bronx, and said he was out of work and had been sitting in the theatre since early in the afternoon. He was only reaching for his hat, he said, when Mrs. Millar slapped him.

Mrs. Millar displayed a bag filled with money and jewels worth $600, which she said she had with her. Levine was fined $10, and when he could not pay he was sent to the Workhouse for ten days.

GRIEVING MOTHER FORGIVES

Touched by Emotion of Autoist Whose Car Killed Child.

While she was crossing East Ninety-second Street, at Skidmore Lane, Canarsie, last evening to visit her grandmother, Anna Van Houten, nine years old, daughter of Mrs. George Van Houten of 1,123 East Ninety-second Street, was run down by an automobile driven by William L. Earl, a lumber salesman of 473 Macon Street.

Her sister, Mary, 8 years old, who witnessed the accident, ran to tell their mother, and meantime Anna was carried to the home of Dr. Charles L. Thall, just across the street. The mother got there in time to see her daughter alive. The child died in her arms.

In the automobile with Mr. Earl was his brother. They were so deeply affected that Mrs. Van Houten asked the police not to take any action, and they were released. She said that her children were members of the choir of Grace Methodist Church.

Head of Family Testifies That Action Against His Brother Howard Is in Good Faith.

MRS. H. GOULD INTERVENES

She Asserts That Foreclosure Suit Is a Conspiracy to Take Property from Her.

Mrs. Katherine Clemmons Gould made a move on her own account yesterday in the suit begun by George J. Gould against his brother Howard for a foreclosure sale of the property on the southeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Seventy-third Street because the interest on a tax lien of $54,609, amounting to $17.82, was in default. Through her counsel, Arthur J. Baldwin, she asked Supreme Court Justice Newburger for permission to frame the issues in the suit.

When Mrs. Gould got a legal separation from her husband, Howard Gould, in 1909, with $3,000 a month allimony, the order also provided that her dower rights in the Fifth Avenue property should stay intact. The property is worth about $800,000. Mrs. Gould was made a defendant in the suit and she answered it by saying that the action was due to a conspiracy between her husband and his brother George to effect a transfer of the property so as to destroy her dower rights. Mr. Baldwin told the court that the whole proceeding was just a game of freeze-out and that the Goulds were trying to sell the property in a time of business depression so that it would fall into the hands of George Gould eventually.

"But we will show on the trial," he said, "that George Gould paid the $5,000 worth of back taxes with money furnished by Howard. It is merely a Gould family conspiracy to deprive Mrs. Katherine C. Gould of her dower interest in that valuable property. The best proof that it is a conspiracy is that Howard Gould never defended the suit. I represent Mrs. Gould."

Robert B. Knowles, who represented George Gould, said that the fact that Howard Gould was in default did not concern the plaintiff. The papers said that counsel for the plaintiff had agreed to carry the arrears of taxation at the rate of one-fourth of 1 per cent. Justice Newburger asked if that wasn't a pretty low rate considering that purchasers of tax liens usually got from 10 to 20 per cent. Mr. Knowles offered no explanation. Then Mr. Baldwin read into the record a bit of the testimony given by George J. Gould in an examination before trial. On that occasion Mr. Gould was asked if he would have loaned his brother Howard $50,000 if he had been asked to do so.

"I have done so," he replied.

"Well, did you ever ask your brother for the payment of $17.82?"

"Never beyond my complaint," Mr. Gould answered.

"Now, Mr. Gould," was the next question, "it was not for the $17.82 that you brought this action, was it?"

"Well, I would be glad to have my money returned to me," replied Mr. Gould. "It is worth something to me."

"Worth something to you? But the money wasn't worth much to you when you bid $50,000 at a quarter of 1 per cent., was it?"

"Well, I didn't fix the rate. My attorney, Mr. Hack, did that."

"So you want us to understand, Mr. Gould, that it was really for the $17.82 that you brought this action, that you wanted your interest money?"

"Yes."

Decision was reserved.

ROBBED OF V.C., HE ASSERTS

British Captain Accuses Three Men of Hold-Up in Saloon.

Capt. Samuel C. Gale of the British Army, who has been buying horses in this country for the British Government, appeared in the West Side Court yesterday and complained that with his jockey, Joseph F. Schweiger, he had been held up in a saloon at Sixty-sixth Street and Broadway and robbed of his Victoria Cross, won in the Boer war; a gold watch and chain, and $22. He charged Joseph Burns of 216 West 116th Street, Joseph Pyke of 200 West Sixty-second Street, and Joseph Smith, a chauffeur of 120 West Sixty-fifth Street, with assault and robbery. Magistrate Corrigan held them in $4,000 each for examination today.

The Captain said that he and Schweiger were in the saloon early yesterday when the four men entered. One of them struck the jockey on the head with a blackjack, while another held up the complainant with a revolver and robbed him, he said. Capt. Gale and Schweiger followed them to the street, shouting, and Detectives Madigan and Campbell captured three men, while a fourth escaped with the stolen articles.

W. SEWARD WEBB VERY ILL.

Special to The New York Times.

BURLINGTON, Vt., Nov. 24.—It became known today that Dr. W. Seward Webb, brother-in-law of William K. Vanderbilt, had been dangerously ill at his home in Shelburne Farms. He was more comfortable tonight, however, and was strong enough to be made acquainted with the outcome of his recent suit with Henry L. Sprague, the New York attorney, to whom judgment was given for $240,000. Dr. Webb expressed his determination to carry the case to the Court of Appeals.

"I did nothing dishonest, and I will win my case," were his words.

Dr. Webb was taken ill with a violent pain in his side while attending a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Pullman Company and was rushed to his home in Shelburne Farms. The trouble puzzled the specialists summoned, and they thought an operation would be necessary, but on account of Dr. Webb's weakened condition they could not perform it. As nearly as could be determined tonight the trouble seemed to be enlargement of the liver with complications.

TRAFFIC CLUB ELECTION.

W. C. Hope Defeats W. L. Banham for President.

An informal dinner was given last night by the Traffic Club of New York at the Hotel Astor to W. G. Besler, President of the Central Railroad of New Jersey. He made a short address. R. H. Wallace, the retiring President, presided.

The election of officers was held, and for the first time in the history of the club there was a contest. W. C. Hope, General Passenger Agent of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, was elected President, getting 351 votes to 149 cast for W. J. L. Banham, Traffic Manager of the Otis Elevator Company. Other officers elected were:

Vice Presidents—T. A. Gantt, W. C. Connor, Jr., T. T. Harkrader, R. S. Stubbs, W. N. Agnew; Treasurer—Frank C. Earle; Secretary—C. A. Swope; Governors—W. C. Bates, W. S. Cowie, W. A. Schumacher.

PRESIDENT OFF TO REST.

Will Spend Thanksgiving Day with His Daughter, Mrs. Sayre.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—President Wilson worked at the executive offices tonight until late, preparatory to his departure at midnight for Williamstown, Mass., where he will spend Thanksgiving Day with his daughter, Mrs. Francis B. Sayre. His train will arrive at Williamstown tomorrow afternoon in time for the President to attend a dinner at his daughter's home, commemorating the first anniversary of her marriage.

Mr. Wilson saw several official callers tonight and gave his attention to numerous papers requiring his signature, as he desired to clear away all pending business at his offices before his departure.

Dr. Grayson, the President's personal physician, believes Mr. Wilson will be benefited by outdoor exercise despite the cold in Massachusetts, and saw to it that golf clubs formed a part of the Presidential baggage.

PRESIDENT BEATS GRAYSON.

Wins Golf Game, Although He Has a Sore Finger.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—President Wilson, with a cut finger, yesterday afternoon defeated Dr. Grayson, his medical aid, in a good game of golf. The President, who shaves himself every day, let the razor slip yesterday morning and cut the fourth finger of his left hand. Dr. Grayson, knowing of the accident, professed deep sympathy for the President in the defeat he foresaw for him in the coming game. This ironical sympathy put the President on his mettle and made him win.

"Well, all I can say," commented Dr. Grayson, "is that the President's victory shows me a better surgeon than golfer."

ISADORA DUNCAN ARRIVES.

Dancer Will Raise Funds for Children of Paris Artists.

Mme. Isadora Duncan, the classic dancer, arrived yesterday from Paris on the Cunarder Franconia with the object of raising funds for the children of poor artists in Paris who have been stripped of their livelihood by the war.

"It is impossible for those who have not been there recently to realize the poverty there is in Paris," said the dancer. "I wish to get money for those who are not relieved in the ordinary way by charities and who cannot plead for themselves.

"Not only the children of stage people but families of musicians, are in need. These artists have never saved money. To them the sun was always shining, and they gave liberally to their poorer brethren. The Secretary of the Ecole des Beaux Arts has been doing something for these people who are in need."

Edgell-Aldrich Wedding Plans.

NEWPORT, R. I., Nov. 24.—At the marriage of Miss Elsie Aldrich, daughter of ex-Senator and Mrs. Nelson W. Aldrich, to Stephen Maurice Edgell of Newport, N. H., at the residence of the bride's parents in Warwick Neck, R. I., on Dec. 10, there will be no bridesmaids, but she will be attended by her niece, Miss Abby Rockefeller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., as flower girl, with her nephews, Lawrence Rockefeller and Nelson W. Aldrich 2d, son of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Aldrich, as pages. Horace Havemeyer of New York will be best man.

NEW HAVEN PLEAS MONDAY.

Argument on Indictments of William Rockefeller and Others.

Argument on the pleas in abatement of the indictments found against William Rockefeller, Robert W. Taft, Charles F. Brooker, William Skinner, and James S. Elton for having conspired with a number of others to monopolize the traffic facilities of New England, will be heard in the Federal District Court by Judge Sessions next Monday morning. Counsel for all the twenty-one defendants named in the indictment were present yesterday before Judge Sessions, and District Attorney Marshall and Assistant United States Attorney General Swacker conferred with them.

It was agreed that as the pleas in abatement filed by these defendants, if upheld, would invalidate the indictment against all of the twenty-one, it was better to have the point raised by Mr. Rockefeller and his associates decided at once. If this is decided against the defendants, then the court will hear on Dec. 4 arguments on the pleas in bar presented by John L. Billard and Thomas De Witt Cuyler, who assert that they have gained immunity by the testimony that they have already given to the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Federal Grand Jury with reference to New Haven affairs.

This will only affect the status of Mr. Billard and Mr. Cuyler, and no arrangement has yet been reached for the hearing of the argument on the demurrers filed by Crim & Wemple for A. Heaton Robertson and James S. Hemmingway.

J. BORDEN HARRIMAN BETTER

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—J. Borden Harriman, the retired banker, who is seriously ill here at his residence on H Street, was reported slightly improved today. With him are Mrs. Harriman, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Mr. Harriman's sister, and his brothers, Oliver and J. Lowe Harriman. Mr. Harriman's condition has recently been considerably worse since his coming to Washington ten days ago from his country home at Mount Kisco, N. Y.

Hopes were expressed today, however, that his improvement within the last few hours might develop into a steady convalescence.

France Repatriates 20,000 Germans.

The return of 20,000 German subjects from France, through the mediation of the Red Cross, is reported in the Berliner Tageblatt of Oct. 28. The paper says that these Germans—men, women, and children, though chiefly women and children—were permited by the French Government to return to a frontier town of Baden, where they will be taken care of by the Baden Red Cross Society. The sum of 20,000 marks ($5,000) was appropriated for this purpose by the National Red Cross of Germany and a like sum by the Red Cross of Baden.

FINDS MANY THEFTS DUE TO LACK OF WORK

POLICE WILL HELP SOLVE IT

By Sending In Reports of Cases of Sickness and Distress—Hope to Lessen Boy Crime.

In discussing the problem of unemployment from the police standpoint, Police Commissioner Arthur Woods said last night that he had learned recently of thefts in which the evidence indicated that the prisoners had been driven to crime by their inability to get work.

The Commissioner made this statement in a speech he delivered in the Academy of Medicine to the members of the Conference on Hospital Social Service. He told of police conditions, and said that policemen as a body would compare favorably with any other body of citizens in New York.

"The problem of unemployment," said the Commissioner, "is one which, so far as I can see now, we have not treated in a thoroughgoing way. It is a problem that must be reckoned with and which must be diagnosed much as we diagnose tuberculosis or insanity. In recent days we have arrested here in New York numbers of men who said they had been driven to theft because their families had nothing to eat, and the appearance of these unfortunates indicated that they were telling the truth. The situation is, indeed, a serious one, and every possible effort should be made to solve it. What can the police do in attacking this problem? I believe they can do much, and that they will do it not only well but with a will.

"You should remember that the faults of the police are the faults of the citizens at large rather than of themselves. You give them a mass of laws and ordinances to enforce that no human being could enforce to the satisfaction of many persons at a time. As a whole, the police are as decent and upright a body of citizens as the rest of us, to put it modestly.

"It costs New York about $17,500,000 a year to maintain its police force, and you have a right to expect much of that force. They can and do give good service in keeping down crime and in regulating traffic. They can be the eyes and ears of the community. They can bring to Headquarters the records of all cases of unemployment, sickness, and distress. They can make it possible for us to know of conditions that we should not permit to exist. I think that I can promise that the police can give this service to New York. Only this morning I asked a Captain what he did when a deserving case of unemployment was brought to his attention. He answered: 'I try to get him in a job, and if I can't do it I take up a collection to help him along.'

"The majority of criminals in New York are boys from 12 years up. The police are now trying to find out what it is that makes criminals of these children. In other words the police are trying to find a way to prevent the manufacture of criminals.

"New York has the right to expect genuine service in broad ways from the police. But we shall never do away with crime. There will continue to be an occasional bomb or perhaps a Black Hand outrage. The police deserve your support, your kindly consideration, your strong backing if you feel that they are honest in their efforts to serve the public, and they usually are."

WIFE SUES NANCE GWYNNE.

Mrs. Plunkett, Suing for Alienation, Tells of Her Prayer.

Mrs. Sue S. Plunkett, wife of Joseph L. Plunkett, the theatrical manager, was allowed alimony of $30 a week and $250 counsel fees yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Newburger, pending the trial of her suit for separation. Mrs. Plunkett accused her husband of being too friendly with Nance Gwynne, the actress, and in an affidavit she states:

"In April of this year I found in my husband's pocket a leather card case, on which was engraved: 'God bless Joe Plunkett and make me a good actress for his sake.'"

Mrs. Plunkett further says that it was only after Nance Gwynne came into her husband's life that he treated her rudely. Mrs. Plunkett has also begun a suit against Miss Gwynne for damages for alienating Mr. Plunkett's affections, and Mr. Plunkett has begun suit against Ralph Baggs for alienating the affections of his wife.

GRAND JURY PLAGIARIZED.

Commissioner Kingsbury Says Its Report Was Not Original.

Mayor Mitchel sent a letter yesterday to Judge Charles C. Nott of General Sessions asking him to find out who gave out for publication a copy of the August Grand Jury's presentment against the Department of Charities the same day it was given to Judge Nott and two days before it was given to Charities Commissioner Kingsbury; to find out who drafted the presentment and if the Jury had legal evidence before it, and requesting the Judge to expunge it from the records of the court.

With his letter the Mayor inclosed a long letter from Commissioner Kingsbury, which is a reply to the Grand Jury presentment and which states among other things that the Grand Jury based its criticisms on a report of the State Board of Charities of Aug. 11, although the same board in a report issued on Oct. 6 admitted that many of the abuses to which it had called attention in the earlier report had been remedied.

"The Grand Jury, after all," Commissioner Kingsbury stated in his reply, "was not talking about what it had seen, but about what somebody else had seen. It plagiarized shamelessly a report by the Inspector of the State Board of Charities and then passed it off as the result of their own 'careful investigation,' without even bothering to bring it up to date."

The Commissioner intimated that former Assistant District Attorney Frank Moss might throw some light on the matter.

As soon as he received Commissioner Kingsbury's letter the Mayor wrote the Commissioner that his answer to the Grand Jury's criticisms was conclusive and entirely satisfactory to him. In his letter the Mayor said in part:

"The whole matter merely shows to what length of misrepresentation otherwise respectable citizens will go when they have prejudices or special interests to serve. I am very glad that some members of the August Grand Jury refused to lend themselves to this thing and repudiated the presentment of the majority."

SCOUT SHIPS AID KARLSRUHE

Three Captured Vessels Fitted Out as Improvised Cruisers.

Capt. Neil Pilcher, who arrived yesterday on the Cunarder Franconia to take command of the steamship Indraghiri, said that the German cruiser Karlsruhe now has three armed scout vessels to assist her in capturing British merchantmen.

"I had command of the Indrani," he continued, "which was seized by the Karlsruhe Sept. 17, and after taking out her cargo they put on six four-inch guns and converted her into a scout ship. The steamship Condor, belonging to W. R. Grace & Sons, was served in the same way. The Vandyck, which was captured on Oct. 26, will be used for the same purpose, I feel confident, and the other ships will be destroyed.

"The seventy-five Chinese firemen and sailors on the Indrani were kept there by the Germans and officers and engineers sent from the Karlsruhe to take charge. We were thirty-five days on board the Creffield before the Captain got orders to land us at Teneriffe. Some of the 419 Europeans on the steamship had been there fifty-two days since their ship was captured."

RAIN CHECKS FOREST FIRES.

City of Little Rock, However, Is Still Threatened by Arkansas Blaze.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov. 24.—Rain that began falling in Southwestern Arkansas, portions of Oklahoma and Louisiana, has checked the great forest fires that prevailed in those districts. Today it was believed the greatest damage from the fires, except around Little Rock, was over. Here, however, the greatest apprehension for the safety of the city prevailed. The fires in this vicinity had approached to within four miles of the business district today.

River traffic at Helena still is endangered by the smoke which overhangs the stream. The steamer Kate Adams, the largest boat on the Mississippi, reported lost in the fog last night, reached Helena fourteen hours behind schedule. The Captain said he had proceeded slowly because he feared a collision.

Fifty-seven convicts were in peril when the rock crusher plant, just a mile west of the new State Capitol, caught fire. The men, who were housed in a stockade near the burning structure, were hurriedly formed in lines and taken to safety. When it was seen that the blaze could be kept from the stockade they were taken back to their quarters. The fire caused a loss estimated at $50,000.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 24.—A heavy blanket of smoke, believed to have come from the forest fires of Arkansas or Southeastern Missouri, hung over the city this afternoon and tonight settled into a dense fog.

Thousands of persons were driven out doors by the smoke which penetrated homes, factories, and office buildings. Conditions on the streets were almost as stifling. Street car and vehicle traffic was reduced to a minimum speed because of the danger of collisions

CRIMINAL CASE TEST OF ALIEN LABOR ACT

A FORMAL ARREST TODAY

Contractors Prove That American Labor Is Not to be Had—No $3 Jobs Here.

After a day of conference among Chairman McCall of the Public Service Commission, Acting District Attorney Delehanty, counsel for the commission, and Edward M. Grout, counsel for the General Contractors' Association, it was decided last night that a criminal case to test the constitutionality of the alien labor law should be begun today. It is believed that a final ruling by the Court of Appeals may be had within twenty days.

A public work contractor, either on the subway or on a city or State job, will be arraigned directly in Special Sessions and committed. He will apply for a writ of habeas corpus to a Justice in Special Term of the Supreme Court, where it will be argued that the statute is unconstitutional, and it is hoped to hurry the appeal to a final decision within three weeks.

Chairman McCall thought yesterday that the commission would get the aid of labor unions to test the law, as it was to everybody's advantage to know where the contractors and their employes stood.

Criminal proceedings, it was pointed out yesterday, would avoid the delay to a civil suit arising from a provision of the city charter that the city shall have thirty days' notice of any proceeding against it.

It has not been announced against whom the proceedings are to be taken, but at least one contractor is ready to offer himself. C. A. Crane, Secretary of the General Contractors' Association, received on Monday from Borough President Marks a contract for a catch basin. There he is employing two Italians, one Greek, and one Irishman.

Reports from contractors as to their success in obtaining citizens to replace aliens were not hopeful. One contractor received applications from 500 men, and selected 125 as possibly able to do pick and shovel work. Before the end of the first hour 65 of them had quit.

Contractors criticised yesterday the statement that the Municipal Employment Bureau was about to advertise for men for laboring work at $3 a day. It was enough to bring every unemployed man in the country to this city, they said. For such labor $3 has never been paid in this city, and never would be, and the offer would only add to the difficulty of the unemployed.

ARMOR PATENTS EXPIRED.

Government Need Not Fear Infringement if It Will Build Own Plant.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 24.—The United States, if it decides to build its own armor plant, may use the Harvey or any other process of manufacture without fear of prosecution for infringement of patent, according to testimony given here today before the Congressional committee apointed to investigate the feasibility of the Government erecting its own armor plate mills.

"I know of no patents on armor plate that have not expired," said A. C. Dinkey, President of the Carnegie Steel Company, testifying before the committee. Mr. Dinkey was questioned as to the probable cost of a plant large enough to meet the demands of the Government, but asked to be allowed to answer the question later.

James J. Campbell, Howard Watson, and L. B. Custer, operating officials of the armor plate department of the Carnegie Company, were sworn but not questioned, Senator Tillman explaining that the oath would serve for their answers to questions that would be mailed to them from Washington after the committee had inspected the mills at Midvale and Bethlehem, Penn.

LIGHT ON BIBLE BY WAR.

With Turks Conquered Sacred History Will Be Verified, Says Cobern.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 24.—"If the Turkish Government ever falls into the hands of the Christians all biblical history will be authenticated," said Dr. C. M. Cobern, the archaeologist, today at the World's Bible Conference.

Dr. Cobern who with a party of archaeologists recently discovered and made the first successful passage through Kadish Barnea, described graphically the details of his journey. Kadish Barnea, the oasis near which the Israelites encamped for thirty-seven years and where Moses gave his laws, has been for many years the centre of dispute between believers and skeptics.

Much difficulty and adventure attended Dr. Cobern's discovery.

"The Mohammedans," he said, "believing our curiosity to be evidence of sacrilege, were our most formidable opponents."

Dr. Cobern says he discovered not only the identical spot where the Bible says the Israelites camped, but also the rock from which water sprung when Moses struck it with his rod. He found also evidences of agricultural pursuits, he declared, which disproved conclusively the assertion of the skeptics that Moses gave no agricultural legislation.

Biblical miracles the lecturer explained as mere natural phenomena, back of which was the Supreme Divine Power.

"Some people," he said, "are still such fools as to believe that God works through miracles and not through nature."

REACHES 30, GETS $1,000,000

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., Nov. 24.—Reaching the age of 30 years today, Philip Corbin, Jr., grandson of the late Philip Corbin, founder of the American Hardware Company, received shares worth more than $1,000,000 from his grandfather's estate. Mrs. Lillian Blakeslee Corbin of 39 East Thirty-first Street, New York, his mother, announced that she would not sue the estate as had been reported. Mrs. Corbin, who was in New Britain today, said there was no foundation for the rumor that if she was not cared for in the distribution of the estate of more than $2,000,000 she would sue for her share as the former wife of Charles Corbin, whom she divorced six years ago, and who subsequently married in Massachusetts.

Under the will of Philip Corbin the estate was to be divided into eighty shares and the distribution was to be made by Probate Judge Bernard J. Gaffney when the grandson, Philip, became 30 years old. Philip today received forty shares. Inasmuch as no suit was filed to prevent the distribution it is supposed that the matter was amicably settled by an agreement between Mrs. Corbin and her son.

MINIATURE WAR AT DINNER.

Artillery Decorations on Tables in Honor of Capt. Corey.

A dinner was given by Col. H. H. Rogers, his staff, and other officers of the First Regiment, Field Artillery, last evening at the Army and Navy Club to Capt. John B. W. Corey, U. S. A., detailed here by the War Department as Instructor Inspector, who has been ordered back to service with his command.

A feature of the dinner was the realistic table decorations, which included a battery, men and horses fully equipped, in miniature, with observation station telescope, range finder and telephone communication complete, going into action at one end of the table against a much superior force of advancing infantry and cavalry from the opposite end.

Officers from Binghamton and Syracuse were among those who attended.

CARUSO BUYS PAINTING.

Enrico Caruso dropped into the Knoedler Galleries yesterday afternoon and bought a portrait of Mrs. Gerome Brush, painted by her husband, who has just returned from Europe. The picture was standing on the floor, where it had been temporarily placed, and Caruso happened to see it.

BEATS GIRL WITH IRON BAR.

Robber, Expecting Apartment to be Empty, Attacks Only Occupant.

Miss Gertrude Miller was alone in the apartment of her mother, Mrs. Annie Raymond, on the third floor of 274 Third Avenue, yesterday when a man rapped on the door and asked her to help him measure the floor in the apartment on the second floor, which Mrs. Raymond had been trying to rent. The girl went with him and when her back was turned he struck her on the head with an iron bar.

Miss Miller screamed and the man ran downstairs into the small dry goods store Mrs. Raymond keeps on the ground floor.

He bowled over the mother and escaped into the street. Mrs. Raymond ran upstairs and found her daughter almost senseless.

Mrs. Raymond told the police the man had called earlier to rent the second floor. She and the police believe he thought the Raymond flat empty and meant to rob it. A doctor took several stitches in Miss Miller's head. Last August burglars chloroformed the Raymonds and got $300 worth of jewelry.

LONG ISLAND LOOT FOUND.

Arrests in Greenwich Follow Robberies in Bellport, L. I.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., Nov. 24.—Chief of Police Talbot was informed today that Joseph Pabst, until recently employed here as a teamster by Contractor James Cumiskey, had been arrested at Bellport, L. I., by Sheriff E. H. Bumpstead and locked up on the charge of larceny. It was added that he had been identified by various station agents as the man who had shipped a number of trunks, chests, and handbags to 62 William Street, Greenwich.

Chief Talbot then raided a boarding house at that address and found a large quantity of clothing, clocks, bric-a-brac, sporting articles, hardware, and toilet goods. He arrested Joseph Zaleskia and Michael Dylewsky, also teamsters employed by Cumiskey, who boarded there with Pabst, and charged them with receiving stolen goods.

It is said that Pabst robbed eleven Summer hotels and vacant cottages at Bellport.

Six Famous Paintings of Joan of Arc

By Boutet de Monvel.

A narrative and description written for The New York Times by the deceased artist's son, Roger Boutet de Monvel, will accompany this dramatic picture-story of the triumph and tragedy of one of the greatest heroines of history.

These famous paintings—the property of Senator William A. Clark—will be reproduced by the three-color process on special paper, suitable for framing. One picture occupies a double page, size 13½ x 31 inches; the first page is 15 x 17 inches and the others are 9½ x 21 inches in size. Any one of these pictures if bought at an art store would cost many times the price of the Sunday Times.

IRATE SUFFRAGISTS HISS A. R. CONKLING

Storm of Denunciation and Barking Lap Dog Mark Debate at Tea Party.

"Women in the East Take Tea and in West Take a Little Whisky in Theirs."

Alfred R. Conkling, who explained that he was a relative of Roscoe Conkling, was denounced in a suffrage debate in which he took the negative side, at the Women's Political Union Suffrage Shop, 663 Fifth Avenue, yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Frederick Nathan and Mrs. Norman De R. Whitehouse opposed him.

Mr. Conkling's address was so vigorous that a crowd which filled the big room was in an uproar most of the time that he was speaking. After the regular meeting the audience lingered and questions and answers were flung back and forth amid such excitement that a lap dog in his mistress's arms added his staccato barks to the confusion.

Mrs. Nathan opened the debate with statements about the suffrage countries and States.

"Suffrage is all right in New Zealand and Australia," said Mr. Conkling, "for you find there the flower of the English people."

"Australia was started 200 years ago as a penal colony," Mrs. Whitehouse retorted, and the audience shouted with laughter.

Mr. Conkling said the women had everything they deserved; that he was willing they should vote in city and village elections, but not for President or Governor. He continued:

"I knew a woman down on Long Island who was interested in the school matters. She worked hard and got herself elected on the school board. Then different things happened and now she is abroad. If she should try to get that position again she would be snowed under."

As if they identified the person to whom Mr. Conkling referred, the suffragists greeted the allusion with a storm of hisses, and he added:

"You women who are mothers ought to agree with me in that. I was a schoolmate of hers."

"There is not much difference between the women in the East and those in the West," Mr. Conkling resumed. "They all have two arms and two legs and wear dresses. The women in the East take tea and the women in the West take a little whisky in theirs. A woman has nothing back of her but a skirt and a court train and the man has back of him muscle."

The speaker asked how many of the women would be willing to give up their dower right in their husbands' estates for the sake of the vote.

"Five," he counted as hands went up. "Now, I wrote down before I came here that there would be only three hands up."

There was some confusion, every one talking at once, and Mrs. Inez Boissevain, who was presiding, discovered that the women had not understood and wanted to try again, and hands went up all over the house.

"Dower right has nothing to do with voting," said Mrs. Whitehouse. "The woman needs protection for physical reasons that she may raise her family. We will have the vote and we will have our rights, too."

It was just after the discussion of dower rights that Mr. Conkling warmed to his subject and shouted:

"Women of New York, what do you want? We have given you the earth, we have given you heaven, and being women we cannot give you hell."

The acoustic properties of the room were not good and no one quite knew what a man in the audience who broke in at that point wanted, but Mr. Conkling silenced him, saying:

"This is a woman's tea party. I won't hear any men. You shut up, I tell you, or I'll put you out."

The speaker said women voted in Colorado, but the State was rotten, the press was rotten, and the bad women voted—the police forced them to.

It was too much for a woman with a white set face who was sitting in one of the front seats. She was Mrs. F. H. Ingersoll.

"I am from Colorado," she said, "and I say you are not treating it fairly. If things are rotten it is because they are controlled by men, and they are men in New York City."

"Why, even our friends forget us when they try to represent us," said Mrs. Whitehouse. "There was Mayor Mitchel, who arranged a Baby Week, and whom did he consult? The women in the settlements and the hospitals and others who would know all about it? Not at all. He went to the Chamber of Commerce, Merchants' Association, and the advertising men."

WILLIAM STREET PROTEST.

Subway Contractors Promise Not to Block Thoroughfare.

At the close of a hearing in President McAneny's office, in the City Hall, yesterday, on the William Street subway construction, it was made clear to the realty men and representatives of property owners that the contractors would cause as little disturbance to business conditions as possible.

At the hearing were the members of the Committee on Finance of the Board of Estimate, Travis Whitney, from the Public Service Commission, and representatives from the contractors, Smith, Hauser & McIsaac.

Charles F. Noyes, for the Real Estate Board of New York, said merchants on lower Broadway had been seriously injured by the trestles in front of their show windows. A representative from the contracting firm in reply said that the intention is to carry the gas mains in two eight-inch pipes instead of by one twelve-inch main. If feasible, they would be carried on the street level, but the cross mains would have to be carried on trestles at John, Fulton, and Liberty Streets.

For the Public Service Commission, Mr. Whitney said that some discretion had to be left to the engineers in meeting emergencies, but he and the contractors stated that everything would be done to prevent any more injury than possible. Mr. McAneny said that the interests of the William Street people would receive the most careful consideration.

DUST ANNOYS SHOPKEEPERS

Greeley Square Merchants Have Difficulty Getting Street Sprinkled.

When the high wind got so busy in Greeley Square on Monday, and the dust was blown in great quantities into stores, the Broadway Association started out to find some means of alleviating the nuisance. According to David Robinson, its Secretary, they appealed to the gas company, whose trenches have been partly responsible for the dust, and were told that while the company had authority to dig out dirt, laying the dust was not a part of its responsibility.

When representatives of the association appealed to the city authorities they were told there was no appropriation to cover street sprinkling in that part of the town, and that so many automobilists had objected to sprinkling the asphalt because it made tires skid that it had been abandoned, and that all the sprinkling that was now done on asphalt was paid for by private contributors. Mr. Robinson put the case up to Street Cleaning Commissioner Fetherston, who found that he could treat the trouble as an emergency requiring action, and so a city street sprinkler was working in the neighborhood yesterday.

EXPECT KOBRE DIVIDEND.

Federal Judges and Superintendent of Banks Try to Devise Plans.

Efforts are being made by the Judges of the Federal Court and the Superintendent of Banks to devise a plan providing for an early payment of a dividend to depositors of the closed Kobre banks. Superintendent of Banks Eugene L. Richards conferred yesterday with United States District Court Judges Chatfield and Hand. While the Judges were very much in favor of an immediate dividend, they concluded that they could not decide the question of the payment of a dividend until Justice Chatfield renders his opinion in the case involving the question of Moses Ginsberg's partnership in the Brownsville branch of Max Kobre's bank.

Judge Chatfield's decision is expected within the next few days, and immediately thereafter the Federal Judges and the Superintendent of Banks will again confer.

POLICEMAN LEAVES $22,195.

Frederick W. Martens, Police Captain in charge of the East Eighty-eighth Street Station for a number of years, left a net estate of $22,195 when he died on Feb. 20, 1913, according to the appraisal filed in the State Controller's office yesterday. He owned the houses and lots at 118 and 124 East 176th Street, appraised at $23,000; a lot on the same street, near Morris Avenue, appraised at $3,500; personal effects worth $700, and a claim against the city for salary for $119. All went to the widow, Mrs. Matilda Martens.

The Captain was among those whom Police Commissioner Bingham tried to force out by assigning to night duty exclusively at Police Headquarters.

WHY POMPEIAN OUTSELLS ALL OTHER OLIVE OILS

When POMPEIAN OLIVE OIL entered the American Market, THIS Condition existed:

A 4 oz. Bottle of Olive Oil was called a half-pint, and retailed for 25c.
An 8 oz. Bottle of Olive Oil was called a pint, and retailed for 50c.
A 16 oz. Bottle of Olive Oil was called a quart, and retailed for $1.00

POMPEIAN OLIVE OIL changed that condition. NOW, when you order POMPEIAN OLIVE OIL you get FIRST Quality—a FIXED price, and FULL Measure.

You get a FULL 32 oz. Tin for 1.00

That's why POMPEIAN OLIVE OIL Sales have increased from $3,000 in 1907 to approximately $1,000,000 in 1914.

Pompeian Olive Oil is a High Quality Imported Olive Oil at a Reasonable Price. You cannot buy better Olive Oil at any Price.

When War was declared practically every importer of Olive Oil placed his price on a War Footing. Pompeian Olive Oil Prices were not raised one cent.

MISS ALICE CARY LEAPS FROM A ROOF

PRINTERS SAW HER JUMP

Warning Cry Was Unheeded—She Had Been Ill and Suicide Was Deliberate.

Miss Alice Cary, 58 years old, of Forest Heights, New Rochelle, a daughter of the late A. Claxton Cary, who was for many years prominent in the bank note manufacturing business, committed suicide at 9 o'clock yesterday morning by leaping from the top of the five-story apartment house at 71 Lexington Avenue, between Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth Streets. She had lived in the house up to 1909 when her father died there.

Printers at work in the building at 137 East Twenty-fifth Street, occupied by the Klebold Press, saw a woman walk slowly across the roof. When near the edge she laid down her hand-bag and fur muff, and then took off a fur neckpiece and a long fur-lined blue coat. Then slowly and with difficulty she mounted the brick wall which rises about a foot and a half above the roof. One of the printers shouted from a window opposite the roof and about twelve feet away:

"Get back. You will fall and kill yourself."

As he spoke, the woman threw herself over. Some of the printers ran downstairs and around the corner rang the bell and notified Mrs. Daisy Johnson, who is in charge of the building at 71 Lexington Avenue. They found the woman in the rear terribly crushed. In falling she had struck a window box on the fourth floor in which butter and eggs were kept and carried it down with her. Dr. Avac Cutujias, who has an office on the first floor, was called and he found the woman already dead.

No one in the building could identify the dead woman. None of the tenants could recall answering a ring from the front door, and no one saw Miss Cary in the building. Dr. Cutujias said that, from Miss Cary's appearance she must have been in extreme ill-health, and that it must have taken all the strength she possessed to walk up the five flights to the roof.

Policeman Keppo of the East Twenty-second Street Station found Miss Cary's belongings on the roof. In a purse were $15.60, an open-faced gold watch, and a handkerchief with the initial "A." The coat contained the trademark of S. Casola & Brothers, and the neckpiece and muff had been bought at Altman's. Detectives took the coat to S. Casola & Brothers at 35 West Thirty-sixth Street, where it was found to have been made for Miss Alice Cary of New Rochelle. Dr. Cutujias said Miss Cary had lived at 71 Lexington Avenue until her father's death on Jan. 11, 1909.

Word was sent to A. C. Cary, Jr., at Halcyon Park, New Rochelle, and he identified the body last night at Bellevue Morgue as that of his sister.

The police learned from Mr. Cary that the building at 71 Lexington Avenue was owned by the Cary family. Relatives of Miss Cary at New Rochelle said that Miss Cary had left home early yesterday morning without their knowledge. Her brother said that he knew of no motive for her death.

A. Claxton Cary, father of the dead woman, after shipping as a seaman before the mast, entered the business at Boston of his father, who was owner of the New England Bank Note Company. Later he was interested in the American Bank Note Company, and finally he entered business for himself. When he died five daughters and a son were living.

Hotel Clerk's Disappointment.

Ralph Cowell, room clerk at the Manhattan, whose thoughts have been on a turkey and where it was coming from these last few days, whistled from joy when he opened a letter addressed to him yesterday morning and found a check for $25 drawn in his favor. He glanced at the letter accompanying the check. The writer said he owed the hotel $25, and would Mr. Cowell please indorse the check and turn it over to the cashier.

PATRICK HAD TWO PARDONS.

He Refused ex-Gov. Dix's First Offer to Free Him.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 24.—John T. Milliken, during his discussion of the Goodrich charges today, revealed a remarkable bit of "inside" history in the Patrick case and told for the first time how Patrick was offered a pardon a year before he was released and refused it.

"I will tell you a feature of the Patrick case that has never been printed," said Milliken. "Patrick had an opportunity to be pardoned a full year before he finally was pardoned. He refused to accept it. He would not accept a pardon that he did not consider carried with it vindication.

"Tom Marr, who now holds a reponsible position with me, was in the same prison as Patrick serving a term for forgery. He is an expert bookkeeper. There were irregularities in the prison and Gov. Dix was anxious to stop them. He had a commission appointed, but the members were unable to find them. One of the commissioners asked Marr if he knew anything. Marr said he could find that for which they were looking. He was asked to undertake the work.

"'What is there in it for me?' Marr asked.

He was told he would be pardoned. That did not satisfy Marr, and he demanded that a pardon be issued to another also if he (Marr) could turn up the irregularities.

"The promise was made and Marr made good. Patrick and Marr had become friends. Marr believed in Patrick's innocence. He asked for Patrick's pardon and it was promised. But Patrick refused it. He demanded vindication. I did not know of this until after Marr was out. Then I employed him. I have never regretted it."

Mr. Milliken today displayed two options given on his Golden Cycle mine and which he says will absolutely disprove the story of George C. Goodrich. Goodrich charges that Milliken gave an option on tre Golden Cycle to Walker & Son on the day that Patrick obtained his freedom, Thanksgiving Day, 1912. Milliken today exhibited an option on the Golden Cycle given on Oct. 5, 1911, to Tyson S. Dines of Denver.

Milliken says that he afterward did give an option to Walker, but not until May 16, 1914, nearly two years after the time stated by Goodrich, and it expired Nov. 16, this year.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 24.—Ex-Gov. and Mrs. John A. Dix returned to Albany this evening after several days spent in New York City. When Mr. Dix was asked about the statement of John T. Milliken that Albert T. Patrick refused the first pardon offered by Dix he said that it was true. Ex-Gov. Dix added that he was tired of the entire controversy.

FIRE CAPTAIN HIT WITH AXE.

Others Were Overcome in Forsyth Street Tenement Blaze.

Fire in the five-story tenement at 78 Forsyth Street early yesterday morning drove twenty-two families into the street, and did damage estimated at $5,000. Leo Trobach, manager of the Forsyth Baths, opposite, discovered the fire in the cellar, and blew a police whistle, calling Policemen Sullivan, Doyle, and Green of the Clinton Street Station, who turned in an alarm. The polecemen went through the house and got the tenants out, despite their wild attempts to stampede. Mrs. Esther Rosen, with her recently born baby, was carried out.

Owing to the dense smoke the firemen worked in relays, and Lieut. De Size of Engine 17, Engineer Foley, and Fireman Gillen were overcome, and had to be carried out. Capt. Kelly was directing the cutting of the holes in the floors when he was struck in the face with the flat side of an axe and knocked out. He was taken to Gouverneur Hospital, where it was found that he had lost two teeth, and four stitches were taken in the wound before he returned to quarters

Klicks Writes from Seat of War.

The friends of Günther Klicks, for a long time room clerk at the Ritz-Carlton, will be interested to learn that according to a post card received from him yesterday he is unwounded after three months of campaigning in Belgium and France with the German Army. Klicks writes from Achiet-le-Petit, Bapaume, near Arras, under date of Oct. 30, that he expects the war to be finished by Christmas. "Victory cannot fail us," he states.

BAD BLOCK ON OLD BRIDGE.

One of the worst traction jams in the history of Brooklyn occurred at the rush hour last night, tieing up the elevated traffic on the bridge for nearly an hour and crowding all the approaches to the surface cars and near-by Subways.

The trouble started at 5:40 o'clock, when an East New York train on the elevated stalled just after starting from the Manhattan end of the bridge. Something went wrong with the motor, and it was impossible to move the train in either direction. This stopped all Brooklyn-bound traffic, and the tens of thousands of persons flocking toward the bridge to get out of Manhattan clogged all that part of Park Row.

Police reserves were called out from the Oak Street and Elizabeth Street Stations and helped the Bridge Precinct men, under Capt. O'Toole, to keep the crowds in order. One of the first things to do was to reassure the passengers on the stalled train, who were trying to get off. The guards refused to open the gates and the policemen and elevated employes eventually succeeded in persuading everybody to stay on board until the trouble was remedied.

The throngs who had gathered inside the elevated gates received transfers to the surface cars acros the bridge and retransferred on the other side. This added to the congestion for the moment, and the police managed to persuade many of the delayed wayfarers to go to Chambers Street aid take the B. R. T. Subway or to go downstairs to the Bridge station of the Interborough Subway and go over to Borough Hall. The difficulty was remedied and traffic resumed about 6:30 o'clock.

About three hours after the first tie-up was over another accident occurred in about the same place and in the same way. An east-bound Bay Ridge train was stalled in Manhattan by motor trouble, and for twenty-five minutes Capt. O'Toole and his men had to turn away persons who were hurrying to the elevated trains. The crowds at this hour were not as large as before.

TWO KILLED BY EXPLOSION.

Workman Carried Lighted Lantern on Top of a Gas Tank.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 24.—John Hoffman and Henry Uhain were killed by the explosion of a gas tank at the plant of the Trenton Smelting and Refining Company here late today. Uhain's head was blown from his shoulders. A negro helper standing near the tank was thrown 150 feet over a fence. He is in a serious condition in Mercer Hospital.

Hoffman and Uhain were on top of the tank adjusting a valve. It is supposed that a lantern they carried ignited the gas.

THE LATEST HUDSON TOWN CAR

To the 1915 Hudson line of enclosed cars has been added the Landau Limousine. Built on the popular Light Six-40 chassis, it combines all the advantages of the completely enclosed limousine and the airiness of the open phaeton. Like all Hudson Closed Cars, the Landau bodies are really works of art. This newest model already has been accorded a surprising welcome. The roof is of aluminum and can be guaranteed waterproof. The seat plan is the same as the Six-40 standard Limousine. The car easily accommodates six or seven adults. The auxiliary seats fold into the back of the front seat. They may be so adjusted that their occupants face either to the front or to the rear, as desired. There are many other exclusive features

PREPARATION FOR FINAL FOOTBALL GAMES---ATHLETICS---BOXING

RUTGERS ALL KEYED UP FOR TWO GAMES

Sanford's Wonderful Team Will Be Shown in New York Twice This Week.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, Nov. 24.—Little Rutgers College's ambitious football eleven is all keyed up for the big task which confronts it this week, when two games are to be played in three days in New York City, one with New York University at Ohio Field tomorrow and the other with the strong Washington and Jefferson team at the Polo Grounds on Saturday.

It's a big job that Rutgers has on its hands with that burly W. and J. aggregation, but Rutgers is not a bit scared. This year's team is one which any college would be proud of, and, although they are youthful, they have an abundance of nerve. George Foster Sanford, the former Yale and Columbia coach, who has molded a fine team from a small number of men, put the Rutgers 'Varsity through a final drill yesterday afternoon. With Assistant Coach Howard Gargan, the old Fordham player, the 'Varsity lined up against the scrubs for the last short, snappy scrimmage, just to put the final polish on the team's plays.

Sanford selected the best two sprinters in college, Reed and Coleman, and put them on the scrubs to run through some of Washington and Jefferson's plays. And the way the 'Varsity players put a crimp in the sprinters' speed showed that Speigel and Fleming, the fast W. and J. backs, are going to have no easy time in getting through the Rutgers team.

Sanford is very proud of this Rutgers team. It is the best eleven that ever wore the Rutgers colors, and already has a record to boast about. He takes a fatherly interest in the "kids," as he calls them, and he secretly believes they are going to give Washington and Jefferson a beating, although he would not say so.

Sanford, with years of coaching at Yale and Columbia, is considered the best defensive coach in this country. He has built up the Rutgers team on a defensive basis. He has developed a line which not only has beef, but speed and a fighting spirit. These strapping big lads who make up the line are young giants. "Sandy" has them trained to charge with the speed of players who have their weight.

"Why," said Sanford, "this Rutgers line is big enough to block the Hudson Tube. Some of these strapping lads are the greatest Mellen's food products you ever saw. They are big and solid and fast. The Army and Princeton could not go through this line. We have tried to build up a strong defense, and I think we have it. The day of the old single-line defense has passed, and we have two lines of defense, working in pretty close connection."

Rutgers started out the season with a squad of forty men, all the available football material from the student body of about 550 members. The great ambition was to beat Princeton. Rutgers's dream did not come true, so Sanford took the team and started all over again, developing an entirely different kind of attack than that which failed against the Tigers.

Rutgers has perfected itself in a forward pass, which it plays as cleverly as any team has ever played it. In the first place, Sanford has picked men to throw and receive the ball who are all over 6 feet in height. This gives them a big advantage. Big Parker Talman, standing 6 feet 3 inches, plays at full back and goes back to toss the passes. He's built so high that it is hard to interfere with his throwing. With such six-footers as Seiler at right end, and Nash and Toohey, the giant tackles, Talman has several targets which he cannot fail to see in the mad scramble of the scrimmage. Height is a great asset in the game of overhead football, and Sanford has not failed to take advantage of the fact. Rutgers confidently expects to give W. and J. a big surprise with her aerial football.

With a solid line to protect them, the forward pass tossers have plenty of time to make their tosses accurate. It is the same with Rutgers's kicking game. Sanford has built up a great defense around Talman when he kicks, and that is why he has made such a great kicking record this season. The tall full back's punts average about forty yards, and he is pretty sure of kicking a field goal from within the thirty-five-yard line.

In the final scrimmage against the scrubs this afternoon the 'Varsity worked the forward pass very cleverly, and, after scoring a couple of touchdowns, Talman took a little practice at kicking field goals.

Sanford considers Toohey and Nash a high-class pair of tackles. Nash weighs 198 pounds and is 6 feet 2 inches in height, while Toohey weighs 210 pounds and is 6 feet 2 inches in height. In the backfield will be Bracker and Garrett, two half backs who, while light, are good runners and can hit the line hard. Garrett is an Indian, and comes from Oklahoma. At quarter back Sanford has developed Frank Scarr, son of Weather Forecaster Scarr, and, although the youngster weighs only 135 pounds, he runs the eleven like a veteran. Assistant Coach Howard Cargan said yesterday:

"One good feature about the team is it is brainy, and not only gets away its own plays well, but it is also quick at diagnosing the other team's plays. The boys know the game of football pretty thoroughly, and much can be expected of them."

Coach Snaford is strongly in favor of numbering the players, and the teams will wear figures in both games in New York this week. Sanford puts forth an additional argument for wearing numbers which is entirely new. "Sandy" says it is good for sanitary reasons to number the jerseys, if for nothnig else, as all the jerseys get mixed up in the locker rooms, and there is no way of telling one from the other.

The Rutgers team is physically fit for its big test this week. Jake Besas, the trainer, has the players on edge. There are only two cripples on the squad, but both are valuable men, and Besas still hopes that they may get get into the W. and J. game on Saturday. Wittnenn, one of the best half backs on the squad, has a bruised hip, and Todd, another fast half back, has a wrenched shoulder.

Rutgers is in the midst of a great athletic revival. With such a fine football team, the student body is more enthusiastic over athletics than ever before. There is much interest in the game at the Polo Grounds on Saturday, because Rutgers expects to give a display of football which will give it a high place on the football map.

WANT DILLON FOR COACH.

Newark Princeton Alumni Boosting Old Quarter Back for Position.

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 24.—A movement is on foot led by a body of local alumni of Princeton to have Eddie Dillon, quarter back at Old Nassau during the 1906, 1907 and 1908 seasons, appointed head coach of next year's football team at the university. Dillon is a resident of Nutley, a suburb of Newark, and is employed in the legal department of the Public Service Corporation at the offices here.

One of the men active in the organized campaign to have Dillon put at the head of football affairs at Princeton said today, that it was Dillon's advice followed by the Princeton team that enabled it to make such a fine brace in the closing stages of the game with Yale this month.

It is also claimed for Dillon that as a close student of Percy Haughton's methods at Harvard, he would be an ideal man to take up Princeton's football instruction for the campaign next year. Local friends of Dillon say that it was under his leadership that Princeton first undertook to play the open game and with success against Yale.

It is said here that the Princeton football Board of Strategy will meet before the Christmas holidays when consideration will be given to the appointment of coaches for next season.

COLUMBIA PLAYS FOOTBALL.

Sport Revived for a Day, but Students Hope for More Days of It.

Columbia University undergraduates did their share yesterday toward bringing football back to the campus. Over 2,500 of them crowded on South Field and cheered lustily as the two elevens, representing the upper class men and the under class men, battled on the newly lined gridiron for four periods without either team scoring. It was a fleeting visit that the sport paid to the campus, but it made a big impression on Morningside Heights, as a well-organized effort on the part of the students to obtain the reinstatement of football. The matter now awaits the vote of the authorities, who have remained obdurate since 1905, when the sport on an intercollegiate basis was abolished at Columbia.

Nothing was overlooked in the effort of the Student Board to give the event the appearance of a real intercollegiate contest. Football streamers were distributed liberally, banners decorated the stands, the university band played the college airs, and the cry of "We want a touchdown" swept back and forth across the gridiron. The players were all decked out with suits and bore numbers to distinguish them in the scrimmages. It came as close as possible to what the hopeful ones at the university picture for the future, but the interest centred more in the spirit shown than in the game which displayed little real football in spite of the few weeks of coaching by such stars as Arthur Howe of Yale and Charley Hann of Harvard.

Few of the university authorities were on hand. Dean Kippel, with his faithful pipe, was on the side lines; but all he would say of the game was that it furnished a good opportunity for a good pipeful in the open air. But the turnout of the students was significant, the crowd exceeding that at almost any of the baseball games at South Field in the Spring. The Student Board was well satisfied with the showing of enthusiasm and will now carry the fight higher up.

The game brought forth no injuries—a surprising fact considering the short period of training. The under class men kept possession of the pigskin throughout the greater part of the first half and several times brought it to their opponent's five-yard line to lose it on downs or fumbles. The reverse was true in the second half, when the upper class men kept the attack. The line-up:

Upper Class Men.	Position.	Under Class Men.
Renard	Left guard	Schulte
Osgood	Centre	Bullwinkle
Thompson	Right guard	Todd
Barton	Right tackle	Dobie
Jeaneret	Right end	McCarthy
Hollman	Quarter back	Reese
Simonds	Right half back	R. K. Munroe
Lauber	Full back	H. C. Munroe

Substitutes—Henry for Reese, Pasford for Cleary, Willis for Jeaneret. Referee—Mr. Fitzpatrick, Trinity. Umpire—Mr. Wymard, Fordham. Head Linesman—Mr. Lilley of Yale. Time of periods—Eight minutes.

FEAR FORWARD PASSING.

N. Y. U. Works Out Defense Against Rutgers in Game Tomorrow.

The New York University football team resumed practice yesterday afternoon on Ohio Field, three hours of varied work being the programme which Coach Reilly laid out for the Violet squad. In the early part of the period much of the practice consisted in defensive work by the regular line-up against the efforts of the scrub eleven to put through the forward pass. Evidently the Violet coaches fear this sort of attack by the Rutgers team tomorrow, and are directing their instruction, to a large extent, toward this feature.

Following this workout, further defensive work was engaged in of a more fundamental and general variety. This took the form of a thorough drill, with the tackling dummy, in which every man on the squad took a part. A stiff scrimmage between the regular eleven and the scrubs occupied the remainder of the practice period, but the line players of the two teams were interchanged, so that the 'Varsity obtained both offensive and defensive work of the most strenuous sort.

Bernstein has returned to the game and appears to be in good condition, while the other Violet backfield players, including Capt. Huntley and Olswang, all showed up to good advantage. The 'Varsity line, however, found opportunity to get in some excellent defensive work, and formations of its backfield which were directed against it proved of little avail. Wiener, the big 'Varsity tackle, broke through the weaker eleven's line and frequently spoiled a formation by throwing the runner in his tracks.

The Violet's regular coaches were assisted in yesterday's work by R. C. Hulsart, Captain of the 1907 Violet team; W. Schroeder of the 1905 eleven, and "Jack" Vesley, Captain and a star tackle of the 1912 team.

FORDHAM'S LAST SCRIMMAGE

"Unit Defense" Worked Out to Check Villanova's Attack.

The last football scrimmage of the season was held at Fordham yesterday when for two hours the 'Varsity battled against a strong attack by the scrubs. It was "Skip" Wymard's only remaining chance to test the defense that will oppose the heavy plunging backfield of Villanova in the annual Thanksgiving Day game at Fordham Field tomorrow. The playing was hard and there was no letup, fresh scrubs going in at frequent intervals. Following the regular practice, the squad engaged in a secret drill behind the canvas walls of the regular gridiron.

Satisfied with the offensive ability shown throughout the season, Skip Wymard spent all except about fifteen minutes of the scrimmage time yesterday in superintending the finishing touches to the "unit defense" system which he has been building since the navy game, for the contest against Villanova. Giving the scrub eleven the ball, the Maroon coach went in at quarter back himself against the regulars, using nothing but plays that Villanova has specialized in, all season. With Robbin doing the forward passing and kicking, the second stringers had almost as good a backfield as any that has opposed the Maroon regulars this season. For quite a while, the regulars seemed baffled by some of the trick shifts, but aided by the backfield, where the best tacklers on the Fordham machine seem to be located, the attack of the scrubs was gradually brought to a standstill. During the last few minutes the regulars took a turn at the offensive, pushing past the scrub line for steady gains.

Capt. Wymard was unfit for any hard work yesterday, and was kept out of the scrimmage. Dr. Speis promises to have the Maroon leader in shape to start the last tussle held under his leadership, as Captain. Rice took his place, but will probably be used in his regular berth at right guard against Villanova. Any chance of Rowan's beginning the game at quarter back was dispelled when he appeared with a sprained hand yesterday.

Lafayette Loses Bunny Lerch.

EASTON, Penn., Nov. 24.—The Lafayette team held a long scrimmage this afternoon in the preparation for the Thanksgiving game with Dickinson College. Bunny Lerch is suffering with a cold, and is threatened with pneumonia. There is no evidence of typhoid in his system. He will not be able to play in the game on Thanksgiving Day, and hence Coach Crowell had some readjusting to do in the signal drill this afternoon. Weldon was placed at quarter back and Aiken and Louden alternated at the half back position left vacant by the shift of Weldon. The combination worked well. Some of the time Fred Luhr played in the back field, and it is likely that he will play at least part of the game there. While Luhr has always been a centre, his aggressive style of play has shown the possibilities of excellent back field material, and he will get a chance at this place in the game against Dickinson.

ARMY BACKFIELD STILL TO BE PICKED

Capt. Prichard and Hodgson Sure of Places, but Others Remain in Doubt.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 24.—Signal drill and a near scrimmage occupied the time of the Army football squad today in further preparation for the Navy contest. The players were divided into three teams, and after running through a variety of plays two of the teams were sent against each other in a long dummy scrimmage. The work of checking runners and blocking in the line were the principal points on which the coaches concentrated their attention today.

A back field quartet, which is playing together rather consistently of late, and which was used longest in this afternoon's drill, consisted of Capt. Prichard at quarter, Van Fleet and Benedict half backs, and Hodgson at full back. Oliphant ran through a number of formations, working both at quarter back and half back today. Hodgson looks to be the one star around whom the Army is building its strategy this year. The big Kansan and Capt. Prichard are sure of their positions in the backfield, but the same cannot be said of either Van Fleet, Benedict, or Oliphant.

If Prichard is hurt in the Navy game, Oliphant is the most likely man to succeed him as the Army's Field General, but it is only within the last fortnight that Oliphant has been giving attention to the quarter back job, and then only at infrequent intervals.

After the work on the field was concluded today the men were sent for a long session against the blocking and tackling dummies which had been dug out of the snow heaps during the day. The practice today took place on the north gridiron near the hotel, as the regular field was again unfit for play.

Orders have been issued governing the movement to Philadelphia. The football team will leave here at 8 o'clock on Friday morning, going direct through to Philadelphia, where they will work out on Franklin Field in the afternoon.

Two special trains will be sent out on Saturday morning over the West Shore and Pennsylvania lines. The first train, leaving at 7:15 o'clock, will carry the battalion of cadets, the Military Academy Band and field musicians, a detachment of Hospital Corps men and the officers of the tactical department. The second train will carry the officers of the post. Their families and residents of the vicinity will leave at 8:30 o'clock, arriving at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, at 12:30 o'clock. The cadets will not leave Philadelphia until 9 o'clock Saturday night. The Army team is due to reach here on Sunday afternoon. Lieut. A. V. Arnold, crack Army guard of 1911, was one of the spectators of the football drill today.

NAVY'S LINE STILL WEAK.

Coaches Trying to Form Defense That Will Check Army's Attack.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 24.—Although the football practice is conducted with caution, the Naval Academy coaches are trying to get sufficient line on several of the line candidates to decide which ones will be picked to begin the Army game next Saturday. The fact that the Navy line has been pierced by several of the teams with which it has played this year is giving some anxiety, and the coaches were not able to pick a set of forwards who have proved themselves capable of a stone-wall defense.

Schlessbach has played a strong game at right tackle, though he weighs only 161 pounds, but his lack of weight has proved too serious a handicap to overcome, particularly as Graf has been selected for right guard, though light for the place. Kennedy is not a certainty at the other tackle, and Deroode, Ward, or McCoach may be chosen on either side of the line. R. H. Jones and Mills also are fighting it out now for left guard. Both are big men, weighing in the neighborhood of 190 pounds.

There was some light scrimmaging this afternoon, but not under match conditions. It was designed to perfect the team in its work on the attack and defense, and special attention was devoted to the line in the hopes of increasing its stanchness. It is not denied that the Army's line is heavier and more experienced, and that the Navy forwards will have great difficulty in holding it.

CARLISLE'S NEW COACH.

A. A. Exendine, Former Student, to Succeed Glenn Warner.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Penn., Nov. 24.—Washington and Jefferson football men, who played against Georgetown, at Washington, D. C., last Saturday, brought back the report that A. A. Exendine, Georgetown coach, had been signed to coach the Carlisle eleven, succeeding Glenn Warner, who will go to Pittsburgh University.

Exendine is a former Carlisle star and served his first year as coach at Georgetown this season. His work there was so meritorious and attracted so much attention that he was the first man sought when Warner announced that he would leave the Indian School.

Exendine partially confirmed the report that he would leave Georgetown. Authorities at Georgetown were the first to tell of Exendine's intention to go to Carlisle. They tried to retain him as coach for another season, offering him a big increase in salary, but, according to their reports, he preferred to take up the work at the Carlisle School.

Welsh Beats Yelle of Taunton.

BOSTON, Nov. 24.—Freddie Welsh, lightweight champion, defeated Fred Yelle of Taunton tonight in a twelve-round bout. The Taunton boy had a slight lead on the champion in the second round, also in the sixth. But after the seventh session the result was not in doubt. Twice in the eighth round Yelle was floored by stiff rights to the jaw, and each time he took a count of eight. Although Yelle continued to exchange blows during the later rounds, he never recovered effectiveness, while Welsh was strong to the finish.

Bell Fails to Show Against Reich.

Colin Bell, the Australian heavyweight, failed to put in an appearance last night at the Broadway Sporting Club of Brooklyn, where he was scheduled to box ten rounds with Al Reich. The management did not offer any explanation for Bell's absence, and substituted Jack McFarland of Long Island City, who was a punching bag for five and one-half rounds, when his seconds threw the sponge into the ring as a token of defeat. Reich knocked his man down twice for the count and inflicted severe punishment while the two men were in the ring.

SIX-DAY RIDERS PAID OFF.

Cyclists Incensed When Told That They Had to Pay Fines.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 24.—The cyclists who competed in the six-day race at Madison Square Garden were paid off at the office of the Cycle Racing Association on Market Street today. Approximately $31,000 was divided by the riders in prize and bonus money and the extra rewards offered by the management for the winners of the prizes during the week. Alfred Goulet and Alfred Grenda, the Australians, who won the race, received about $4,000.

The management reported that the receipts were not as large as last year, but it was said that the promoters were satisfied in view of the fact that they have eliminated a number of objectionable features with which the event was always connected. The race this year was also held earlier than usual and was thrown into competition with the big football games on the question of patronage.

The riders have entirely recovered from the effects of the gruelling grind, and those who have declared during the race that they would not compete again in a six-day race were anxiously inquiring of Floyd A. MacFarland about the chances of conducting six-day races in San Francisco, Chicago, Buffalo and Kansas City.

That there will be races in Chicago and San Francisco during February 1915 is assured. MacFarland left here tonight for Buffalo to confer with the franchise holders in that city about the proposed race. From there MacFarland will go on to Chicago and Kansas City.

The riders were incensed today when they learned that a number of fines were imposed during the Garden race. MacFarland insists that the riders must pay these fines before they will be allowed to compete again. What the riders object to is that the fines will go to Richard C. Kelsey, Chairman of the Registration Committee of the N. C. A. They declare that the fines ought to go toward a fund for injured cyclists. They threaten to take the matter up with those who are leaders in the cycling game.

PENN TEAM CRIPPLED.

Townsend and Urquhart May Not Play Against Cornell.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 24.—Both the Cornell and University of Pennsylvania football teams today began final preparations for their annual Thanksgiving Day game. The Ithacans are in Atlantic City while the Red and Blue squad is quartered at White Marsh, a suburb of this city. Neither team indulged in any scrimmage work today, but each was put through some lively signal practice.

Roger Townsend, who had been announced by Coach George Brooks as one of Pennsylvania's tackles for the Cornell game appeared today on crutches, having twisted his knee in a scrimmage with the scrubs yesterday. It is probable that he will be unable to start the game. Urquhart, the end who was also on the injured list, was in the signal drill today, but the coaches fear he will not be in shape for the contest.

New Formations for W. and J.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Penn., Nov. 24.—Coach Bob Folwell unexpectedly put on a secret drill for the Washington and Jefferson football team today, the move being made for the purpose of perfecting some new formations which he hopes to use against Bucknell on Thursday and Rutgers on Saturday in New York. Fleming, the star half back, who practiced yesterday for the first time since the Pittsburgh contest, rested today. He will likely practice a short time tomorrow and start in the Bucknell game. A short scrimmage was staged, preceded by a long signal drill. The men were coached particularly in handling punts and kick-offs and in forming interference for the runner on receiving kick-offs. Coach Folwell used his regulars on the first team today, replacing Patterson with McDevitt. Young, who did not start against Georgetown, was used at full back. Tonight Coach Folwell had a long session with his men at training quarters. Biddy Aiken, former Washington and Jefferson quarter back, who watched Rutgers against Stevens last Saturday, talked to the men on the formations of the New Jersey team.

Scholastic Football Matches.

The chief interest among the followers of scholastic football in this city tomorrow will will centre on the match between Commerce and Clinton, which will be played at the Polo Grounds. Commerce is considered particularly strong on the showing this season, and a lively battle is expected. In Brooklyn two games will be played at Ebbets Field, Manual Training meeting Boys' High and Commercial grappling with Bay Ridge. While Manual has won only one game, the team showed that it was capable of putting forth a scrappy game in the contest with Commerce, and it clearly outplayed Adelphi. Boys' High, however, on the showing against Commercial, will prove a worthy rival. The Manual-Boys' High match will open the afternoon play, starting at 1:45. As soon as the first half is completed, Bay Ridge and Commercial start their match, the second periods in each game alternating in the same way.

Three Harvard Athletes Honored.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 24.—The names of three Harvard athletes appeared among the thirty election to the Phi Beta Kappa Society, announced tonight. T. J. Coolidge, 3d, who plucked a rolling ball from the ground in the Yale Bowl last Saturday and ran nearly 100 yards for a touchdown; R. C. Curtis, who won his letter in the Yale game at left tackle, and Henry L. F. Kreger of Fort Fairfield, Me., coxswain of the 'Varsity crew, were the men whose scholastic ability was thus rewarded.

"Hank" O'Day Has Three Offers.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—Henry O'Day, former manager of the Cubs, said today that he had three offers of positions for next season, but would make no decision until the first of the year. He declined to divulge the nature of the offers.

Amateur Drivers' Dinner.

The League of American Amateur Driving Clubs held its annual dinner at the Holland House last night. There was a large number of members present from all parts of the country.

WAR DRIVES COPLAND OUT OF EUROPE

Coach of Austrian Athletes Had Nothing to Do When His Men Went to Front.

Alexander F. (Al) Copland, the American athletic trainer who went to Europe last Spring to coach the Austrian Olympic candidates for five years, returned unexpectedly to this country aboard the Rotterdam of the Hamburg-American Line yesterday. He was accompanied by his wife and daughter, who were overjoyed at being back home, although they suffered few inconveniences because of the war, which was just about striking into the heart of Austria as they departed.

Except for a steady stream of wounded soldiers pouring into Vienna, where he made his headquarters, and the daily defection of athletes from his ranks to those at the front, Copland declared he was literally unconscious of the giant conflict that raged on all sides of him. Vienna had not been hit hard by the war, and up to the time Copland left the people of Franz Josef's country were certain their cause would eventually triumph. The American coach became pro-Teutonic during his stay abroad, and emphatically asserted that the odds had been in favor of Germany and Austria in all stages of the conflict up to the present.

Copland has been invited to return to Austria to resume his duties next year, and as evidence of the high esteem in which he was held he was presented with a gold medal on his departure by the athletic officials of the country. There is little likelihood that Copland will ever go back, for he believes it will be years before Austria recovers sufficiently from the war to warrant her engagement of an athletic trainer. There will be no athletes to train, Copland thinks, for many years, for a majority of his best men enlisted in the army and were either killed, wounded, or on the firing line before he started for the United States on Oct. 26.

Only once in their journey from Dresden to Rotterdam, via Berlin and The Hague, were the Coplands put to any trouble through the war. At the Holland border they were held up for four hours because Mrs. Copland had no passports, but the trouble was finally adjusted and the party permitted to continue its journey to Rotterdam.

"If it had not been for the war," said Copland yesterday, discussing the situation with a party of friends, "Austria would have cut a much more prominent figure than she ever did at the next Olympic Games. There is a wealth of athletic material in Austria. I was just beginning to find it out when war was declared. All of my best men left the track and field to carry a rifle and bayonet against the Allies. Among those who became soldiers was O. Egger, who, in a running broad jump in the last dual meet between Austria and Hungary, leaped 23 feet 8 1-3 inches, better than any jump recorded in the United States during the past year. Fritz Fleischer, the Austrian boy who won the 100-yard sprint at the same meet, incidentally giving Austria her first victory in a century dash against Hungary, also went to the war.

"Everybody was for war. There was no time for athletics, with the Allies attempting to fight their way into Vienna. I kept busy the last few weeks training schoolboys and those athletes whose services had not up to that time been demanded by their country.

"I made several trips to Hungary during my European stay and was surprised with the athletic talent I saw there. In Budapest I found tracks the equal of any in the world, but they were practically boarded up, for in Hungary as well as in Austria all the good athletes were in the thick of the fight.

"Just before I left opinion was rife that Italy would side with the Allies. Between 400,000 and 500,000 Austrian soldiers had been mobilized at the border in preparation for a possible attack.

"This war will be to the death. I think it is impossible for it to end before next November at the earliest. It will continue as long as the money and men hold out. From all indications terrible damage is being wrought by both sides, millions of dollars' worth of property is being blown to pieces, and thousands of men are daily paying the toll of war. People on this side cannot realize the horror of the conflict.

"I guess I am here to remain, for I've had plenty of Europe," Copland concluded.

Winners with the Cue.

In the second round of the English billiard championship at Doyle's Academy last night W. A. Mantle defeated H. M. Short by a score of 250 to 247, the match being the closest that has been played thus far. Mantle made a high run of 29, while Short clustered 28 in his best inning.

Close playing featured the two games decided last night in the amateur straight-rail tournament at the Morningside Academy, 125th Street and Lenox Avenue. The first contest between J. Elkins and M. Abrams resulted in a victory for the latter by the contest between J. Elkins and M. Abrams won his way to the final game, which will be played tonight. C. T. Williard won the right to take part in the final game when he defeated George Hall in the second match by the score of 50 to 47 in forty innings.

Navy Men on Motor Boating.

Several officers of the United States Navy, including Admiral Usher and Lieut. Craft, will address the monthly educational meeting of the Hudson River Power Squadron Friday night, at the New York Motor Boat Club, 148th Street and the Hudson River. All yachtsmen interested in the power squadron movement are invited to be present. The project has attracted considerable attention in the United States Navy and in the Department of Commerce, because the members are required to pass a severe examination on navigation, and this has done a great deal to increase the efficiency of motor boat navigators.

TWELVE-INCH RULE TRACKS.

A. A. U. Instructions for Measuring Foot-Racing Course.

Because of the many inquiries received at A. A. U. headquarters regarding the construction of indoor and outdoor athletic tracks to conform with the International Federation's twelve-inch rule, Frederick W. Rubien, Secretary and Treasurer of the A. A. U., who is a civil engineer and a recognized authority on the construction of cinder and board paths, yesterday issued figures which should prove of assistance to those called upon to rebuild their tracks.

Under the old Amateur Athletic Union rules the tracks were measured on a line eighteen inches outside of the curb. As a matter of fact, athletes run on a line about twelve inches from the border, and as this has been the recognized line of measuring tracks in England and in other continental countries, it was decided, in order to have records allowed by the International Amateur Athletic Federation and the A. A. U., that hereafter all records must be made on twelve-inch tracks.

This difference amounts to 3 feet 1¾ inches per lap on a track, no matter how many laps there are to the mile. The difference per mile between the two methods of measuring, in a four-lap track equals 12 feet 6⅞ inches; five-lap track, 15 feet 8⅛ inches; six-lap track, 18 feet 10¼ inches; seven-lap track, 21 feet 11⅞ inches; eight-lap track, 25 feet 1⅝ inches; nine-lap track, 28 feet 3¼ inches; ten-lap track, 31 feet 5 inches; eleven-lap track, 34 feet 6¾ inches; twelve-lap track, 37 feet 8⅜ inches; thirteen-lap track, 40 feet 10⅛ inches; fourteen-lap track, 43 feet 11¾ inches; fifteen-lap track, 47 feet 1½ inches.

The simplest way to provide for the change will be to have marks on the track 3 feet 1¾ inches apart, and for every lap run that distance will have to be added. It will be much better to correct one curve of the track, and this can be done by increasing the tangent or straight portion of the track a distance of 1 foot 6⅞ inches, thereby shifting the centre point of one of the curves to that extent. This is far more advisable for armories and indoor tracks, where the curb is painted on the floor, and will greatly reduce the confusion that will follow where the added 3 feet 1¾ inches to each lap is apt to cause complications as to the start and finish of odd distances.

Judging from the number of requests for information from organizations desiring to change their tracks, it seems likely that before many months the twelve-inch line will be firmly established.

Suspend New Polo A. A. License.

Until he meets his monetary obligations to Willie Beecher, amounting to $250, Willie McDonald, manager of the New Polo Athletic Association, will be unable to conduct another series of bouts at his Harlem clubhouse. The State Athletic Commission at its weekly meeting in 41 Park Row yesterday suspended the license of the New Polo club until such time as the organization's debt to Beecher is cleared. The east side lightweight boxed Andy Williams at McDonald's club some time ago, and as part payment of his share of the purse received a check for $250, on which he was unable to obtain cash, because of insufficient funds in his account at a bank. John Reisler, Beecher's manager, brought the case before the Boxing Commission, and an arrangement was reached with the club whereby Beecher was to get $50 weekly until the New Polo obligation to him was wiped out. Beecher testified yesterday that the club has failed to live up to this agreement, whereupon the commission suspended its license.

The Knickerbocker Athletic Club in Albany received a permit to conduct bouts.

City A. C.'s Boxing Tournament.

The committee in charge of the amateur boxing tournament which is to be held at the City Athletic Club the evenings of Dec. 14 and 16 is making every endeavor to put forth a top-notch entertainment. Attractive prizes are being offered in the various classes, the winner to receive a solid gold watch and chain, with gold-filled watches for second men. The losers in the semi-finals will receive a City Athletic Club silver fob. To the club having the largest number of entrants a large silver cup will be awarded. Entry blanks for the tournament can be had from Harry Meyers of the City Athletic Club, Dieges & Clust, and the Amateur Athletic Union.

Low Weight for Young Shugrue.

Freddie Welsh, the world's lightweight champion, telegraphed Jimmy Johnston last night that he would insist that Young Shugrue weigh in at 133 pounds at 3 o'clock in his bout with the champion at Madison Square Garden on Dec. 2. It was understood that 135 at 3 o'clock would be satisfactory to Welsh, as the latter will be at catch weight, but Shugrue's easy victory over Mack on Monday night is thought to be responsible for the champion's latest move. Manager Johnston will place Welsh's proposition before Shugrue some time today.

Close of Horse Show Entries.

Entries close today in all classes for the exhibition of the American Horse Show Association, from Dec. 7 to 12, at Madison Square Garden, in aid of the Red Cross and White Cross War Relief Funds. The entries close with W. S. Blitz, Secretary, 35 Nassau Street. A compilation will not be possible until the arrival of mails from a distance, but the number booked in advance forms an indication of a large and successful horse show.

YEARLINGS SOLD AT OLD GLORY AUCTION

With prices ranging from $50 to $2,100, nearly 200 horses were sold yesterday in Madison Square Garden at the opening day of the Old Glory sale. Horsemen from all over the country, many of whom never come to New York except for this event, were on hand early, and there was no end of spirited bidding for the more desirable of the consignments.

Most of the day was devoted to the sale of yearlings, which included part of the consignment from Walnut Hill Farm, one of these youngsters bringing the top price. This was the brown colt, Harvest Note, a half-brother to The Harvester, champion trotting stallion, by San Francisco, dam Notelet. He was knocked down to W. B. Miller of New York City for $2,100. The same buyer also secured another yearling in the filly Trenella by the same sire for $400. Both of these racing prospects will be turned over to Walter Clarkson to train.

Mr. Miller was formerly interested with H. P. Headley in a stock farm at Lexington, Ky., and at the Kohler dispersal sale last year bought the thoroughbred stallion Uncle for $47,000, and it was thought at that time he was going extensively into the racing game. E. J. Trantor, another New York Speedway enthusiast, bought the three-year-old filly Nellita for $650.

George Moore of Detroit, owner of the champion two-year-old trotting colt General French, has decided to discontinue the training department at Dromore Farm, and will sell a number of fine horses today. Among them will be the champion. This horse is named after the famous English General, Mr. Moore and the head of the British expeditionary forces being particular friends.

The best prices of the auction follow:

Harry Content Gets a Surprise.

Friends of Harry Content, for many years President of the Long Branch Horse Show Association, who have been identified with the annual exhibition at Long Branch during the Summer season, assembled in the music room of the Biltmore last night and tendered a dinner in his honor as a tribute of his successful direction of the organization's welfare. The dinner was a surprise for the guest of honor, and as he entered the banquet room he was greeted by a blast of coach horns from the party. The table was decorated to represent a miniature horse show ring, and the waiters wore riding breeches and red hunting jackets. Among those present were Charles A. Baudouine, Frederick Lewisohn, E. Von Der Horst Koch, Frank T. Clarke, W. V. Creighton, George Ehret, Jr., William T. Koch, Walter Lewisohn, John J. O'Donohue, John McE. Bowman, B. J. Greenhut, Daniel Guggenheim, H. DEVERY WOULD SELL OUT

But There Are No Plans for Disposing of His Stock in Yankees.

William S. Devery, the former New York police chief, who is a stockholder in the New York American baseball club stated yesterday that he had heard nothing from President Ban Johnson about the sale of his shares in the club. Mr. Devery stated that the newspapers have been selling his property, but he knew nothing about it.

When asked if he would be willing to sell his holdings, Mr. Devery stated that he would if he got his price. He admitted that he would sell anything he possessed if he got enough for it. Mr. Devery intimated that the talk about selling out his stock probably started because some one realized that there was money in the Yankees and that in baseball as in any other business, competition will crop up at all times.

Mr. Devery stated that there was no room for the Federal League and he believed that there should be an amalgamation of some kind between the two factions in baseball. He believed, however, that the "Feds" should be placed just where the older leagues wanted to place them.

NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, NOV. 25, 1914.

AN INTERNATIONAL CLEARING HOUSE.

There is no denying the improvement in the situation since the coming to this country of the representatives of the British Treasury, who are about to return. In fact, that improvement is so great that some are wondering why they came, and what is the necessity for persisting with the plans which brought them here, upon the invitation of our Treasury. At that time, it should be remembered, the faith of the country was bound up in the redemption of New York City's obligation to pay gold. In form the obligation was that of this city alone, but the effects of failure to redeem it would not have been confined to New York. That obligation has been redeemed brilliantly, at the cost to this city of $3,000,000 above its expectation when the obligation was assumed, and could not have been redeemed even on those hard terms without friendly assistance. The situation has been further relieved by an increase in normal commerce, both domestic and foreign. The Cotton Exchange has been opened, the Federal Reserve Bank has been established with the largest banking surplus ever known. Security dealings are broadening and in not many weeks will be unrestricted. The emergency devices, Clearing House certificates, and currency issues are disappearing normally, and are almost gone.

On the other hand, the situation abroad is not pursuing the same course. The war gives signs of settling down to a trial of nerves and purses. That is far from being a matter of concern across the Atlantic alone. It is fair notice here that we cannot borrow abroad as we have been accustomed, that we must meet our maturities as they fall in without asking extensions, and that we must finance ourselves through our commerce. At the moment our position is better than that of our friends, but the uncertainty is such that it would be better on both sides if there were some precaution against the recurrence of conditions such as have been too frequent, and are too recent to have been entirely forgotten. It is certain that hereafter as in the past there will be large debits and credits, alternately on one side and the other. The desideratum is to balance the account on either side without the shifting of unnecessarily large amounts of the basis of credit, gold, and thereby adding financial disturbance to the complication. A domestic example which we have just solved is how to separate domestic trade from the fluctuations of the Stock Exchange. Large as the business in securities is, it is small in comparison to total trade, but it is conspicuous. Fluctuations of trade and commodity prices are more stable, and less disturbing. Our new currency breaks the closeness of the relation between business and security prices, and allows business to proceed without the old anxiety about Wall Street.

In like manner it is to be desired internationally that there shall be a corresponding divorce between the fluctuations of imports and exports, and the shifting of gold by the hundred of millions, so peremptorily that banking is disturbed. No doubt there always will be an irreducible minimum of balance which must be sent in gold, but it is impossible to look at the great and sudden shifting of our gold exports and imports without thinking that they can be controlled with advantage, both when we are exporting and importing. In one year we exported an excess of gold of $87,000,000; another year we imported an excess of $104,000,000. Both were years of great disturbance and distress, made worse by a discount in prices concealed in the fluctuations of exchange, such as are operative now, falsifying all prices, of commodities and securities alike. That the problem is difficult is sure, or it would have been settled long ago. It last was felt to be pressing in 1907, and in 1908 Secretary of the Treasury Cortelyou made an attempt at a solution along the lines now revived. The late Mr. Morgan brought the matter to his attention, and a member of the Morgan firm is now accompanying the British representatives back for further consideration of the subject. There is no authority for saying what the negotiations may have been, but these were the words of Mr. Cortelyou as Secretary when the conditions were similar to the present:

> That credits or loans of gold might be extended more generously than at present by one nation to another in times of stress was proposed soon after the crisis of a year ago. It has been suggested that an international conference be called * * * to consider the creation of an international gold certificate which would represent for all practical purposes the transfer of gold * * *. Actual transfer might be desirable where there was reason to believe that the movement was more or less permanent in character, but it would seem that such transfer might be reduced to the minimum where it seemed probable that the metal would be recalled by the normal movement of trade within the space of a few months.

It might almost be thought that was written to fit the present situation. If Secretary McAdoo is persisting with this project he is no more than redeeming his predecessor's promise that he would take it up with any foreign Government. Then we alone were interested. Now the entire world is interested. It is not for our sakes alone that some result, along these or other lines, is to be hoped for. Only by the establishment of an international clearing house for commercial credits is there hope of reducing the movements of gold, ending the triangular and quadrangular operations in exchange which puzzle the most expert, and stabilizing credits and commerce together by making them less dependent upon influences obscure in their operations, but conspicuous and compelling in their results. The crisis of 1914 is a sequel of 1907 in a domestic sense. There are now foreign factors, which puts the party of the other part in a more negotiating frame of mind, as the presence of the British representatives upon the invitation of Mr. McAdoo shows. The time to bargain is when the mood is on. An international reserve bank always has seemed to be an ideal. It may now approach the practical.

NOT A MAN IN SIGHT.

A year and a half before a Presidential Convention the Republican Party usually has its mind fairly made up. It may not have decided whom it will nominate, but it has a choice before it. It knew in the middle of 1882 that it would nominate either Blaine or Arthur; it knew in 1886 that it would nominate Blaine if he would take it, and when he wrote his Florence letter it met the emergency by being willing to take any dark horse that could make the right arrangements with Platt; McKinley's nomination was foreordained from the moment he carried Ohio in 1893, and, of course, there was never a reasonable doubt about the renomination of Roosevelt. Nor would there have been any about the renomination of Taft if it had not been for the extraordinary man who challenged him.

But now, for the first time since 1860, the Republican Convention is only a year and a half away and there is not a man in sight. For the last year there have been industrious efforts to drum up a boom for Cummins or Borah, and the failure to respond to it has been enough to convince those gentlemen, however fond they may be of themselves, that they have mistaken their year. At the outset there were also attempts to prod Hadley and La Follette into national prominence, but the election in Wisconsin ended La Follette, and Hadley was never taken very seriously.

In the meanwhile the friends of the Governor-elect of New York have set on foot a press agent campaign that is nation-wide. It is not impossible that he may get what seems to be going by default. If he does it will be rather a new thing in American politics. The appeal he makes is easily understood; in the West and South they have a great respect for a man who has shown that he can carry New York. Winning is the desideratum, and they are little likely to remember that the victory was not based on the personal popularity of the candidate. So it is possible, with the dearth of men who can really make an appeal, that the murder of a gambler in front of the Hotel Metropole may make a President of the United States. Possible, but still improbable.

IS IT A DENIAL OF JUSTICE?

The refusal by Justice Lamar of a writ of error which would have brought the case of Leo Frank of Atlanta before the Supreme Court of the United States does not remove from the public mind a very deep-seated impression that Frank, now under sentence of death for the murder of Mary Phagan, has not had a fair trial. The proceedings in court, one after another, have taken the usual course. One familiar with the criminal law would probably detect no deviation from the customary practice. The denial by a Justice of the Supreme Court of the last motion made is a sufficient attestation of that. The fact remains that outside of Atlanta there is a very general belief that Frank did not have that fair trial to which every accused and indicted man is entitled, and it is hard for the public, even in the face of all these judicial determinations, to resist the conclusion that thus far there has been a substantial denial of justice.

What the public looks at is not the rules of criminal procedure, but the conditions at the first trial. Suspicion was directed toward Frank by the accusation of an abandoned woman, who afterward retracted her charge. He was convicted altogether upon the testimony of a degenerate negro, Conley, now undergoing sentence as an accomplice in the crime. Conley's counsel declares that he believes his client and not Frank was the murderer. Aside from the evidence of previous character, there being nothing in the antecedent behavior and repute of Frank to make it supposable that he could be guilty of such a crime, while the character of Conley was such as very naturally to throw suspicion upon him, there was a good deal of evidence of a substantial nature which seemed to make the negro's story incredible. All these matters, however, were for the jury, and the jury found Frank guilty. In what circumstances was the verdict rendered? In the answer to this question will be found a statement of the facts upon which is based the public belief that to deny a second trial to Frank is to deny him justice.

There had been a great public outcry against the prisoner. Three newspapers in Atlanta had by all the devices of sensation-mongering roused the community to a dangerous pitch of excitement. Atlanta clamored for a death sentence. Out of these conditions it would seem that a case might have been presented for a change of venue, but Frank was tried in Atlanta. The state of public feeling may be judged from the precautions taken to protect the jury and to protect the prisoner. The verdict was to have been rendered on a Saturday. But it was represented to the court that to bring in a finding on a holiday, when an unusual number of idle persons would be present in the courtroom, would be unwise and imprudent. The return of the jury was, therefore, postponed until Monday. Even then, although the militia was held in readiness for any emergency, the court, the prosecuting officer, and the counsel for the defense agreed that for his own protection the prisoner should be absent from the courtroom when the verdict was read; it was feared that in case of acquittal violence would be done. Frank, therefore, remained in his cell, a verdict was rendered in his absence, and thus his constitutional right was waived.

In the motions for a new trial to set aside the verdict, and to take the case to the Supreme Court on a writ of error, this question of Frank's constitutional right has been prominently brought forward. But the question uppermost in the public mind, outside of Atlanta, is not of Frank's presence or absence from the courtroom when the verdict was found, but whether in a community stirred to passion against Frank and clamoring for his conviction it was possible to give him a fair trial. The jury could not have been ignorant of the state of public feeling. It must have known why he was absent from the courtroom, it must have heard why the militia was kept ready for instant service. Certainly it heard the remark of the trial Judge that the evidence had not convinced him either of the prisoner's guilt or innocence. Beyond question that statement denoted reasonable doubt in the mind of the court. The Judge might even have been warranted in taking the case out of the jury's hands or in directing a different verdict. The jury found Frank guilty, and all the subsequent efforts of his counsel in his behalf have been futile. The verdict stands, and unless on application to another Judge of the Supreme Court a writ of error is granted the court will appoint a day for his execution.

We should suppose the people of Atlanta would be moved by a consideration of these facts to an examination of their own attitude, that they would take some account of the relation of the Frank case to the repute of their city. The ruling of the Georgia Supreme Court that it was too late to bring up the question of the waiver of Frank's constitutional right did not touch the question of his guilt or of the fairness of his trial. Yet in the public mind that is the supreme question. Has there been a denial of justice in the City of Atlanta and in the courts of the State of Georgia? In other States the belief prevails that justice has been denied. It is a pretty serious matter for Atlanta.

VERA CRUZ.

Although the occupation of Vera Cruz by American troops has never been viewed with enthusiasm by the people of this country, the withdrawal on Monday has not generally been regarded as a cause for felicitation. It must be frankly admitted that the development of President Wilson's Mexican policy puzzles many persons who are inclined to uphold all his policies. The occupation of Vera Cruz, however, was obviously never intended as a heroic demonstration of military power. The almost immediate acceptance by the Government at Washington of the proffer of good offices by the three South American republics deprived it of much of its significance, except as an admonitory movement. The troops were there and they stayed there, and there is abundant proof that their presence on Mexican soil was of measurable influence upon the course of the revolution.

If that movement had been, as the Washington Government then believed, a well-organized effort to rescue Mexico from unjust and corrupt political adventurers and restore its Government to the people, the American occupation would have been of great benefit to the cause of justice. But it is clearly seen now by everybody, as it was from the beginning by the people who knew the Mexicans, that the revolution of Carranza and Villa against Huerta lacked organization, cohesion, and was not wholly, or even largely, dominated by patriots. Today, who can count the number of contending factions in the forlorn republic?

Washington influence, however, hastened the downfall of Huerta, which was most desirable. He had tried to involve this country in a war which he thought would be beneficial to him. But war was avoided. The A B C conference was not held in vain by any means. It served to prove to our neighbors in South America, and to Europe as well, our entire disinterestedness. We have escaped war, we have established new and stronger relations with out Southern neighbors, we have administered faithfully and well the affairs of the chief port of Mexico, at our own expense, exacting not one cent of indemnity; we have done all we could in an honest desire to help in the establishment of a decent and popular Government in Mexico.

In this last effort we must admit failure. Mexico has no Government at all, and there is no indication that her millions, or any influential part of them, want a decent, responsible, and competent Government. But President Wilson cannot be blamed for believing that Mexican protestations were sincere, and if the withdrawal of our troops is not a very inspiriting incident, it is surely not one to view regretfully. We are well out of it. We did not go to Mexico to make war, and we have no present intention of making war. We stand ready to give such help to the Mexicans as they may need and ask for. We favor no faction in the new revolution, which seems to be the least excusable in Mexican history. That out of the clash of scarcely interesting personalities, which make up all there is now in Mexican politics, a man may arise who can win and hold the people's confidence and administer their Government strongly and honorably we must all sincerely hope.

THE TAX EXPERIMENTERS.

Mayor Mitchel is being asked questions by the proprietors of a patent medicine method of muddling the tax question. He knows best what he will say to them. He might advise them to go and get a better reputation than recent elections have given them. Mr. Allan Robinson has analyzed their record in an interesting manner which is very much at the Mayor's service.

Mr. Robinson says that last year the promoters of this diminishing question pledged sixty-five Assembly candidates, and elected twenty-two. That seemed serious. This year they made an energetic campaign with worse results. They pledged forty-two, and elected eight Assemblymen. The agitators made an attempt to defeat candidates for the Assembly as well as to pledge and elect them. Five were particularly opposed, and only one failed of election.

The Mayor is much too cautious to associate himself with such a losing cause, at a time when the owners and taxpayers upon real estate are in such a touchy frame of mind. The reference to the "pending" amendment to the Constitution of Wisconsin is unfortunate. There are no pending constitutional questions in Wisconsin in the sense that any are before the people. The electorate made a clean sweep of an assorted lot of Wisconsin notions, and not one word of protest has been heard in any quarter. The thing to do with the taxes is to reduce them, not to alter their distribution in a manner to upset the values upon which the taxes are paid.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Doubt About "Sport" Is Beginning. Devotion to athletic sports on the part of high and low alike has always been a British boast, and it is well known—at any rate, we have been told so often enough—that Waterloo was won on the cricket fields of Eton. Yet just now one of the London papers fiercely demands the extirpation of the "football cancer," and most of the other journals in that city and in the rest of England are calling, if not for the abolition of that hitherto much admired game, at least for its suppression till the war is over, and violently denouncing multitudes of the young men whose interest in it as players and spectators is so intense that they cannot hear the call to the colors.

Can it really be that there is not that close connection between athletics and the development of manly virtues and efficient patriotism which has been so often claimed? Some few of us have long had doubts on the subject—doubts to which we have rarely given other than timid expression, so nearly unanimous were public opinion and common assumption against us—but now that the English admit that in a great national crisis they have put their athleticism to the test and found it weak just where they expected it to be strongest, criticism of the "sport" that is an end in itself, and not a means to vastly better ends, will become bold.

It may even lead to audacious inquiries whether, in a country like this, that notoriously underpays its college professors, a wiser use for $400,000 of Yale money might not have been found than in the building of a huge "bowl" wherein to make a sorry display of Yale's brawn and skill.

Perhaps such a question would not be quite fair, but it is at least as fair as are the present angry outcries in England from journalists who in the past have done their best to foster the spirit they now denounce—of journalists who forget that over 1,500,000 Englishmen have already volunteered for a cruel and deadly service—a number by no means inconsiderable for a country with the population of England.

On Reading Aloud and Acting. Eugene Brieux, who knows more than a thing or two about writing for the stage, though his plays are praised and blamed with about equal vehemence by the critics, is apparently content with the effect of his work, for he told a Columbia University audience this week that the theatre is the best means of reaching and influencing the public. Just that, presumably, is what he wanted to do, for the amusement of the public or the resting of the tired business man certainly was not his object when he wrote.

With all his knowledge, however, it is not quite certain that M. Brieux is right in his claim for the stage. Undoubtedly through it many people can be "reached" who are "hard of hearing," if not "stone deaf," to other appeals to their emotions and their intelligences, but that fact hardly justifies putting the stage above all other devices for teaching and converting.

M. Brieux ranked acting first, reading aloud second, and reading to one's self third as means of communication from mind to mind. He may be correct as regards numbers of people, but he was rather unkind not to admit, with regard to reading aloud, that it is neither done nor heard with patience by anybody with a real and strong affection for literature, and a due appreciation of the vast amount of it one must get through if he would either be or continue to be "well read."

At least ten books can be read silently in the time it takes to read one aloud, and, as for the relative degrees of comprehension in the two cases—well, who has not a hundred times, after hearing something read aloud by somebody else, cried, "Here, let me see that!" and taken the book or paper out of the somebody's hand?

There would be a good excuse for saying that poetry should always be read aloud. Indeed, it has been said many times, and here and there a man or woman heeds the command and has his or her reward. Many plays—perhaps all really good ones—are better acted than read. That is because they are made for the one and not for the other, just as poetry's natural appeal to the mind is through the ear and not through the eye. But prose—only the lazy want that read to them, and only the self-sacrificing will ever do it.

Holding an Inquest on Coroners. For once the Coroners are finding out how it feels to be the subject of an inquest, and they are not showing the composure which they have been accustomed to observe in the conduct of their own professional operations.

It cannot be said that there is anything surprising in the revelations yet made. The only thing new about these disclosures is that they are widely audible, instead of going around in whispers. But that is not quite correct. Novel, too, is the absence of the grimly humorous that has marked the proceedings of so many inquests and for centuries has made the Coroner a comic rather than a serious character in literature.

The present investigation is only making definite what hitherto was but vaguely known to all except the comparatively few people who have had occasion to assist the Coroner at his work or to watch him as he performed it. The suspicion that he has outlived whatever usefulness he ever had can hardly fail to become a conviction in the minds of all who follow this inquiry. Whatever its other faults, and apparently they are many and grave, the system is grossly inefficient. That is a sufficient condemnation, even though there were no accusations, seemingly well founded, of both corruption and oppression.

DAEMMERSCHLAF.

We are calling to you, down the dim, twilight halls of the ages,
We are stretching, imploringly, shadowy hands from the past;
We have heard of the wonderful herb that relieves and assuages—
That has freed mother-yearn of its hideous terrors at last.
Ah, hold not the marvelous, pain-saving knowledge locked fast
In the minds of a few, there slowly to wither and die,
And turn not away, heeding naught of the passionate cry
Of your women-folk — mothers and daughters and sisters and wives—
Who suffer submissively tortures infernal, and try
To become reconciled to this menace that darkens their lives.

We so long have endured, and our patience has been so unceasing—
Some resigned and some fearful, some bravely determined to bear
With a stoical strength, pangs that, ever in volume increasing,
Leave a wreck in their wake, without power to feel or to care.
Is there one to begrudge us his help? Is there one who will dare
To refuse his support, to the end that this knowledge may grow?
Whose the time, and what trouble is too much to lessen the woe
That has endlessly shadowed the peace of the daughters of Eve
With a burden of agony none but a woman can know—
With a physical torture no mind of a man can conceive?

We are calling, so pleadingly, yet with insistence compelling
An attention that wanders, indifferent, or fain would forget!
Do you hear it—this chorus impressive, imperious, swelling
To a volume that brooks not ignoring? Then cancel your debt!
We have tendered you youth, strength and beauty. Our feet have been set
In a path leading down through the shadow of death and of pain,
And some of us followed its windings again and again.
You have called on us even to die that our children might live;
And that last supreme sacrifice—is it once asked for in vain?
How oft have we failed you? Behold, it is your turn to give!

ENVOY.

We call! Can you turn a deaf ear to our accents appealing?
We ask of your brains and your time, to the end that we live—
Be mothers—in peace, the perfection of Nature revealing

BEATRICE BARRY.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Some time ago I received with many others an appeal "To the Civilized World!" from certain distinguished representatives of German science and art. I at once wrote to Prof. Eucken, whom I know, and who is one of the signers of this document. I wished to draw his attention particularly to the second statement of this appeal, which is as follows:

> It is not true that we trespassed in neutral Belgium. It has been proved that France and England had resolved on such a trespass, and it has likewise been proved that Belgium had agreed to their doing so.

and I stated to him that "It is naturally to be expected of a group of scholars that where reference is made to proof, some citation should be given both of the sources of the proof and of its nature. I am sure you will agree with me that it is of the very essence of scholarly method in the treatment of any subject whatsoever that one should cite his authority as regards every important and significant statement that is made. No one of the distinguished group of scholars signing their names to this letter would think of writing an article in his own specialty and not add in the text or in a footnote the complete list of authorities for his several assertions.

"In your appeal, however, the most important statement by far which you make, and the one bearing most intimately upon the honor and integrity of your nation, is left without even the attempt to support it, save the bare assertion by you and your colleagues. In the interests of a fair understanding of Germany's position, I feel that it is incumbent upon you to give us who are under such a deep debt of gratitude to German scholarship in our own lives the opportunity of a full knowledge of all the facts which definitely bear upon this present situation."

At the time of writing Prof. Eucken, I also wrote to a friend of mine, Dr. A. E. Shipley, the Master of Christ's College, Cambridge, England, asking him if he could get for me some authoritative statement from the British Foreign Office concerning the assertion that "it has been proved that France and England had resolved on such a trespass, and it has likewise been proved that Belgium had agreed to their doing so." I have just received a letter from Mr. Shipley, stating that Lord Haldane had prepared a statement in answer to this question. Thinking that your readers would be interested in seeing this, I am sending it to you. Faithfully yours,

JOHN GRIER HIBBEN.

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 24, 1914.

Whitehall, S. W., Nov. 14.

Dear Master of Christ's: The inclosed memoranda have been specially prepared for me by the Foreign Office in answer to your question. Yours truly,

HALDANE.

[MEMORANDUM.]

It is quite untrue that the British Government had ever arranged with Belgium to trespass on her country in case of war, or that Belgium had agreed to this. The strategic dispositions of Germany, especially as regards railways, have for some years given rise to the apprehension that Germany would attack France through Belgium. Whatever military discussions have taken place before this war have been limited entirely to the suggestion of what could be done to defend France if Germany attacked her through Belgium.

The Germans have stated that we contemplated sending troops to Belgium. We had never committed ourselves at all to the sending of troops to the Continent, and we had never contemplated the possibility of sending troops to Belgium to attack Germany.

The Germans have stated that British military stores had been placed at Maubeuge, a French fortress near the Belgian frontier, before the outbreak of the war, and that this is evidence of an intention to attack Germany through Belgium. No British soldiers and no British stores were landed on the Continent till after Germany had invaded Belgium and Belgium had appealed to France and England for assistance. It was only after this appeal that British troops were sent to France; and, if the Germans found British munitions of war in Maubeuge, these munitions were sent with our expedition to France after the outbreak of the war. The idea of violating the neutrality of Belgium was never discussed or contemplated by the British Government.

The extract inclosed, which is taken from an official publication of the Belgian Government, and the extract from an official statement by the Belgian Minister of War, prove that the Belgian Government had never connived, or been willing to connive, at a breach of the treaty that made the maintenance of Belgian neutrality an international obligation. The moment that there appeared to be danger that this treaty might be violated the British Government made an appeal for an assurance from both France and Germany, as had been done in 1870 by Mr. Gladstone, that neither of those countries would violate the neutrality of Belgium if the other country respected it. The French agreed, the Germans declined to agree. The appeal made by the British Government is to be found in our first "White Paper" after the outbreak of the war.

The reason why Germany would not agree was stated very frankly by Herr von Jagow, the German Minister for Foreign Affairs, to Sir Edward Goschen, our Ambassador in Berlin; and it is recorded in the second "White Paper" that we published. The attitude of the British Government throughout has been to endeavor to preserve the neutrality of Belgium, and we never thought of sending troops to Belgium until Germany had invaded it and Belgium had appealed for assistance to maintain the international treaty.

We have known for some years past that in Holland, in Denmark, and in Norway the Germans have inspired the apprehension that, if England was at war with Germany, England would violate the neutrality of those countries and seize some of their harbors. This allegation is as baseless as the allegation about our intention to violate the neutrality of Belgium, and events have shown it to be so. But it seems to be a rule with Germany to attribute to others the designs that she herself entertains; as it is clear now that, for some long time past, it has been a settled part of her strategic plans to attack France through Belgium. A statement is inclosed, which was issued by us on Oct. 14 last, dealing with this point.

This memorandum and its inclosures should provide ample material for a reply to the German statements.

Foreign Office, Nov. 9, 1914.

Belgian Official Denials.

Here is inclosed a copy of the note of Aug. 3 sent by M. Davignon, Belgian Minister of Foreign Affairs, to Herr von Below Saleske, the German Minister at Brussels, included in the Belgian "Gray Paper," and printed in full in The New York Times of Oct. 18 and reprinted in The Times's pamphlet of the war's diplomatic papers. This is the note expressing the "profound and painful surprise" caused to King Albert's Government by the German invitation to it to abandon Belgian neutrality and denying that France had, as alleged by Germany, manifested any such intention.

OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

The German press has been attempting to persuade the public that if Germany herself had not violated Belgian neutrality, France or Great Britain would have done so. It has declared that French and British troops had marched into Belgium before the outbreak of war. We have received from the Belgian Minister of War an official statement which denies absolutely these allegations. It declares, on the one hand, that "before Aug. 3 not a single French soldier had set foot on Belgian territory," and, again, "it is untrue that on Aug. 4 there was a single English soldier in Belgium." It adds:

> For long past Great Britain knew that the Belgian Army would oppose by force a "preventive" disembarkation of British troops in Belgium. The Belgian Government did not hesitate at the time of the Agadir crisis to warn foreign Ambassadors, in terms which could not be misunderstood, of its formal intention to compel respect for the neutrality of Belgium by every means at its disposal, and against attempts upon it from any and every quarter.

The "Agreement" of 1903.

The third inclosure is this British official communique:

14 October, 1914.

The story of an alleged Anglo-Belgian agreement of 1906 published in the German press, and based on documents said to have been found at Brussels, is only a fresh edition of a story which has been reproduced in various forms and denied on several occasions. No such agreement has ever existed.

As the Germans well know, Gen. Grierson is dead and Col. (now Gen.) Barnardiston is commanding the British forces before Tsing-tao. In 1906 Gen. Grierson was on the General Staff at the War Office, and Col. Barnardiston was Military Attaché at Brussels. In view of the solemn guarantee given by Great Britain to protect the neutrality of Belgium against violation from any side, some academic discussions may, through the instrumentality of Col. Barnardiston, have taken place between Gen. Grierson and the Belgian military authorities as to what assistance the British Army might be able to afford to Belgium should one of her neighbors violate that neutrality. Some notes with reference to the subject may exist in the archives at Brussels.

It should be noted that the date mentioned, namely, 1906, was the year following that in which Germany had, as in 1911, adopted a threatening attitude toward France with regard to Morocco, and, in view of the apprehensions existing of an attack on France through Belgium, it was natural that possible eventualities should be discussed.

The impossibility of Belgium having been a party to any agreement of the nature indicated or to any design for the violation of Belgian neutrality is clearly shown by the reiterated declarations that she has made for many years past that she would resist to the utmost any violation of her neutrality from whatever quarter and in whatever form such violation might come.

It is worthy of attention that these charges of aggressive designs on the part of other powers are made by Germany, who, since 1906, has established an elaborate network of strategical railways leading from the Rhine to the Belgian frontier through a barren, thinly populated tract, deliberately constructed to permit of the sudden attack upon Belgium, which was carried out two months ago.

THE FATE OF BELGIUM.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It seems to me that the Belgian previous question ought to be moved with all candid pro-Germans. Mr. Schiff is plainly candid, so I have framed an open letter to elicit his opinion:

[An Open Letter to Jacob H. Schiff.]

Mr. Jacob H. Schiff, New York.

My Dear Sir: The universal esteem which you enjoy in the country of your adoption lends great weight to any utterance of yours on public matters. Your interview on the war in The Times of Nov. 22 will everywhere have influence for its gravity and fineness of feeling. It is with compunction that I call your attention to the fact that your statement is ambiguous on precisely those issues of the conflict which your fellow-citizens have nearest at heart.

Your general position may be described as a desire for prompt peace and restoration of the former balance of power. More specifically you wish "Germany to be victorious, but not too victorious." If this be merely an instinctive expression of the residual German in you, an expression made with no practical implications of any sort, no American will do otherwise than respect such a sentiment. But if you deliberately desire a moderate victory for Germany with all that such moderate victory practically implies, it behooves your fellow-citizens to judge your views in the light of what these really call for.

An ever so slightly victorious Germany would presumably retain Belgium, in whole or in part. Does such a conquest have your moral assent?

Or suppose the rather improbable event of a Germany driven out of Belgium, but otherwise slightly victorious. In such case not a pfennig of indemnity would come to Belgium. Do you believe that no indemnity is morally due Belgium?

Knowing your reputation as a man and philanthropist, I can hardly believe that your desire for a "not too victorious" Germany includes its logical implication of a subjugated or uncompensated Belgium. But if this be so, candor expects an avowal. Until you have made yourself clear on the issue that most concerns your fellow-citizens they will remain in doubt as to your whole moral attitude on the war. Does your pacificism contemplate a German Belgium? I feel sure you will admit that no fairer question could be set to any one who comments on the sequels of the war. I am, most respectfully yours,

1,625 MERCHANTS TOAST PROSPERITY

WORD "PANIC" NOW ERASED

Benjamin Strong, Jr., Praises the Spirit of Co-operation Shown by Depositories.

To celebrate the establishment of the Federal Reserve banking system and to honor the officials in charge of New York's Federal Reserve Bank, the largest number of merchants who ever assembled at a noonday luncheon gathered in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Astor yesterday.

William C. Breed, toastmaster, asked all those present at the opening of the luncheon to stand and drink a toast to the President and to the prosperity that may be counted on in the wake of the improvement of financial conditions. As the crowd rose Mr. Breed announced that those standing totaled 1,625 by actual count of the tickets taken in at the door. He added that this total broke all previous records for noonday gatherings of merchants.

The speakers were Benjamin Strong, Jr., Governor of the New York Federal Reserve Bank; Pierre Jay, Federal Reserve Chairman; Henry R. Towne, former President of the Merchants' Association, and Irving T. Bush, President of the Bush Terminal Company. Among those at the guests' table were Jacob H. Schiff, Eugene Lamb Richards, State Superintendent of Banks; William A. Marble and William Woodward, members of the Federal Reserve Board; J. Ward Werner, President of the Produce Exchange; William Bayne, President of the Coffee Exchange, and Charles Starek, Federal Reserve Director.

In introducing Mr. Strong as a man who could speak of the Federal Reserve system as one who knew all about it, Mr. Breed remarked that the old banking system was all right and permitted the growth of great prosperity, "only it had a bad way of breaking down at every crisis."

Work of Reserve Banks.

"I must warn you at the outset that the Federal Reserve Bank cannot make prosperity for you," said Mr. Strong. "But I should also warn you that as the reserve banks assume their functions they can certainly aid in the recovery of business from the shock of war and I hope still reap their share of the rewards.

"Until November the Federal reserve act was simply an expression of what Congress believed the community demanded in currency and banking legislation. Since Nov. 16 it has become a powerful force behind our business machinery. The test of its ability to accomplish the objects desired will be determined by experiences of the future.

"We must bear in mind that banking legislation in this country affects over 25,000 institutions with resources of $25,000,000,000, and also that since the panic of 1907 many States have revised their banking laws completely. The defects of the old system may have been corrected by the new Federal Reserve plan, but the legislation reposed broad powers of interpretation with the Federal Board and this power must be dealt with conservatively.

"We must see that other defects to do not creep in undetected from which unsound tendencies may develop, thereby defeating the purpose of Congress and creating other weaknesses which it will need further legislation to correct.

"Under the circumstances judgment must be suspended and a generous attitude must be observed both toward the Federal Reserve Board and the measures adopted by it for the development and control of the new system and toward the management of the various reserve banks. A liberal spirit of co-operation will insure the system's success, while determined opposition can be made to defeat its progress.

"The first notable development of the system was the payment of the capital installments, and during the last week the completion of the initial reserve transfer. The spirit of co-operation exhibited by the banks of this district, and particularly by the members of the New York Clearing House Association in this as in all matters connected with the establishment of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, gives striking evidence of their intention to permit no opposition to develop which may interfere with a thorough test of the plan. This insures its success.

To Admit State Institutions.

"Plans for the admission of State institutions to membership will, I believe, develop rapidly and afford means for enlarging the scope of the system without placing burdensome restrictions upon the State institutions or subjecting the national banks to unreasonable competition. The soundest banking system for this country should embrace in its operation all banks which receive demand deposits and discount commercial paper.

"The new system is bound to help the merchant with obligations to meet and a sound business, but who must worry because his banker can't spare him the money he needs. We now have an expanded commercial credit on a broader and more stable basis.

"Permit me to ask the merchants of New York to make a careful study of the law's provisions and of the board's regulations. Our system may at first appear to have been devised for the service and protection of the banks. They own the stock. The reserve deposits belong to them. The benefits of the system will, however, be realized in fact by the merchant who borrows money. It has already erased the word 'panic' from our financial lexicon. Its purpose is to safeguard your credit and ultimately to enlarge the field of your business enterprise."

Mr. Jay complimented the merchants on coming together in a better spirit of co-operation than formerly exhibited, as it demonstrated, he said, what the bankers did when they formed a syndicate to finance the city's European obligations and what Northern and Southern bankers did when they made it possible to market Southern cotton in the war zone.

Mr. Jay described in detail the method of the reserve system in handling credits and discounting commercial paper, showing how emergency notes could remain in circulation only so long as the emergency for which they were issued existed.

"We cannot escape prosperity under this new banking system," said Mr. Bush, "any more than we can escape paying our burden on account of the war. The war began Aug. 1 and the Panama Canal opened Aug. 15. And most important just at this juncture the new banking system came into action to throw in the clutch to the trade machine. We are not in the throes of a speculative boom. We are pretty well liquidated and we are ready for prosperity with one of the largest cereal crops on record at a time when war prices prevail and the cereal crop of the rest of the world is small."

A parting toast from the merchants was proposed by Mr. Breed: "May the name of the first Governor of the Reserve Bank of New York be the watchword of its future—Strong."

For the New York Poor.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I do not wish to decry the beneficence of those who desire to help the wounded and destitute in Europe, but something should be done for the poor of this city. The Times is the most powerful paper we have, and I avail myself of its tremendous circulation to appeal to your readers not to forget the New York poor, whose conditions just now are deplorable. It seems to me that soup kitchens will have to be established, for the outlook is desperate. Let me urge society women in New York to give their attention to the deplorable state of affairs, especially to those of working girls.

The Surgeon	Mr. Kingsford

After a brief interval for rehearsals the Princess Theatre was reopened last evening with a bill of four new short plays. In this programme there is no weary, waste stretch. All four of the plays are interesting, and two of them are particularly good.

There is a little less of laughter than heretofore and a little more of the sombre and the acutely poignant. Of horror there is about as much as can be endured in the course of one evening's entertainment, but it should be noted with some emphasis that in no case does the horror appear to have been elaborately contrived as the chief excuse for the play. And, since the Princess has acquired some reputation as the little theatre of blushes, it should also be noted that, insofar as the present bill may be taken as an indication, the management has experienced a change of heart. There are no reasons why any theatregoer should stay away from the Princess now, and there are several reasons why he would find a visit there well worth his while.

One of these reasons is the longest of the four new plays. It is the first in importance and the last on the programme. And the last shall be first in this review, for "Across the Border" is as elaborate and ambitious a work as it has fallen to the Princess to present since first this small playhouse opened its doors. The author is Beulah Marie Dix, co-author of "The Road to Yesterday."

It is a play in four scenes that, whenever it was originally written, employs as its material the war on the Continent of Europe. It concerns a young Junior Lieutenant, his peril, the wounding of him, his delirium, and his death in a bleak cottage within a few paces of the trenches and within sound of the booming guns. "Across the Border" is a voice raised in the theatre against the monstrous horror and infamy of war.

The Junior Lieutenant is one of a small detachment of soldiers besieged within a rickety barn. They are without food or drink, and at night, the young officer decides to attempt a solitary run through the lines to the headquarters of his own army twenty miles away. He says good-bye all around, distributes the remainder of his cigarettes among those left behind, and starts. They know that if he covers the first three minutes undetected, there is high hope of his success. They lie crouching in the dark, waiting, the Senior Lieutenant with his flash on the watch on his wrist, counting the minutes. One minute, two minutes, and no sound from the stillness of the countryside. The three minutes are almost passed when there is the crackling of rifle shots in the distance, and they know what has happened. The Junior Lieutenant had carried no rifle.

As the scene shifts, you find him "across the border," meeting strange, simple folk in a serene country, folk who question him wonderingly as to this business of war and whose simple minds cannot grasp the fact that all is fair in war. The Junior Lieutenant defends the whole wretched business with his soldier's mind, marshalling the familiar arguments and extenuations, but finding that they count for naught with those who see simply the essential truth that the cruelty of war is grotesque and indefensible in the sight of men and angels.

Like another Virgil in Purgatory, one leads him through a desolate place and points to the fearful wreckage of war's bestial work. And as the scales fall from his eyes, he knows only the feverish desire to go back to earth to cry out from the house tops that they must stop this killing. He feels there are some he can make understand, and the words of his message are on his lips as he opens his eyes amid the cursing and praying in the grim field hospital where the Red Cross surgeon is making his perfunctory rounds and where at last death claims the Junior Lieutenant.

This is simply told and, for the most part, well staged. It would, perhaps, be just a little more moving if the Junior Lieutenant were more clearly presented as the diffident, inarticulate Britisher he is so clearly meant to be—for there is in him just the touch of "The Brushwood Boy." The spectral quality of the two scenes across the border is nicely achieved: the spiritual quality would be conveyed more successfully if Mr. Blinn, as the Master of the House of Quiet, played less stolidly and with even a hint of the compassion of an infinite understanding. But the force of the performance rests with a newcomer among the Princess Players, David Powell, whose sincere, imaginative, skillful performance is one of the good things of this theatrical season.

The comic relief of the programme is provided by George Ade in an old playlet of his called "Nettie," a really funny little episode concerning three men who meet at the same table in the same palm room and two of whom realize that all three have bene gallantly taking care of Nettie. In the course of the younger men's discomfiting discoveries, you come to know Nettie very well, but she never comes on to confirm your suspicion that, compared with her deft campaigning, the work of the Salamander is crude, inexpert, and unimaginative. Mr. Blinn is the old patron who is left with his illusions regarding Nettie. This chief Princess player, like all who have acted with Mrs. Fiske, must endure being accused from time to time of showing traces of that great artist's influence in his work. In his work in "Nettie" Mr. Blinn, consciously or unconsciously, gives an imitation of Mrs. Fiske which is as lifelike as if it had been done by Elsie Janis in an inspired moment.

Frederick Truesdell, who plays the murdered man in "On Trial," is the author of a very dramatic and promising one-act play called "The Fog." It is the story of a seafarer who comes back unexpectedly to his little chandlery to find his pretty wife decked out and waiting for a lover to call and take her to a ball. As bit by bit the truth dawns on the returned husband he, too, waits, and when the fog drives a passing gentleman in evening dress to take shelter in the little shop you see the mistake the husband makes. You see the wife see it, too, and watch her as she grasps at this chance to save her flimsy little lover by confirming the furious husband in the mistake. This is a richly dramatic situation, nicely constructed, but the end of the play is tricky, and in its very arbitrariness so rushes matters that the expectant audience has something of the abused feeling of one from beneath whom a chair has been suddenly and inconsiderately yanked. Lewis Edgard does good work as the lover, as he does in "Nettie" and in "Across the Border," playing with an intelligence, a humor, and a versatility that make an important contribution to the evening's entertainment.

And then there is "The Denial," a poignant little play that is told in less than seven minutes. Those minutes are just before the execution of a young man at Sing Sing, and in them he denies his own mother. In the face of her tears and her fond, quaintly circumstantial protestations he convinces her that he is not her son so that he may not leave his shame as his legacy to her. So he goes to the chair with head up and shoulders square, and as the curtain falls you hear the whirr of the dynamo. It is a good play, though very rough in spots and less artistic for lacking the wordless close that the very nature of the story would seem to have recommended. But it is genuinely moving. "The Denial" is the first of four plays, all of them worth going to see.

THEATRE'S LIFE INFLUENCE.

Ranks as High as Pulpit, Faversham Tells Barnard Students.

In an address to the students of Barnard College yesterday afternoon William Faversham told the young college women that as an influence in the life of the country he believed the theatre ranked as high if not higher than the pulpit. This was the keynote of the speaker's address. He was introduced to his audience by Miss Helen Blumenthal of the class of 1915, Chairman of Wigs and Cues, the dramatic society of Barnard.

"In no profession," said Mr. Faversham, "are so many beneficial educative forces employed as in the theatre. Henry Irving died a poor man to give all that is best that the theatre affords. That great and wonderful actor, Edwin Booth, lost a million and a quarter dollars to do the finest things in the theatre. No minister in his pulpit, no novelist in his book, ever swayed a great populace for good more than did an Irving, a Booth, or a Modjeska.

"The last ten years have worked wonders on the American stage by bringing a fine class of men into our profession in all its branches. The courses of our best colleges now include the literature of the theatre. Men like Prof. Baker of Harvard, Prof. Phelps of Yale, and Prof. Ames of California are heart and soul in the movement of education through the drama.

"There is too much slang spoken, much too lax pronunciation, and too little thought of diction in private life. No better example can be given than by hearing a company of players who give the best thought to the beauty of English as it should be spoken.

"It seems to me that a good deal of the future of the theatre is in your hands—the public's hands—backed up by your splendid newspapers and magazines, who follow it so closely, and are willing to write so extensively about it. You can demand from us almost what you want: you have the power to force us to give you the best, and it is so easy for you to ignore us, to pass us by, if we don't give you the best. It is also very easy for you to encourage us and help us to climb artistically and educationally, and bring the theatre to the heights we want to see it stand upon."

LEONARD BORWICK RECITAL.

Second Appearance in Carnegie Hall of the English Pianist.

Leonard Borwick, the English pianist, who, at his first recital this season, renewed the pleasurable impressions gained from his playing three years ago, gave a second yesterday afternoon in Carnegie Hall. Like the other, it afforded great pleasure, and revealed an interesting, vigorous, and at the same time delicate and wholly sane musical personality. The programme centred in Beethoven's sonata, Op. 111, one of the most exacting tasks for a pianist. His performance was truly fine in its masculine power, its clear outline—the embodiment of a penetrating and definite understanding—and its musical feeling. The arietta with the variations may on occasion have had an interpretation of more exalted eloquence, but this one was also a true interpretation that caught and set forth much of the spirit of the music, and followed much of its soaring flight.

Mr. Borwick's archaic pieces by Graun, Couperin, and Scarlatti were interesting and unfamiliar, and brilliantly played. He is not a Chopin "specialist" in one sense, but in the Chopin group was far from missing the right note, and the D minor prelude was presented with superbly vehement power. He paid his tribute to the recent, though not the most recent, developments by charming performances of pieces by Ravel and Debussy.

Miss Evelyn Starr's Recital.

Miss Evelyn Starr is a young Canadian violinist, a pupil of Auer, like so many youthful musicians who appear in New York in these days, from whose guiding oversight she has recently returned. She gave a recital in Aeolian Hall last evening, where there were numerous listeners, and did her master credit. She plays well, with several excellent qualities, as, for instance, her bowing, her intonation, when too great difficulties are not presented, as in some double stoppings; her tone, her general musical intelligence. But there is little to show much maturity or independent thought in her performance; she is still largely "in statu pupillari." One sign of her inexperience was to make her programme begin with two successive pieces such as Vitali's Chaconne and Corelli's "La Follia," both of which are in the form of variations developing a set eight-bar period at very considerable length, and hence, though each is a fine old specimen of the early violin style, making inevitably for monotony. From these she went on to Bruch's "Scotch Fantasy," and closed with Wieniawski's "Souvenir de Moscou," with shorter pieces by Fibich, Cui, and Schubert. Her accompaniments were skillfully played by Richard Epstein.

Vaudeville on Blackwell's Island.

Blackwell's Island will be invaded tomorrow morning by a large number of vaudeville performers who will give a Thanksgiving entertainment under the direction of E. P. Albee, general manager of the Keith circuit of theatres, for the prisoners there. Orchestras from the Orpheum and Colonial Theatres will accompany the performers to furnish the music. Two entertainments will be given simultaneously in the upper and lower halls.

Next Week's Metropolitan Operas.

The third week of the Metropolitan Opera Company's season will be opened next Monday evening with "Madama Butterfly." On Wednesday evening "Der Rosenkavalier" will be sung. "Tristan and Isolde" Thursday evening, "Tosca" on Friday, and "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci" at the Saturday matinee.

Frederick Preston Search's Recital.

Frederick Preston Search, violoncellist, continued his series of three recitals yesterday afternoon in Aeolian Hall. His programme consisted of three sonatas with piano—Beethoven's in G minor, Brahms's in F, and Saint-Saens's in F. Robert Raymond Lippitt played the piano part.

CHANDLER

The Six with the Marvelous Motor

Many who have seen the Chandler Sedan declare it is the most beautiful car ever built. We believe it is.

The grace of its lines, the luxurious comfort of its roomy body, trimmed in grey cloth and lace with satin curtains, the completeness of its appointments, the ease with which it can be ventilated—leave nothing to be desired.

Three other closed bodies, all as beautiful, comfortable and luxurious as the Sedan: 7-Passenger Limousine, $3250; 3-Passenger Coupe, $2200; 2-Passenger Cabriolet, $1950.

AMOS TUCK FRENCH, DIVORCEE, MARRIES

FIRST WIFE WAS MISS LEROY

TUXEDO PARK, Nov. 24.—Amos Tuck French, a well known society leader of Tuxedo Park and New York, brother of Mrs. Elsie French Vanderbilt of New York and Lady Cheylesmore of England, was married today at noon to Miss Martha C. Beeckman at the home of her sister, Mrs. Campbell Steward, Goshen, N. Y. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. C. Coddington of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Goshen.

The guests included Gov.-elect R. L. Beeckman and wife of Rhode Island, the former a brother of the bride; Mrs. Louis L. Lorillard of Newport, sister of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Lyman of Boston, the latter a sister of the bride; Mrs. French Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. Francis French of Tuxedo Park, Mr. and Mrs. Campbell Steward, the Misses Margaret and Katharine Steward, and Campbell W. Steward. The couple were unattended. No previous announcement had been made of the couple's engagement.

Mr. French is a son of the late Francis Ormond French of New York, and his first wife, who divorced him last March, was Miss Pauline Leroy, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stuyvesant Leroy.

He separated from his first wife, who has been prominent socially for years in New York, Newport, and Tuxedo, in August, 1911, shortly after the elopement of their daughter, Miss Julia French, with "Jack" Geraghty, a Newport chauffeur. Mr. French became estranged from his family at the time, and it is supposed that the elopement was at the bottom of the trouble. Mr. French, so far as known, never has forgiven his daughter. Mrs. French and other members of the family have visited the Geraghtys in Boston.

He has three sons and two daughters—Stuyvesant Leroy French, who will be graduated at Harvard next June; Francis O. French of Tuxedo, who was graduated at Harvard two years ago; Edward Tuck French of Newport, Mrs. Samuel J. Wagstaff of East Islip, L. I., and Mrs. John Geraghty.

The wedding of Mr. French to Miss Leroy was a society event in Newport on Dec. 2, 1884. The late Bishop Henry C. Potter performed the ceremony. It was on March 13 last that Mrs. French received an absolute divorce from Mr. French on the ground of neglect to provide. Last August Mrs. French, while motoring with her mother and two sons near Boston, was seriously injured in a crash, but has recovered.

Mr. French is a Director of the Manhattan Trust Company, the Northern Pacific Railway, and the Northern Securities Company, and a member of many New York clubs, including the Harvard, New York Yacht, Knickerbocker, Turf and Field, and Grolier.

Miss Beeckman made her home during the Winters at 57 East Fifty-eighth Street, New York, and is prominent in society.

The couple will tour the Eastern States on their honeymoon, and plan to go abroad next month.

CHARITY DANCE AT SHERRY'S

There was a large attendance at the dance given at Sherry's last night by the New York Guild of the St. Timothy Alumnae, for the benefit of the Children's Club of St. Ambrose Mission, which is located in Harlem's Little Italy. Many came to the dance after the benefit performance for the Red Cross Society, given by Anna Pavlowa and her company at the Metropolitan Opera House. The principal feature of the ball was the exhibition of latest dances by society amateurs.

Among these dances, given about 11:30 o'clock, was the fox trot, danced by Miss Katharine Moore and S. Wyman Steele and Miss Genevieve Sanford and Charles G. West, Jr. Miss Eulalia Garrison and Ernest Bigelow appeared in the tango. One of the hits of the evening was the dancing of Miss Ina Alice Kissel and Edward Shippen in the evolution of the waltz. Miss Mildred G. Rice and Bradish J. Carroll, Jr., danced the maxixe.

The Executive Committee was composed of Mrs. Stephen C. Clark, Mrs. George Whitney, Jr., and the Misses Mary W. Martin, Carol Harriman, and Ina A. Kissel. Among the patronesses were Mrs. Robert Bacon, Mrs. Walter Damrosch, Mrs. E. H. Harriman, Mrs. Bradish Johnson, Mrs. George Malcom, Mrs. Walter G. Oakman, Mrs. Thomas H. Talmage, Mrs. William P. Hamilton, and Mrs. Charles H. Tweed.

MISS ESTELLE HALL, BRIDE.

Married to James P. Silo, Jr., in Church of St. Ignatius Loyola.

The wedding of James P. Silo, Jr., and Miss Estelle Hall, the daughter of Mrs. Charles E. McManus, was celebrated at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the Church of St. Ignatius Loyola, Park Avenue and Eighty-fourth Street, by Father Chambers of the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, assisted by other priests.

Miss Hall walked with her stepfather, Charles E. McManus. She wore a taffeta and silver lace gown. The low taffeta corsage was finished in tulle and silver and had long net sleeves. A court train of cloth of silver fell from her shoulders, and the pointed end was outlined with trails of orange blossoms. The full tulle veil came to the flowers on the train, and was caught to the back of her blonde coiffure with a band of orange blossoms. She carried gardenias, orange blossoms, and orchids.

Little Miss Evelyn McManus, a half sister of the bride, was flower girl. She was in a pink chiffon frock with a blue sash, topped by a large pale blue hat trimmed with pink, and carried a basket filled with pink roses and blue forget-me-nots. Thomas McCahill, Jr., was page in an Eton suit, and walked with the flower girl.

The bridesmaids were the Misses Eloise Sheron, Marjorie Elais, Margaret Homans, and Beatrice Woertz. Their gowns were of pink taffeta, the full skirts finished in scallops and showed a deep border of the silver lace petticoat underneath. Their large black tulle hats were trimmed with kolinsky fur and pink ostrich tips. They carried brown and white feather fans over their right arms and bouquets of deep pink roses and ferns.

Mrs. Eugene Wagner, a sister of the bridegroom, was the matron of honor. She wore a draped pink velvet gown. Her large black velvet hat had a dash of pink, and she carried clusters of mauve orchids.

Mr. Silo's best man was Justin O'Brien, and the ushers were Adrian Farrell, William Ralston, Earl Rathbun, Eugene Wagner, Peter Duffy, and Edward Barrett.

Mr. and Mrs. Silo are going South on their honeymoon trip, and on their return will make their home at 498 West End Avenue.

MISS MARY R. SAGE WEDS.

The wedding of William Hervey Bolton, son of the late Thomas Bolton, and Miss Mary Rutgers Sage, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Sage, took place at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in St. Andrew's Church, 127th Street and Fifth Avenue, the church in which the bride's parents were married, and of which Mr. Sage is a Warden. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. George R. Van De Water, assisted by the Rev. Joseph Irvie.

The bride, who walked with her father, wore a soft white satin robe, having a plain satin court train suspended from the shoulders. The square neck was draped with point applique and the skirt was flounced with point applique. The long sleeves were tulle, and the tulle veil, held by a cap of point lace and orange blossoms, swept to the end of the long train. She carried lilies of the valley. The maid of honor was the bride's sister, Miss Katharine Robson Sage. She was gowneed in cream lace over pink taffeta, and wore a large sand-colored velvet hat with a brown plume and carried flame roses.

The bridesmaids were the Misses Mildred Brewster, Helen Esther Stratton, Margaret Foster Smith, Mary Kopper, and Anna T. Bottomley. They wore geranium pink satin frocks veiled with net to match, and the corsages had silver collars high at the back and low in the front. Their brown velvet hats were trimmed with geranium-colored ostrich plumes, and all of them carried roses shading from red to yellow. The bride's godchild, Emma Popham Fish, was the flower girl.

Mr. Bolton's brother, Arthur T. Bolton, was his best man, and the ushers included his brothers-in-law, Robert Minton Cook and Louis O. Tilton, and also Edwin Huestel, Anton C. H. Hupfel, E. Harris Janes, and Herbert Sage Schoonmaker.

The ceremony was followed by a small reception at the home of the bride's parents, 512 Fifth Avenue, for the relatives. Mrs. Sage was gowned in green velvet, with black hat, and the bride's grandmother, Mrs. J. Henry Whitney, who was also in the receiving line, in deep violet velvet, topped by a violet hat.

On their return from their honeymoon journey Mr. and Mrs. Bolton will live at Bedford Park.

CARDINAL CAVALLARI DEAD.

Patriarch of Venice Who Condemned Tango Dance and Immodest Dress.

PARIS, Nov. 24.—A dispatch to the Havas Agency from Venice says that Cardinal Aristides Cavallari, patriarch of Venice, died today.

Cardinal Cavallari was born at Chioggia in 1849 and was raised to the Cardinalate in 1907. He was noted for his simple piety. On various occasions he expressed himself volubly against the immodest dress of women and once is said to have stopped a church service in order to make a woman worshipper cover her open-work shirtwaist.

In January of this year Cardinal Cavallari issued an episcopal letter strongly condemning the tango dance, declaring that "only those persons who have lost all moral sense can endure it." He ordered all the ecclesiastics to deny absolution to those who, having danced the tango, did not promise to discontinue the practice.

Cardinal Cavallari first became prominent in 1911 when he began a campaign in Venice against the prevailing fashions. At his instigation the clergy preached against the fashions and the tight skirt in particular. The anticlerical party espoused the cause of the tight skirt, and a bitter controversy ensued.

In January, 1912, the Patriarch made an impassioned appeal against the tendencies in dress, in which he recalled what St. Peter said on the subject of woman's greatest adornment, and asked the pertinent question whether such was the leading idea among the women of the present day. Shortly after this Pope Pius X. sent him a public letter of approval for the stand he had taken on the dress question.

THE McALPIN HAS BOTH SIZE AND SERVICE

The unvarying high quality of the McAlpin food and service is indicative of the beneficial results to the general public of a vast and perfectly controlled organization.

As a matter of fact, The McAlpin manifests the prime achievement of hotel construction and conduct. To achieve its size and service has been no mean task—and in many ways the former has been made to contribute to the latter. This is most noticeable in the superiority of the McAlpin Restaurants.

OFFICIALLY DENY RESERVE BOARD ROW

BOARD IN UTMOST HARMONY

No Threat to Resign Made by Any Member, It Is Declared—Power to Shift Deposits Not Doubted.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—The published report from New York that there was a "rift" in the Federal Reserve Board over the possible deposit of Government funds in banks in the cotton States for the purpose of aiding the financial situation there brought forth a prompt denial from Paul M. Warburg and W. P. G. Harding, members of the board. The President also said this morning that his information contradicted the report of a disagreement. The statement of Mr. Warburg and Mr. Harding follows:

"The story printed in a morning paper to the effect that there was a rift in the Federal Reserve Board is absurd upon its face and without the slightest foundation. As the story purports to have come from members of the Federal Reserve Board in New York on Friday last, and as we are the only two members who were there at that time, having been in that city on that date to attend a meeting of the Cotton Fund Committee, we feel it our duty to make this positive and unequivocal denial."

The report had it that four members of the board would resign rather than allow Secretary McAdoo to deposit Government moneys in the Southern banks. There have been no threats on the part of any member of the board to resign.

As a matter of fact there has been entire unanimity of opinion and action in the board, of which Secretary McAdoo is ex-officio a member, on the matter of relief for the cotton situation. The board promptly examined and indorsed the Wade plan for the cotton pool.

The circumstance that the amount said to have been decided upon by Secretary McAdoo for deposit in Southern banks, as given in the New York report, was $135,000,000 gave rise to the interpretation that opposition had developed against the plan approved by Controller Williams of counting advances to the cotton loan as part of bank reserves to the amount of 75 per cent. of their face. But members of the Reserve Board at once said that this was not what was under discussion. They declared that the purpose of the report was to create sentiment against the exercise by the Secretary of the Treasury of the power conferred upon him under the Federal Reserve Bank act to deposit funds in the cotton States.

This power also rests with the Reserve Board itself, which may by the affirmative vote of five members require Federal Reserve Banks to rediscount the discounted paper of other Federal Reserve Banks at rates of interest to be fixed by the board. There is no doubt of the power of the board to transfer large reserves in the North and West to the South. That it is contemplated is not asserted, but that it is wholly possible under the law is very plain.

RESERVE BANKS' WAR TAX.

Question of Their Liability Referred to Board by Collector.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—The Collector of Internal Revenue has referred to the Federal Reserve Board a question as to the taxability of the twelve Federal Reserve Banks under the War Revenue act. The Reserve Board referred the question to its counsel.

The act provides that on and after Nov. 1, 1914, "bankers shall pay $1 for each $1,000 of capital used or employed, and in estimating capital, surplus and undivided profits shall be included. The amount of such annual tax shall in all cases be computed on the basis of the capital, surplus, and undivided profits for the preceding fiscal year."

As the Federal Reserve Banks were only declared open for business on Nov. 16, it is doubted that a tax measured by the preceding fiscal year would lie against them for the first year. As the act expires by limitation on Dec. 1, 1915, the tax could only apply for a month and a half after the first year of the operation of the Federal Reserve Banks.

There is one other respect in which the war tax may affect the operation of the new Federal Reserve system. That is the levying of a tax of 2 cents on $100, or fraction thereof, on promissory notes "except banknotes issued for circulation." As promissory notes will probably be drawn for the purpose of rediscounting at the Federal Reserve Banks, the tax will probably affect, theoretically at least, a slight increase in the cost of money to the individual borrower. But the difference will probably be too slight to be felt.

$25,000,000 IN GAS BONDS.

Service Commission Authorizes Bond Issue by Consolidated.

If no legal difficulties result from a previous issue of debentures the Consolidated Gas Company will soon be authorized by the Public Service Commission to issue $25,000,000 of convertible debenture bonds and $25,000,000 of common stock to redeem them.

The debentures are to replace money used to acquire the New York Edison Company and the Astoria Light, Heat and Power Company, to discharge $5,000,000 of eight-month collateral trust notes and to discharge demand notes issued in 1906 and 1907 for $2,500,000.

When the matter came yesterday before the commission Commissioner Maltbie raised the point that last July, when the application for permission to issue these debentures was made, it was evident that they were about to go to a premium. "Rights" were being traded on the Curb at 15 per cent. premium. Consequently to raise $25,000,000 in cash, it would be necessary to issue only $22,000,000 6 per cent. debentures. So he suggested that the commission authorize the company to sell only enough bonds to provide the cash needed. There was some debate as to conditions of the market in July and since the war started, and Commissioner Maltbie's motion was voted down. The commission then voted unanimously to have the attorneys prepare the authorization.

CITY BONUS OF $5,000,000.

Alderman Wants Condemnation Proceedings Investigated.

Alderman William H. Pendry of Brooklyn presented a resolution in the board yesterday calling for a thorough investigation of the whole system of condemnation proceedings, and said the city had paid at least $5,000,000 more in the last five years than the assessed valuation of property purchased.

The Alderman said the city had paid an average of 64 per cent. more for property it has taken than the values represented on the Tax Department books. Either the system of assessing values was wrong or there was something radically wrong with the condemnation work, he added. Abnormal jumps in prices of property almost invariably precede action by the city, the Alderman said, and among instances he cited to support his resolution were these:

The Seaside Park, Rockaway, assessed for $974,000 and for which the city paid $1,250,000; the Broadway Ferry property, for which the city paid $1,000,000 more than the sum for which it was assessed; the County Court House site, which was purchased for $6,243,000 and assessed for $4,196,000, and the Richmond Court House site, assessed for $[illegible],500 and sold to the city for $227,705.

NO STRIKE RECEIVERSHIP.

President Drops as Illegal That Plan of Pacifying Colorado.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—President Wilson let callers know today that at one time the Administration had considered the plan proposed by the American Federation of Labor for putting the Colorado coal mines in the hands of receivers so as to bring the long strike to an end. The President added, however, that after the Secretary of Labor had consulted the Solicitor of his department on the subject, he had decided that the course proposed was without warrant of law. The plan has now been dropped.

DENVER, Nov. 24.—Gov. E. M. Ammons, Democrat, and Gov.-elect George R. Carlson, Republican, today joined in a request that the investigation by the Federal Industrial Commission into the Colorado coal miners' strike, scheduled to begin Dec. 1, be postponed. The request was made in a telegram to President Wilson and Frank P. Walsh, Chairman of the commission, as follows:

"We have had within the last year more than a score of investigations of industrial conditions in our coal fields, including one by a special Congressional committee and others by the Federal Bureau of Labor. We seriously question whether an investigation at this time can bring out any new information.

"The undersigned are working in harmony and in the interests of law, order, and peace, with an earnest desire to have no further expense or bloodshed in Colorado. We have a feeling of good will toward all, but a fixed determination to preserve the present status of peace in this State.

"The entrance into Colorado of your estimable body at about the time of the withdrawal of the Federal troops and at approximately the date fixed for the present Administration to retire and the incoming Administration to take up its new duties might greatly embarrass us in the administration of our programme of government, and the hearings conducted by your committee might serve to inflame passions and endanger the peace maintained by the troops in the past. We therefore respectfully request and urge that the date of your proposed investigation be postponed."

Relief for Unemployed Halts.

No new subscriptions were received by the Mayor yesterday for the fund which Dock Commissioner R. A. C. Smith started with $1,000 for the relief of the city's unemployed. Until a "Mayor's Relief Organization" is formed, the Mayor is not ready to receive contributions at his office. Tax Commissioner Ardolph L. Kline denied that he had refused to act as Treasurer of the "American White Cross" for the relief of former soldiers and sailors out of employment. He said no committee from the organization ever called on him.

Dinner to Joseph A. Broderick.

The thirteen past Presidents of the New York Chapter of the American Institute of Banking, gave a dinner at the Transportation Club in the Manhattan Hotel last night to Joseph A. Broderick, who has been appointed Chief of the Division of Audit and Examination of the Federal Reserve system in Washington. A gold fob was presented to Mr. Broderick at the feast.

STATE OF GEORGIA SEEKS LOAN HERE

Gov. Slaton Defers Sale of Bonds or Borrowing of Money Until Jan. 15.

SAYS SOUTH IS CHEERFUL

Gov. John M. Slaton of Georgia is at the Waldorf, having come to New York to arrange for the refunding of an issue of State bonds.

"In regard to the Georgia bonds," said Gov. Slaton, "I have the option of either selling them or making a loan for twelve to eighteen months. I have had the matter up with leading bankers and financiers of New York, and they tell me it will be better to make an arrangement about the bonds after Jan. 15, when they think money matters will be easier.

"As for conditions in Georgia, I may tell you that some pressure was brought to bear upon me to call a special session of the Legislature in order to curtail by law the production of cotton in our State. I said that not only would such a law be unconstitutional, but pernicious in principle, and that it would be much less an exercise of governmental power to limit all Southern stores to selling cotton, or limit the newspapers of the South to advertising cotton, than to put a farmer in jail for raising cotton on his own land.

"I regret very much the presentation of any part of the South as in a state of mendicancy. Just before I came to New York I went to the various Georgia fairs, and I have never seen people more cheerful nor evidencing greater confidence in the future than the people I saw at these places. At these county fairs were exhibited grain, hay, cattle, poultry, in fact, all the products which are essential to the economic independence of a State, and the farmers of Georgia realized that it was with them to produce all that was necessary to sustain the farm without the aid of purchases from other States, and that they could raise cotton as a surplus money crop.

"In fact, we have 235 growing days as against 165 in the State of Ohio. We can raise oats more cheaply than Ohio, and produce hay more cheaply than Iowa. Cotton grows so easily, and with so little attention, that naturally the temptation has been toward the least exertion; but Georgia has learned the wisdom of independence and self-reliance, and next year, instead of sending $172,000,000 out of the State for foodstuffs, including meat, our farmers will devote their attention to home production of these necessities. The cotton crop will be curtailed, and a system of crop diversification adopted."

WON'T CLOG SHORT SESSION

President Not to Urge Pension or Budget System at This Time.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—The President today mentioned in casual conversation certain subjects that would not be urged upon Congress in his address at the opening of the short session. While he said little about what he would recommend, his remarks in general seemed to support the prediction made by Speaker Clark two nights ago that Appropriaton bills would take up most of the time of the session.

The President will not recommend at this session a system of civil service pensions for aged clerks in the service of the Government, nor will he press a budget system, though he is understood to have favored some regulation of estimates along the lines in vogue in most other countries. The President suggested that in the short session these matters could hardly receive the consideration to which they were entitled.

In response to a direct question as to whether he would press the bill for the purchase of merchant ships by the Government to preserve the overseas trade of the United States during the continuance of the war, the President said that he was not certain just how many ships had made themselves available for the American trade by changing their registration. He said that he had heard of shipments in various parts of the country, however, that had been held up for lack of vessels that could cross the ocean without fear of seizure.

SILVER SET FOR SCHNEIDER.

Three Gifts from Employes on Official's Fiftieth Birthday.

County Clerk William F. Schneider was 50 years old yesterday. From the office of his private business he received a gold watch with an affectionate message from the employes there; the employes in the Naturalization Bureau sent him fifty American Beauty roses, and after working hours all of the employes in the County Clerk's office assembled in a near by courtroom and gave him a heavy Colonial silver service set with a salver 30 by 32 inches, which bore a suitable inscription.

The presentation address was made by John H. Conway, the assistant law clerk and oldest employe. Deputy County Clerk Selden and Edward J. Horn also spoke.

PRESIDENT O'DWYER OUT.

Resigns on Eve of Election in the Democratic Club.

Edward F. O'Dwyer, Chief Judge of the City Court, resigned yesterday as President of the National Democratic Club. Politicians said his retirement means that the fight on Tammany in the club would be called off.

"My health has been greatly impaired," said Judge O'Dwyer. "I found it necessary to retire, as I could not devote the necessary time to the club's affairs."

A new President will be elected on Dec. 2. Both the Tammany and anti-Tammany members have candidates in the field.

NOTED MEN TESTIFY FOR CAMPBELL WILL

ATTACK DAUGHTER'S BIRTH

Contestants Seek to Show Also That Testator Was Influenced to Leave His Estate to the Church.

Many men prominent in this city testified yesterday before John J. Tierney, a notary, in the suit of relatives to break the will of James Campbell, a broker and promoter of public utilities in St. Louis, who died suddenly in his Summer home at Greenwich, Conn., on June 12, leaving an estate worth $16,000,000.

The depositions were taken under authority of a commission granted by Judge Rassieur in the Circuit Court of St. Louis, where the will contest was brought by Margaret C. Harrison, Mamie C. Spargo, James C. Campbell of Chicago, Archie W. Campbell, and Genevieve Baker of Wheeling, W. Va., nephews and nieces of the capitalist. They allege that Mr. Campbell was influenced unduly to leave his estate in trust for the ultimate benefit of St. Louis University, a Jesuit institution. They allege also that as a result of an attack upon him made in St. Louis six years ago, in which Campbell suffered a fractured skull, he was of unsound mind and that he left no child, although in his will he named Lois Ann Campbell, now Mrs. Elzy G. Burkham of St. Louis, as a daughter.

Big Income for Wife and Daughter

Campbell's will made provision for his daughter and widow, who was Miss Florence Adele von Platner of New York City. He specified that they should receive the income from the estate, amounting to approximately $500,000 annually. The daughter, whose parentage is questioned by the contestants, was born at the Grand Union Hotel in this city on March 17, 1893. At the Greenwich Summer home, where her father died, she was married to Mr. Burkham, a young civil engineer, in September.

The depositions were taken yesterday in the law offices of Sullivan & Cromwell, at 49 Wall Street. L. Frank Ottofy of St. Louis and Scott McLanahan of Austin, McLanahan & Merritt of this city represented the contestants. Richard L. Goode and Frederick N. Judson, counsel for the Mercantile Trust Company of St. Louis, executor under the will; E. V. P. Schneiderhahn, on behalf of St. Louis University, and Mrs. Campbell's personal attorney, Morton Jourdan, represented the defendants.

The testimony of the witnesses summoned by the defense was introduced to shatter the allegations that Mr. Campbell died intestate, and that when he signed his will he was in feeble health, and by reason of incidents in his business and social life and his fear of death and future punishment he was easily imposed upon and influenced to leave his immense estate in trust for St. Louis University, to be turned over to that institution upon the death of the wife and daughter.

Mr. Ottofy objected to the questions put to the witnesses, and asserted that the hearing was without proper jurisdiction, inasmuch as the commission granted by the St. Louis court was signed only by the court clerk. Notary Tierney overruled this objection.

J. B. Harris, a member of the brokerage firm of Harris, Winthrop & Co., who is a stockholder in many corporations in which Mr. Campbell was interested, said he had rooms at the Hotel Plaza, where Mr. Campbell always retained a suite, and that he regarded Mr. Campbell as possessing great mental and physical vigor.

Mr. Harris replied that he never had heard Mr. Campbell refer to his daughter except in terms of the greatest affection.

Found Campbell's Mind Strong.

Edmund C. Converse, President of the Astor Trust Company, Director in sixteen corporations and formerly President of the Liberty Bank and the Bankers Trust Company, said he had known Mr. Campbell since he made his Summer home in Greenwich, near where Mr. Converse has a country estate. He said Mr. Campbell was a remarkable business man, of strong mind, and that he was in the best of mental and physical health up to within a short time of his death.

James Daniel Mortimer, now President of the North American Company of 30 Broad Street, who succeeded Mr. Campbell in that office in March, said his predecessor was a man of great business acumen. James F. Fogarty, Secretary and Assistant Treasurer of the North American Company, testified also to Mr. Campbell's powerful intellect up to the time of and even during his last illness. Fogarty, though hardly more than a youth, was one of the last of Mr. Campbell's business associates to see him. The ailing financier called him to his bedside at Greenwich on May 31, twelve days before his death. Even then, Mr. Fogarty asserted, Mr. Campbell's mental condition was perfect.

George R. Sheldon, Vice President and Treasurer of the North American Company, and Treasurer of the Republican National Committee since 1906, said Mr. Campbell was perfectly competent when he made his will.

A certificate of birth dated March 27, 1893, ten days after the birth of Miss Lois Ann Campbell, now Mrs. Burkham, and signed by the late Dr. Andrew H. Smith of 22 East Forty-second Street, naming Mr. Campbell, 45, as the father and Mrs. Florence A. Campbell, 35, as the mother, was put in evidence. It set forth that Mrs. Campbell had given birth to two children previous to the birth of Lois Ann Campbell.

Kaiser Decorates Senor Quesada.

Word has been received in this city that the Cuban Minister in Berlin, Señor Gonzalo de Quesada, was decorated by Kaiser Wilhelm with the Order of the Prussian Crown on Oct. 31. It is believed here that the decoration was intended as a recognition of Señor de Quesada's book, "The German Fatherland," printed in Spanish in March of this year. Señor de Quesada was formerly the Cuban Minister to this country. In 1898 he was put forward as a candidate for President of Cuba, but he declined to run.

BIG EXPORTS LAST WEEK.

Those for Year Now Exceed Those of Last Year to Date.

The Custom House report of exports, exclusive of specie for the week ended Nov. 21, issued yesterday and amounting to $19,885,938, carries this year's exports beyond those of the preceding year for the first time in several months. The week before the exports were valued at $24,189,270, and at $17,980,211 in the week before that. Exports from here the corresponding week in 1913 amounted to $13,219,049. Exports for the year to date are set down at $792,983,250, compared with $786,319,248 in the same period last year, this year's excess now being $6,664,002.

England continued last week to be the largest purchaser of American goods, the value of shipments to that country being placed at $6,358,920. This sum covered foodstuffs, underwear, clothing and military supplies generally. Similar exports from this port to France had a value of $3,153,412, while shipments to Denmark were $2,312,976. Exports to Sweden were valued at $803,467, and to the Netherlands at $697,391. Shipments to Russia and Russian possessions had a value of $376,049. Goods for Norway were returned at $486,490.

Heavy shipments were recorded to Cuba, their value being $815,479. Exports to South American countries from here showed some improvement over the preceding week. No exports are put down as having been sent to China.

PROTEST RATE INCREASES.

Philadelphians Hold Mass Meeting to Object to Proposed Advances.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 24.—Almost every business and civic association in this city and its suburbs, along with country clubs, churches, private schools and commuters' associations from this State and New Jersey, were represented this afternoon in a mass meeting of protest against the proposed increase of passenger fares, to go into effect by the Pennsylvania, Reading and Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Companies on Dec. 15.

Samuel Rea, President of the Pennsylvania Railroad, who was invited to present the railroad side, refused to attend or to send any of his subordinates. Theodore Voorhees, President of the Reading, merely acknowledged the receipt of an invitation sent him.

Lynching in South Carolina.

FREE MARKETS KILL TRUST.

President Marks Is Told Poultry Monopoly No Longer Exists.

Borough President Marks made public yesterday a letter from H. A. Emerson, manager of the Live Poultry Auction Company, in which Mr. Emerson says that the free markets have killed the Poultry Trust. The public, he says, is buying turkeys and other poultry at an average of 5 cents less than it paid last year. He believes that New York will save $300,000 on Thanksgiving turkeys.

"Last year, during the Thanksgiving holiday market and Christmas market following," he writes, "frauds and irregularities between commission men and Inspectors for the Board of Health were shown up in the newspapers. These were so glaring and so vile that every one believed that some one would certainly be put out of business. It was estimated last November and December that country shippers were robbed out of $150,000 through the manipulations of certain commission men and dealers. On the other hand exorbitant prices were charged throughout the Fall and Winter to the consumer for poultry by retail markets."

Divorce Decree for Dr. Sears.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

The volume of speculative operations in the wheat market was small, and, after showing a steady tone early, the market developed heaviness and closed ⅜c to ½c net lower. Bradstreet's visible showed an increase of 2,021,000 bushels east of the Rockies, while stocks in America and afloat for Europe gained 2,005,000 bushels, compared with an increase of 2,253,000 bushels a year ago. In the local cash market No. 2 red Winter wheat was quoted at $1.18½; No. 2 hard, $1.18½; No. 1 Northern Duluth, $1.20¾; No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $1.25, all nominal, cost, insurance, and freight, Buffalo.

CORN.

The corn market was inactive and prices were easier, closing ⅝c to ⅞c below the final of Monday. Receipts at interior points were 1,063,000 bushels, compared with 561,000 bushels last year, and Bradstreet's visible decreased 263,000 bushels, compared with a decrease of 960,000 bushels a year ago. The local cash market was easy, new No. 2 yellow quoted at 75c, cost, insurance, and freight, to arrive, and prime Argentine at 78@79c, delivered.

OATS.

The oats market was quiet, and, while prices declined ⅛c to ¼c in sympathy with wheat and corn, the undertone was steady, owing to liberal clearances from the seaboard. Bradstreet's visible increased 526,000 bushels, compared with an increase of 283,000 bushels last year. The local cash market was steady; standard quoted at 54½@55c; No. 2 white, 55@55½c; No. 3 white, 54@54½c; No. 4 white, 53½@54c; fancy clipped white, 56@57c; ordinary clipped white, 54@55c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The volume of business in the market for hog products was again small, and prices were slightly lower, owing to liberal receipts of live hogs at Western points and lower prices at the yards. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 25,000; estimated for Wednesday, 31,000; Kansas City received 27,000 and Omaha 7,700.

COFFEE.

There was little of interest transpired in the coffee market yesterday, as the trade was inclined to await today's developments, which promised to be of unusual moment in the coffee trade. This will be first notice day for December delivery, and as the open interest in this month will doubtless be practically closed with today's operations, the voluntary Committee on Liquidation decided to remain in continuous session from 10.30 until 3 o'clock to facilitate liquidating operations. At 12 o'clock the Board of Managers of the Exchange will hold a special meeting, at which it is expected that the question of opening the Exchange will be discussed, and it was the consensus of opinion among members yesterday that the board will decide to reopen the Exchange on either Nov. 30 or Dec. 2. Sales through the Liquidating Committee yesterday amounted to 29,000 bags, and at the close of the day December was quoted at 5.30 to 5.31c; May, 5.88 to 5.89c, and July at 6.69 to 6.71c. In the local spot market quotations remained unchanged, with Rio 7s quoted at 6¼c and Santos 4s at 10c.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The cottonseed oil market showed a very steady tone throughout the greater part of the day, owing to firmness in the crude position, and owing to more or less covering by recent sellers, but late in the day offerings increased, and at the close the market was easier, with net losses of 1 to 9 points.

COTTON.

Reports that English and Continental buyers have purchased a very large quantity of cotton in the Southwest at the prevailing low level of prices are now finding confirmation in the expanding exports. Galveston alone cleared over 50,000 bales for Great Britain yesterday, one of the biggest days in the history of that port, while total exports of 64,804 bales from all ports for the day, made the total clearance so far reported since the beginning of the season. The opening was steady at a decline of 3 to 7 points in sympathy with lower Liverpool cables, and, after some little irregularity, active months sold 8 to 14 points net lower. Slight rallies followed the big exports, but were barely maintained, with the market closing steady at a net loss of 4 to 12 points. Southern spot markets were generally unchanged yesterday, the exception being Charleston, which was ⅛c lower. The local market for spot cotton was quiet and unchanged, at $7.75 for middling upland; sales nil.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts for week, 35,458 packages; last week, 42,014 packages; imports, 1,224 packages. The downward tendency of the market continued for a few days following our last weekly report, extra creamery selling as low as 34c and the higher scoring lots at 34½@35c. Trade began to improve a little on Friday, and by Monday the feeling was enough firmer to warrant the advance of close to ½c on the better grades. Today business was quieter, but the improvement well sustained. Ladles and packing stock have declined somewhat and close very quiet. Creamery, extras, (92 score,) 34½@34¾c; higher scoring lots, 35@35½c; firsts, 30@33½c; seconds, 26@29c; thirds, 24½@25½c; creamery, held, extras, (92 score,) 32½c; higher scoring lots, 33@33½c; firsts, 29@32c; seconds, 26@28½c; State dairy, finest, 32@33c; good to prime, 28@31c; common to fair, 23@27c; process, extras, 25½@26½c; firsts, 24@25c; lower grades, 22@23c; imitation creamery, firsts, 23½@24½c; ladles, current make, firsts, 22@22½c; seconds, 21@21½c; lower grades, 19½@20½c; packing stock, held, fine, 21½@22c; current make, No. 2, 20½@21c; lower grades, 19@20c.

EGGS.—Receipts for week, 39,720 cases. Receipts have continued on a very small scale and the supply of new-laid qualities has grown smaller. Prices for all lots containing a good to large proportion of such have favored the seller and show further advance. There has been some improvement in the good medium qualities and high grades of Fall packed refrigerators have also met a fair demand, but seriously defective lots of fresh gathered eggs and all inferior qualities of Fall packed continue dull and urgently offered in competition with storage goods. Fresh gathered, extra fine, per dozen, 41@43c; extra firsts, 39@40c; firsts, 36@38c; seconds, 29@35c; thirds and poorer, 23@28c; dirties, No. 1, 24@25c; No. 2 and poorer, 20@23c; checks, good to prime, dry, 22@23c; undergrades, 14@21c; Fall refrigerator, finest, 28@30c; poor to good, 26@27c; refrigerator, early packed, special marks, fancy, charges paid, 25@25½c; firsts, charges paid, 23½@24½c; seconds, charges paid, 22@23c; undergrades, 14@21½c; whites, Western, 24@26c; State, Pennsylvania, and near by, hennery whites, fine to fancy, 56@60c; defective, 45@55c; gathered whites as to size and quality, 35@55c; Western, gathered whites, 35@50c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby, hennery browns, 43@45c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 35@43c; nearby, refrigerator, whites, 24@27c.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—Conditions have changed but little in the last twenty-four hours. Pressure is high from the Middle Atlantic States to the Pacific Coast and relatively low from the lake region westward, but no well-developed storm appears within the region of low pressure. Showers have occurred in Michigan and rain in Texas.

It is warmer in the interior valleys and generally east of the Rocky Mountains.

Local rains are probable in the lower lake region and Northern New England, also in Texas and the Gulf States; elsewhere fair weather Wednesday and Thursday is probable, with moderate temperatures.

Southern New England, New Jersey, and Western Pennsylvania—Fair Wednesday and Thursday; warmer Wednesday.

Northern New England—Cloudy and warmer Wednesday, probably light rain or snow. Thursday, fair.

3 A. M.	44	25	4 P. M.	48	37
6 A. M.	41	26	6 P. M.	41	36
9 A. M.	44	30	9 P. M.	39	34
12 M.	48	34	11 P. M.	38	33

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 30; for the corresponding date last year it was 43; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 41.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 27, at 8 P. M. it was 35. Maximum temperature 39 degrees at 2:30 P. M., minimum 22 degrees at 12:02 A. M. Humidity 73 per cent. at 8 A. M., 56 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 30.67 inches, at 8 P. M. it stood at 30.42 inches.

EDUCATION NOTES.

Portable buildings are being erected at Kew Gardens. They will be designated as P. S. 97, Queens.

The Board of Superintendents will offer a report at today's meeting of the Board of Education recommending that a bonus of $250 each be granted to the District Superintendents in charge of the evening schools and of the day high schools.

The following nominations have been made by the Board of Superintendents: Theckla Pick as a teacher of German in the elementary schools, and Alma W. Campbell as a model teacher in the Brooklyn Training School.

Leave of absence without pay has been recommended for Louise M. Drew, a teacher, to enable her to care for her mother, who is dangerously ill.

The retirement of seven elementary school teachers on Feb. 1, 1915, has been recommended by the Board of Superintendents.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

City.

An oral examination of candidates for examiner of charitable institutions was held yesterday in the Municipal Building. Another oral examination will be held on Dec. 1.

There are fifteen candidates for Coroner's Physician. The receipt of applications for this position has just been closed.

Forty-five names are on the list for dock builder, all boroughs. George Wetzler heads the list.

United States.

The commission announces a competitive examination at the New York Custom House for editorial clerk, for men only, on Dec. 2, to fill a vacancy in the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Dept. of Commerce, Washington, D. C., at a salary of $1,600 a year. Competitors will be examined at statistical calculations, proofreading, report writing, editing, thesis, education and experience. An educational training equivalent to that required for a bachelor's degree from a college or university of recognized standing is a prerequisite. Applicants must have reached their twenty-first but not their forty-fifth birthday on the date of the examination. Further information may be obtained from the commission, Washington, D. C.

The Best Guide for Investors

at a time like this is to study the type of securities which has been the first to respond to improved conditions. Funds placed in such standard bonds as are now being regarded with increasing favor may be considered as safely invested and later on can be diverted into more profitable channels. ACCEPTANCES

Are you satisfied with the rate of interest you are receiving? Would a guaranteed investment payable in 30, 60 or 90 days appeal to you?

Your idle funds would then be returning you an income while not permanently employed.

The Federal Reserve Act has opened a new field for short term investments—"Acceptances" based on imports and exports are now available. They are guaranteed by a National Bank. They are more attractive than a certificate of deposit.

Write or call for full information.

Exchange to Resume Public Trading in Bonds—An Open Call Money Market.

In deciding yesterday to reopen the Stock Exchange next Saturday for public trading in bonds the Governors of the Exchange in very practical manner gave voice to their belief that the time has come when it is both safe and expedient to take an important step toward the re-establishment of ordinary financial operations. There has been a large amount of trading in bonds recently, but the business has not been made public and investors at large have had no means of informing themselves of the state of the market. That disadvantage is now to be done away with, and the change should increase the confidence already engendered by the other favorable developments of recent weeks.

It is expected that with the resumption of public trading in bonds the ordinary machinery of the call money market will again be set in motion. In one respect the opening of the Stock Exchange for bond trading would have occurred under more favorable conditions if the committee's plan to open last Saturday had not been abandoned. Since then exchange rates have risen rather sharply, but this one feature of adverse import is no doubt counterbalanced by other changes which the last week has brought. The fact that the Federal Reserve Banks are now in operation and are serving both to strengthen and to ease the money market is of much importance to the security market, even though directly the Federal Reserve Banks supply no credits for employment in securities.

That the resumption of open trading in bonds is favorably regarded in the bond market itself is indicated by the fact that for the last two days, in effect since it became practically certain that the Exchange would reopen at the end of this week, bond prices have been recovering from the reaction which they underwent last Friday and Saturday, following Thursday's news that the plan to reopen at the end of last week or the beginning of this had been abandoned. The volume of bond trading has grown to quite substantial proportions, and the existence of considerable investment demand is being clearly disclosed.

The existence of the gold pool again became a factor in the exchange market yesterday, for sterling exchange rose sharply enough to suggest that further sales of exchange by that pool might be found necessary. Before the end of the day, however, exchange reacted, one factor in this secondary movement being the knowledge that a large amount of exchange through the gold pool is available should the gold point be passed. The delay in completing the plan for the establishment of a $100,000,000 credit with the Bank of England, which has been under discussion at Washington and which now has to be further considered in London, has possibly had some effect in advancing exchange rates the last two days, although bankers here have believed that the necessity for such an arrangement has passed. It has for some time been clear, of course, that our pressing obligations on the other side had been pretty well cleared up or provided for, and if our credit trade balance continues to grow we shall be able to maintain a comfortable position in the international exchanges.

Why

is and why it will remain the safest as well as the most popular investment issue in this country;

Because—its management is unexcelled.

Because—its directors are not mere ornaments but hard workers, who are strictly on the job day and night.

Because—it has the choicest business locations in the country which no amount of money can duplicate.

Because—the directors have always pursued the policy of letting the stockholders derive the largest possible benefit from the operations of the company.

It gave to its stockholders this year 6% in cash and Profit Sharing stock resulting in a total disbursement at present quotations of 1914 has been an exceedingly prosperous year for the company and stockholders may look forward to handsome dividends in 1915.

International Navigation Company (of New Jersey)

First Mortgage Sinking Fund Five Per Cent. Gold Bonds, Dated February 1, 1899; Due February 1, 1929

The International Mercantile Marine Company, formerly International Navigation Company (of New Jersey) has announced that the European War has necessitated the complete suspension of the Red Star Line service, and on account of the unsettled condition of ocean transportation it is impossible to form any estimate of the Company's earnings for the balance of the year. In view of this situation, the Company determined to defer the interest upon its Four and One-half Per Cent. Mortgage and Collateral Trust Bonds, which matured October 1, 1914.

In anticipation of the probable default by the Company in payment of the interest due February 1, 1915, on its First Mortgage Sinking Fund Five Per Cent. Gold Bonds, it is believed that the bondholders should unite in prompt and concerted action for the protection of their interests. At the request of holders of a large amount of said bonds, the undersigned have consented to act as a Committee for the Bondholders, reserving the right to associate others with themselves as members of such Committee; and a protective agreement, to be dated the 12th day of November, 1914, has been prepared.

Holders of said bonds are requested to deposit the same at once in negotiable form, together with the coupon due February 1, 1915, and all subsequent coupons, with the Fidelity Trust Company, of the City of Philadelphia, the Depositary named in said agreement, or with the Bankers Trust Company, the Agent for the Depositary in the City of New York. Certificates of deposit will be issued for all bonds deposited.

Any stamp tax imposed upon the transfer of registered bonds will be payable by the Depositor at the time the bonds are deposited.

Signatures to transfers of registered bonds must be guaranteed by a bank or banker known to the Depositary or its Agent.

Dated, Philadelphia, November 12th, 1914.

First Mortgage Five Per Cent. Thirty Year Gold Bonds.

New York, November 17, 1914.

Notice is hereby given that the Bondholders' Committee has fixed Tuesday, the fifteenth day of December, 1914, as the limit of time within which the holders of undeposited bonds may deposit the same with the Empire Trust Company, the Depositary, or its Agents, and thereby become parties to any plan and agreement of reorganization which may be adopted by the Committee.

More than a majority of the outstanding bonds have been deposited with this Committee, and holders of undeposited bonds who fail within the time above named to deposit the same with the Depositary or one of its Agents will not be entitled to participate in the benefits under any plan of reorganization they may approve, unless by express consent of the Committee and upon such conditions as the Committee may prescribe.

EXCHANGE DECIDES TO OPEN SATURDAY

MINIMUM PRICES ARE FIXED

Governors of the Stock Exchange voted yesterday to reopen the board on Saturday for trading in bonds under restrictions which include the establishment of minimum prices and the prohibition of sales on which deliveries cannot be made on the following day. The decision of the Governors was unanimous and accompanied by an expression of thanks to the Committee of Five for their efforts in the conduct of the Exchange since it closed on July 31. The keen interest taken in the meeting was displayed in the fact that thirty-nine of the forty Governors were there.

The Committee of Five had considered practically all details for renewing business before the Governors got together, and little was left to do except to hear the committee's report and ratify its recommendations. It was specified that for a few days the ticker would not be used in recording prices and the progress of trading. Instead, it was decided to have issued four times a day—instead of twice as has been customary—the official sheet of bond transactions, and to distribute them among all the Stock Exchange houses.

The first sheet will be made up, according to present plans, before business starts and will set forth the lowest price for each bond at which sales may be made. Thereafter minimum prices will not change during the session, and the subsequent sheets will record individual transactions as they occur.

The Committee of Five, acting with a sub-committee that has regulated trading in bonds since the Exchange closed, will be on the floor constantly for a time, to solve any problem that may arise under the extraordinary plan for conducting business in securities. This statement was issued by the authorities after the meeting, describing the method to be followed in early days of trading:

> Beginning on Saturday, Nov. 28, 1914, dealings in bonds listed on the Exchange will be permitted on the floor of the Exchange between the hours of 10 and 3 o'clock each day except Saturday, when dealings shall cease at 12 o'clock noon.
> Such dealings are to be under the supervision and regulation of the committee, and to be for "cash" or "regular way" only and not below the minimum prices as authorized by the committee from time to time.
> Transactions at prices other than those allowed by the comittee, or in evasion of the committee's rules, are prohibited.

The expression "for cash or regular way" means that bonds sold on the floor are to be delivered next day, as distinguished from transactions which provide in the contract that delivery is to be deferred for several days. This provision was made to cut off selling from abroad by cable. Foreign holdings that may be disposed of on the Exchange are limited to those bonds which are owned abroad but left on deposit here. Brokers say that considerable selling of American securities owned in Europe is to be expected, but with future deliveries prohibited it is believed that urgent liquidation will be held in check.

The Exchange has been assured by bankers that there will be plenty of call money obtainable when business is resumed. Albert H. Wiggin, Chairman of the Clearing House Committee of the banks, said yesterday that the pool of $25,000,000 which was proposed last week probably would be unnecessary as money conditions had eased substantially since the pool was talked of. It would be available, he said, if there proved to be need.

It is understood that the bankers are devoting more thought to a large call money fund when the Exchange extends its operations to stocks than to the matter of financing dealings in bonds. No predictions were ventured as to the probable date for the start of business in all departments on the board.

COFFEE EXCHANGE TO REOPEN.

Expected to Resume Trading on Nov. 30 or Dec. 2.

The Board of Managers of the Coffee Exchange will meet at noon today to consider plans for reopening the Exchange. It is expected that steps will be taken to renew trading on either Nov. 30 or Dec. 2.

The committee in charge of arrangements to deal in sugar futures expects to have final details completed within a few days to start business soon after the Coffee Exchange reopens.

PHILADELPHIA STOCK SALE.

Auction in Local Firm's Offices Sanctioned by Exchange Committee.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 24.—Stocks and bonds were placed on public sale in Philadelphia today for the first time since the Stock Exchanges of the world were closed. The sale was held in the auction room of Samuel T. Freeman & Co., and was sanctioned by a special committee of the Philadelphia Stock Exchange.

None of the stocks sold below the minimum price prescribed by the special committee of the Stock Exchange. Only one-third of the stocks and bonds that had been advertised for sale were disposed of, and they brought prices that averaged only a trifle higher than the fixed prices. Most of them were withdrawn from sale because the bids did not reach the minimum figures.

Only a small group of men attended the sale, and the bidding was never spirited. Most of the securities that were sold were taken by brokers.

CHICAGO TRADING LIGHT.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—The second day of resumption of business on the Chicago Stock Exchange was attended by light sales. Although there were numerous buying orders, the prices offered were not sufficiently attractive to result in extensive sales. Fractional gains were registered in Studebaker and Goodrich, and Swift shares were up three-quarters of a point. People's Gas declined a full point in the early trading, but later recovered, and at the close was off but one-half of a point. Union Carbide was off half a point at the close. Commonwealth Edison, Public Service preferred and St. Paul closed unchanged.

Kansas City Light certificates sold at the minimum price permitted, and Edison 5s were up three points above the minimum figure.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 24.—Directors of the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today voted to open the exchange Dec. 2 for unrestricted trading in stocks which closed under $15 July 30.

Trading in other stocks will be restricted to the prices of July 30, less one dividend.

INQUIRY INTO CURB SALES.

The Curb Association Board met yesterday to consider unusual transactions in the rapid rise of Jumbo Extension mining stock. Since the Curb reopened the shares have advanced from 40 cents to $2 and buying has been heavy.

"The meeting was called to consider certain differences between members," said Secretary Sturges, "and they have been amicably adjusted. It may be stated that the proceedings took on nothing of the nature of an inquiry into affairs of the Jumbo Extension Mining Company itself."

While the Curb authorities were chary about talking of the real subject discussed, the Street learned that the inquiry had to do with two sales of 10,000 shares each. The selling orders were executed by two Stock Exchange firms who received them from a broker in another city, the story had it, and complications arose when the sellers here sought to get the stock for delivery.

RETIRE LOAN CERTIFICATES.

No Longer Necessary, Philadelphia Clearing House Decides.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 24.—Clearing House loan certificates, which have been used in varying volume by banks in Philadelphia since early in August, will be retired before Dec. 1. It was learned today that the few banks which still had such certificates outstanding had been requested by the Clearing House Committee to pay them off by the end of this month.

It is estimated that the total issue has approximated $11,300,000. This would compare with $13,695,000 in 1907, with $11,470,000 in 1893, with $9,655,000 in 1890, and with $6,285,000 in 1873, when resort was first had to this substitute for cash.

The attitude of the Clearing House Committee was that the necessity for the loan certificates no longer existed, and that banks which required such accommodation should go to the Federal Reserve Bank, which is now discounting commercial paper for member institutions.

The certificates were issued only in large denominations for use in settling balances between banks at the Clearing House each day, thus conserving the gold holdings of each institution during the period of financial stress. They were secured by deposit of commercial paper or other collateral with the Clearing House.

8he retirement of emergency currency taken out under the Aldrich-Vreeland law is also proceeding apace.

Emergency Currency Retired.

Emergency currency to the amount of $822,500 was retired at the Sub-Treasury yesterday, making a total of $70,095,320 retired to date by New York banks.

U. P. PROVES FAITH IN R. R. INVESTMENTS

Much of $126,000,000 Received for S. P. Stock Put Back Into Rail Securities.

The Union Pacific Railroad report yesterday for the year ended June 30 showed that the company had invested about $50,000,000 of the proceeds of the sale of its holdings of Southern Pacific stock in securities, while most of the remainder of cash received in disposing of $126,000,000 stock was placed in secured loans. Investments in bonds showed a total increase for the year of $21,960,206 and $10,079,000 was put into equipment trust certificates, with $16,715,000 invested in short-term notes.

Chairman R. S. Lovett informed shareholders in the annual statement that the new investments not only afforded a reliable income, but could be converted readily into cash if need should arise. Among the securities bought were $5,000,000 5 per cent. one-year notes of the St. Paul, $5,000,000 one-year 5 per cent. notes of the Lake Shore, $5,000,000 Illinois Central and Chicago, St. Louis & New Orleans joint refunding 5s, $2,000,000 New York Central 5 per cent. notes, and $1,000,000 5 per cent. equipment trust certificates of the New Haven.

The company's gross earnings from operation during the year amounted to $92,115,332, a decrease of $1,523,126. Net income from operations, after taxes had been paid, was $31,626,214, a decline of $3,315,751. Owing chiefly to the sale of Southern Pacific holdings income from dividends decreased $3,892,628, and decreases occurred in other sources of revenue so that the final accounting of net from all sources showed a total of $49,421,714, a shrinkage from the preceding year's record of $4,728,223.

Interest charges, depreciation, rents, and miscellaneous expenses required the expenditure of $16,327,770, and the surplus for dividends was $33,093,044, a decline of $3,683,162. This was equivalent to nearly 14 per cent. on the common stock after preferred dividends were paid, compared with 15 per cent. in 1913.

The bonded debt of the company in the hands of the public at the close of the year was $334,045,565, or $9,920,315 less than when the preceding year closed. Stock outstanding on June 30 was $321,836,600, an increase of $5,627,700.

BURNHAM CHANGES STORY.

Testifies That Directors Discussed Kuhn, Loeb & Co. Offer.

William Burnham of Philadelphia, President of the Standard Steel Works Company, a subsidiary of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, of which he is a Director, corrected his former testimony yesterday in the trial before Judge Augustus Hand in the Federal District Court of the suit for $500,000 brought by George H. Robinson against Alba B. Johnson, President of the Locomotive Works, over the sale of the works. He had denied that the Directors of the Locomotive Works Company had discussed at a meeting the offer of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., but yesterday he admitted that they had.

"In giving my testimony at the former trial," he explained, "I was confused and nervous so that I could not remember correctly. Since then I have refreshed my memory."

Mr. Burnham also told of a Directors' meeting, on April 13, 1911, at which a Mr. Taylor, a friend of John H. Converse, executor of the Converse estate, submitted an offer from Drexel & Co. and White, Weld & Co. of $20,000,000 in cash and $16,000,000 in common stock of the reorganized company, which was to have a capital of $40,000,000. At a subsequent meeting it was decided to accept this offer, provided it was modified somewhat concerning the common stock.

Edward T. Stotesbury, senior partner of Drexel & Co., testified that his firm made only a single offer for the locomotive works, and he had only a couple of interviews with Mr. Johnson.

The court declined to admit any testimony from Jacob H. Schiff as to the terms which Kuhn, Loeb & Co. might have been disposed to offer for the works, if they had known of another offer for the plant. The trial will continue this morning.

Increase in Life Policies.

Statements of the local agencies of life insurance companies yesterday at the annual meeting of the Life Underwriters' Association of New York showed that new policies paid for in Greater New York in the first ten months of 1914 were 15 per cent. in excess of the same period last year. In August and September the average of the companies fell behind, but in October they showed an increase.

Chantilly Flouncings for Spring.

With the style situation so disrupted by the war, and everybody uncertain as to just what Paris will do for Spring, there is more or less speculation in the face field as to what the leading numbers for the new season will be. So far as could be found yesterday, the only thing that it was thought could be regarded with any degree of certainty was Chantilly flouncings in the 18 and 27-inch widths. One of the big buyers just back from the other side thinks very well of them. The usual demand for Vals. and other "bread-and-butter" laces is looked for, but, aside from this, the future is more or less in doubt.

Big Sweater Order Placed.

An order from England calling for 250,000 sweaters for use by members of the Allied armies has been placed with Alex Nathan & Co., commission merchants and mill agents, 94 Leonard Street. Delivery is to be made between the present date and Feb. 15, 1915, and the goods are to be consigned to England. All of the goods will be made by one local mill, and the initial delivery is to go forward next week. The sweaters are of the V-neck type, cotton throughout, and each has two pockets. Other foreign contracts with the same firm, calling for body bands and underwear, are pending.

Weather Helps Coal Trade.

The Coal Trade Journal will say today that a week of seasonably cold weather has quickened the pulse of the anthracite coal trade, but that at least another week is needed to put any amount of vim into the wholesale demand. To this is added: "Stocks in retail plants stand as a buffer between the public and the producing interests, so that the latter do not feel the full effects of a drop in temperature until some little time has elapsed. There is little change to be observed in the bituminous trade. The mere fact that the situation has stopped changing for the worse, however, is something to be thankful for."

Working on Color Card.

At a meeting held yesterday at the Paterson Chamber of Commerce it was decided to collect within the next three or four days opinions from silk manufacturers, designers, printers, and the garment trade regarding the colors which should be shown in an American color card to be gotten out for the Spring of 1915. Several representative silk men attended the meeting, and the co-operation of the trade in this matter was assured. Another meeting will be held shortly, at which steps will be taken to draw up a card containing about sixty colors. The active co-operation of those interested in getting up next season's colors will be extended to the millinery jobbers and silk manufacturers, who will bend their efforts toward providing a similar card for next Fall.

Colored Socks Not in Demand.

Some surprise is expressed in the local knit goods trade that, in spite of the fact that woolen hosiery of all kinds is scarce here, the buyers of these goods for war purposes are insistent on getting gray or blue hose, the former the more favored. While these colors doubtless may have more of a military flavor and may fit better into the general uniform color scheme than other shades, it is argued by sellers here that they don't keep the feet of the wearer any warmer. As for the possible injury from the dye materials used, it is said that there is just as much poisonous matter in the colorings used in gray and blue hose as there is in red or brown. While wool hose of any kind or color is not plentiful just now, it is said that there are more "random" goods to be had, reds, browns, and blues, than any other kind.

Gray Goods Still Dull.

Dullness was again the feature of gray goods trading here yesterday. Some fair-sized lots of 39-inch 68-72s were disposed of at 4⅝ cents for nearby delivery, and, for similar shipment, there were a few sales made of 38½-inch 60-48s at 3⅛ cents. About the only contract business done was put through on 38½-inch 64-60s, which sold in a fair way at 3¾ cents. There was a fairly good inquiry for fancies. Sheetings did not receive a great deal of attention during the day, but some liberal orders were placed on 37-inch drills, mostly 3.95-yard goods, for delivery in January and February. The day's closing prices were:

39-inch, 68-72s....4⅝c	38½-inch, 60-48s...3⅛c

French Laces Will Be Scarce.

The production of laces in Calais has been reduced by the war to about one-third of the normal output, according to a prominent local wholesale buyer, who has just returned from the other side. Stocks are very low there, and few things that are new are being shown. Practically all of the novelties offered were produced before the outbreak of hostilities. With production and stocks at such a low ebb, it is inevitable that supplies of French laces that will come into this country for the Spring season will be small. Nothing new is being shown in Nottingham, which was also visited, and, with this country supplying practically the sole market for nets, prices on these goods were found to be favorable to buyers. Plauen was not visited by the buyer in question, less because of the difficulties faced in reaching that city than the danger of being tied up there indefinitely pending the movement of troops.

Jobbers Want Colored Goods.

There has been a marked improvement in the demand for colored cotton goods on the part of the wholesalers in the last few days, and, as a result, the anticipated price revisions on these goods have become realities. For example, it is now possible to get a Southern 4.30-yard chambray fully a cent a yard under the figure which prevailed on Sept. 1, while staple ginghams of Southern make have been dropped a half cent a yard in the last sixty days. A drop of about a half cent a yard has also been recorded on Southern denims. Eastern prices are firmer, but it is figured that downward revisions of them are not far off. The call for denims is especially good in some quarters, but there is a disinclination on the part of the mills to trade ahead on these goods because of the uncertainty of the future supply of indigo. One of the largest makers of these goods will not take orders calling for deliveries after Jan. 1 for this reason, though they could easily dispose now of their entire production for the first three months of next year.

BUSINESS NOTES.

The Lynn & Scruggs Dry Goods and Carpet Company of Decatur, Ill., whose store was destroyed some time ago by fire, will open its new building in that city on Friday. The firm intends to make a gala affair of the opening.

The members of the Cotton Goods Association of New York are planning to dine on beefsteak at Healy's, Columbus Avenue and Sixty-sixth Street, on the evening of Dec. 5. A good attendance is anticipated.

KINKS IN NEW TAX LAW.

Internal Revenue Commissioner Explains Some of Them.

Manufacturers of chewing gum who have been complaining to the Treasury Department of their inability to comply with the requirements of the War Revenue act relative to the stamping of their products will derive little comfort from a letter sent by W. H. Osborn, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, to a big firm in this city which wrote telling him how impossible it will be to comply with the law.

The concern in question stated that it manufactures its products in several forms, and generally sells in bulk, in all manners of quantities and at prices which vary considerably, such prices being based largely on the quantity sold, while the goods are sold at retail over the counter and by means of slot machines. It was also stated that one form of gum produced and put out can be sold by the dealer from two to four pieces for a penny. The firm also told of the difficulties it anticipated in stamping the goods. In reply, Commissioner Osborn says:

"You are informed that the act of Oct. 22, 1914, imposes on you as a manufacturer the duty of stamping your product on and after Dec. 1, in whatever manner it may be put up, at the rate of 4 cents for each $1 of its actual retail value. If the contents of a package should exceed $1 and be less than $2 in value, it should be stamped 8 cents, and, similarly, larger quantities in multiples of the initial tax. The law does not provide for stamping chewing gum valued at retail at less than $1 at any other rate than 4 cents. Chewing gum may be sold at retail in small packages, either over the counter or by means of a slot machine, without the same being stamped, provided it is sold from the original stamped packages."

One of the chief protests against the requirements of the emergency tax law advanced by gum manufacturers is the provision that manufacturers must stamp their products on the basis of their actual retail value. It has been urged by the makers that they cannot control the retail price after the goods have been sold. To this objection the Commissioner says:

"You state you cannot control this price. Nevertheless it is believed that no one is so competent as the manufacturer to determine the retail price or value of his products, and he will be held strictly responsible for due compliance with the statute. This retail price or value is a price such as a single package or other small quantity would be sold at to consumers at the place of manufacture."

Another thing settled by the Commissioner is the interpretation to be placed on Section 21 of the act specifying "every person, except as otherwise provided in this act, who offers or exposes for sale any article or thing provided for in said Schedule B, shall be deemed the manufacturer thereof, and shall be subject to all the taxes, liabilities, and penalties, &c."

The Commissioner says this section refers to wholesalers and retailers who may have taxable goods on hand Dec. 1, when the several articles enumerated in Schedule B must be stamped as provided in the section. On and after Dec. 1 the manufacturer is required to stamp his products before delivery on a sale. Such goods, if in possession of any other person, firm, or corporation on the date specified, must be stamped by such person, firm, or corporation. Failure to do so will incur the liabilities and penalties provided by the act.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Interesting Points Brought Up in Reappraisement Cases.

According to a decision of the Board of General Appraisers handed down yesterday, lava stone imported under the Tariff act of 1913 is properly dutiable at the rate of 20 per cent. ad valorem as a mineral or earthy substance. Wilfred Schade & Co., who imported the article at Richmond, Va., claimed free entry as burrstones, bound or manufactured into millstones. Judge McClelland holds that the classification of the lava stone is not changed from that prevailing under the act of 1909, and affirms the Collector's assessment.

Importers of Madeira embroidery are continuing to have trouble with the customs officials regarding the values of the goods for dutiable purposes. The latest case of the kind to come before the board concerned shipments made to local importers by the British Embroidery Company of Funchal. These included napkins, table cloths, doilies, and dresses, all of which were invoiced in the Portuguese standard currency, known as the escudo, having a value of approximately 94 cents American money according to the last proclamation of the Director of the Mint made Oct. 1. Since the goods left Funchal, the escudo depreciated in value, which led the Custom House authorities to add to the invoiced value and take duty on the actual market prices at the time the embroideries were purchased. The importers finally added to make correct values, with the result that Judge Cooper yesterday reappraised the goods on the basis of the invoice prices plus the additions made by the consignees here.

Another reappraisement made by Judge Cooper related to lace collars, cuffs, shirts, and blouses imported here from Masri Merhige, Beirut, Turkey. When the goods arrived at this port, an examination disclosed that they were considerably undervalued. The Appraiser used information at hand and made heavy advances over entered values besides exacting the accruing penalties. Judge Cooper, in disposing of the appeal, apparently sustained the advances in the main. He held that the collars and cuffs invoiced at 26 10-40 piasters per set, should properly pay duty on the basis of 36 10-40 piasters a set, while shirts entered at 56 10-40 piasters are advanced to 66 10-40 piasters each. Blouses entered at 100, are advanced to 110 piasters each.

Alfred H. Post & Co. were sustained in a contention for lower duty on power-driven machines which work upon brass wire by bending and cutting it in the form of rings for use in making chains. Judge Fischer holds that the articles are machine tools within the meaning of the Tariff act of 1909, and therefore dutiable at 30 per cent. ad valorem as claimed by the importers. The Collector's assessment at 45 per cent. ad valorem as manufactures of metal is reversed.

DUTY ON SHOW CARDS.

Appeal from the Appraisers' Decision Regarding Them.

Importers of show cards, who were recently given lower duty by the Board of General Appraisers, will have to face further litigation in the customs controversy regarding the proper classification of these articles, as the Treasury Department yesterday instructed Assistant Attorney General Hanson to take the issue to the Customs Court. The cards are composed of surface-coated cardboard with thin surface-coated paper pasted thereon. The Collector assessed the merchandise at the rate of 5 cents per pound and 30 per cent. ad valorem under the provision in Paragraph 411 of the Tariff act of 1909 for articles composed in chief value of paper with coated surfaces.

After the presentation of testimony, the Board of General Appraisers upheld the contention of the importers for duty at 35 per cent. ad valorem under the provision for manufactures of paper of which paper is the component material of chief value. While rather heavy refunds would have to be paid importers if the board's decision were allowed to stand, the Treasury Department is chiefly interested, it is understood, in keeping up the higher assessment under the present tariff law.

YESTERDAY'S AUCTIONS.

Fair Prices Obtained at Several Well-Attended Sales.

Good attendance marked the various auction sales held yesterday and the prices realized met with satisfactory comment on the part of the auctioneers. D. Hartman, at 8 Greene Street, offered a $20,000 stock of high grade seasonable furs which brought very fair prices. German fitch, blue fox, and cross fox seemed to be the merchandise most in demand, and fine caraculs and Hudson were also eagerly sought. The showroom proved almost inadequate for the number of buyers present.

The David Blow Company held a sale of 1,500 trade lots of dry goods consisting of yard goods and women's wear. An average of from 60 to 70 cents on the dollar was maintained, and the laces and embroideries offered were taken rapidly.

Burling & Dole, at 7 Greene Street, auctioned off a large portion of piece goods of the American Woolen Company which they had to offer, and will continue the sale today. There were about 1,400 pieces of the company's product placed on sale, and an additional stock of about 900 pieces. Overcoatings, particularly fancy goods, such as balmacaans and mackinaws, were taken up very well, and the worsted and serge suitings also seemed to be in good demand. Cloakings were not so good, but chinchillas were fairly well sought after. The sale indicated that a market exists for merchandise for spot delivery. Several large out-of-town buyers were among those who attended.

Van Praag & Co. conducted two sales yesterday. At their showrooms, 15-17 Greene Street, 5,000 pieces of art metal holiday novelties were offered, including diamonds, jewelry, and bracelet watches. An average of 70 to 80 cents on the dollar was obtained for these goods. In a sale of woolens and silks, held at 147 West Twenty-second Street, panamas and voiles brought fair prices.

WOOLEN MEN TO MEET.

Some of the Matters They Are to Discuss and Decide.

At the eighth annual meeting of the American Association of Woolen and Worsted Manufacturers, to be held at Delmonico's, Dec. 8 at 2 o'clock, there will be several matters for the members to discuss and decide upon. Suggestions will be heard on the changes which are to be written into the constitution of the organization, and the attorney for the association will speak on a new form of copy of order which it is hoped will be put into general use in the trade.

This new form was drawn up to conform to the recent laws governing sales which have been put into effect in this State. The order blank, being more specific in its terms, will make the contract easier to enforce. Bankruptcy matters and how they may be handled to the better advantage of the members will also be treated by the attorneys for the association. The labor question and the proposed Pure Fabric bill now before Congress will be taken up for discussion, as will the broadening of the powers of the joint committee representing the mill men and the clothing manufacturers.

Applications for reservations at the dinner to follow the meeting are considerably in excess of those received last year at this time and indications are now that this year's affair will eclipse the former record.

BUSINESS LOCATIONS. | BUSINESS LOCATIONS.

Cuyler Building
Show Rooms
116-120 West 32nd Street

How do you size up a strange firm with which you may have occasion to do business?

Its financial rating comes first, of course—then what?

Isn't it most often the location and appearance of its offices, the character of its business neighbors?

Apply this same test to the place where you are now receiving your customers. Try to look at your own show rooms with the unfamiliar eyes of a stranger.

If this view of your own business does not altogether satisfy you, we suggest a visit to the Cuyler Building.

Among the best of business neighbors, in a modern, fireproof building of the highest type, most conveniently located for out-of-town wholesale buyers, you can have here at a very moderate rental offices or show rooms that will be an asset to your business.

Rentals range from $660 for 475 square feet to $8,000 for 10,243.

FIRST SUIT TO ANNUL RESTRICTION ON LOTS

OPPOSED BY RICH FAMILIES

Agreement Covering Corner at Madison Av. and 72d St. Was Made Fifty Years Ago.

Can the property holders' covenants which prohibit the erection of a building not intended as a private residence in certain parts of the city continue to check the invasion of modern apartment houses?

This question, it is said, will be decided in a case, the first of its kind, now pending in the Supreme Court in which the Dime Savings Bank of Brooklyn, owner of the property at the southeast corner of Madison Avenue and Seventy-second Street, has petitioned the court to break the covenant which prevents the erecting of an apartment house on the site. The property owners of the neighborhood will oppose the petition.

According to the bank, more hinges on the legal action than on any other previous case of kindred character. The complaint of the bank is that the covenant, any by inference all covenants of a similar character, is unjust and invalid. Upon the issue of this test case will depend the continued isolation of many so-called "private residential districts." Representatives of the bank said yesterday that the bank had no idea of building on the site itself, but simply wanted the right to sell the Madison Avenue and other property to persons who wanted to build modern apartment houses.

The covenant affects the block bounded by Seventy-first and Seventy-second Streets, Madison and Park Avenues, part of the old Lenox estate. When it was subdivided into lots and sold some fifty years ago, purchasers were bound not to erect "any building except of brick, stone, or iron, with roof of slate or metal, not less than four stories in height, of which the fourth story may be represented by a Mansard roof, to be used exclusively for private dwelling houses." Resale of any of the property unless the new purchaser would agree to the covnant was prohibited.

Fifteen years ago Mrs. Gertrude Rhinelander Waldo acquired the property at Madison Avenue and Seventy-second Street, and started the erection of a house upon it which she never occupied. In 1912 the Dime Savings Bank of Brooklyn bought the property for $152,000 in a foreclosure sale, and last June it petitioned the Supreme Court to be allowed to violate the covenant.

Property owners in the block took steps to oppose the action. They were led by William Allen Butler of the law firm of Butler, Brown, Wyckoff & Campbell, who lives at 30 East Seventy-second Street, adjacent to the bank's property. Robert J. Collier and Henry de Coppet, who live in the block at 752 and 754 Park Avenue, respectively, and some twenty or more others joined with Mr. Butler. They interposed a demuurer to the bank's complaint, and this demurrer was argued before Justice Cohalan in the Supreme Court last Monday. Decision was withheld.

The bank was represented by Dykman, Oeland & Kuhn of 177 Montague Street, Brooklyn. Francis L. Archer of this firm said yesterday that the covenant was an anachronism.

"The covenant was made," Mr. Archer explained, "when everybody who was anybody had to have a house with a brownstone front. Now, however, brownstone houses are out of date, and many very good people prefer apartments to private residences of any kind. It is unjust that such people should be kept out of any section of the city by an antiquated covenant."

The property owners were represented by J. Edwards Wyckoff of Butler, Brown, Wyckoff & Campbell, 54 Wall Street; John Frankenheimer of Kurzman & Frankenheimer, 25 Broad Street, and Samuel Hoff, Madison Avenue and Forty-second Street. Mr. Wyckoff yesterday summed up the attitude of the defendant property owners. He said:

"The complaint alleges that the defendants claim a right in the nature of an easement restricting the plaintiff to the erection of buildings of the character specified in the restrictive covenants, and asks for judgment that the defendants be forever barred and foreclosed from asserting such claim. No such action has ever been brought, so far as we know, under the provisions of the code involved. It is, of course, evident that no claim could be made until there was a violation of the covenants, and accordingly a number of the defendants have demurred to the complaint on the ground that it does not state a cause of action."

Each side has indicated its intention of carrying the case to the highest court in the State.

PRAISE FOR DR. MEZES.

University of Texas as He Leaves It Reviews His Achievements.

The Board of Regents of the University of Texas, at the meeting at which it accepted the resignation of President Sidney E. Mezes of that institution, who has accepted the Presidency of the City College, drafted a letter, which has been sent to Dr. Mezes, praising highly his record as professor, Dean, anf finally President of the university. After commending the way in which he came from a different section of thecountry and filled the place left vacant by a great leader of Southern thought, and the success with which he performed the duties of Dean, the letter goes on to praise particularly a number of the achievements of Dr. Mezes' Presidency. Among them are the following:

The increase of attendance which has made the university the largest in the South and the extension of its work through the Summer School and correspondence courses.

The co-ordination of the university and the high school system.

The establishment of student self-government.

The development of a spirit of democracy which has encouraged the attendance of men and women of limited means.

"That which you hav done," the letter adds, "has not been the easy result of the growth of the commonwealth, but has been accomplished with inadequate funds under discouraging circumstances."

P. H. NOLAN A SUICIDE.

Brewer Promoter Ends Life Because of Financial Difficulties.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 24.—P. H. Nolan, brewer promoter of New York, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Milwaukee, and St. Louis, shot and killed himself in the offices of the Mutual Brewing Company here last night.

This afternoon he was to have testified in an involuntary bankruptcy proceeding against the brewery company of which he was chief organizer, Vice President, and General Manager.

Nolan had organized Mutual Brewing Companies in New York and Pittsburgh. He also was editor of The Liquor Trades Gazette, published at New York. The recent partial loss of his eyesight, friends say, caused a decline in his business ability, and thereby led to the financial troubles on account of which they believe he ended his life.

The local Mutual Brewing Company was organized with a capital of $1,000,000 a few years ago. Several months ago creditors with claims aggregating $100,000 asked the United States Court here to put the brewery in the hands of receivers. It was at this hearing that Nolan was to have been the chief witness today.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Julius Fleischmann, the banker and former Mayor of Cincinnati, has just invested in a large parcel of Manhattan property by purchasing the three five and six story apartment houses on the northwest corner of Madison Avenue and Eighty-ninth Street. The parcel includes 1,242 Madison Avenue and 17 to 23 East Eighty-ninth Street, fronting 164.5 feet on the street and 100.8 feet on the avenue.

The property was purchased from the Century Holding Company, (Lee & Fleischmann,) which took title to the property in December, 1913. It was transferred yesterday to the new owner subject to a mortgage of $265,000.

Buys $100,000 Ridgefield Estate.

Frederic E. Lewis, one of the heirs of the Lewis estate which recently sold the vacant plot on the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Thirty-seventh Street, has purchased a country estate of 252 acres at Ridgefield, Conn. It was bought from B. F. Watkins, who recently took it in exchange for his residence with sixteen acres at Rye.

The Ridgefield estate is known as Silver Spring Ridge. It has an elevation of 860 feet with an extensive view of the Sound and surrounding country, and in this vicinity are the country homes of George G. Haven, Joseph E. Brown, Dr. George D. Shelton, Clinton R. Irwin Martin, E. V. Z. Lane, and Anson Phelps Stokes.

The property was held at $400 an acre, or a total of $100,000. The broker in the transaction was Stewart C. Schenck.

J. H. Poor House Transferred.

Carl D. Jackson took title yesterday to J. Harper Poor's new residence at 33 East Sixty-ninth Street, subject to a mortgage of $150,000. Mr. Poor, who took in part payment the vacant plot 23 by 100.8 on the south side of Eighty-ninth Street, 112 feet east of Fifth Avenue, took title to that plot, taking a $70,000 mortgage from Mr. Jackson.

A Bronx-Brooklyn Trade.

In the Hunt's Point section of the Bronx D. S. Crakow has purchased for investment from L. Davis 1,076 Simpson Street, a five-story new-law tenement on a plot 40 by 100, located near Westchester Avenue. In part payment the buyer gave a vacant plot 200 by 108 on Elton Street, 200 feet from Fairfield Avenue, Brooklyn. P. A. Nebeling was the broker in the trade.

Brooklyn Sales.

B. J. Sforza has sold for C. M. Fulton a lot 20 by 106 on the south side of Sixty-third Street, distant 220 feet west of Fourteenth Avenue, to Domenico Cosenza, and adjoining lot 20 by 106, south side of Sixty-third Street, 240 feet west of Fourteenth Avenue, to Joseph Palermo.

Tutino & Cerny have sold to a client for investment the four-story double brick stores and apartments, on a plot 20 by 80, known as 5,219 Fifth Avenue.

Builders Buy in Queens.

Bryan L. Kennelly has sold for the Courtney Development Company six lots on the south side of Nelson (Nott) Avenue, 25 feet east of Carolyn Street, to the First Ward Building Company, which will erect three four-story apartment houses. The property has a frontage of 120 feet, and is one block from the new Bliss and Carolyn Street subway station, Queens.

Long Island.

One dwelling and a number of vacant plots at Belle Harbor, Long Island, were sold at public auction in the Vesey Street Salesroom yesterday by Bryan L. Kennelly. Among the buyers were W. D. Maroney, who paid $2,550 for five lots at the southwest corner of Beach Channel Drive and 139th Street. Three lots at the northwest corner of Bayside Drive and 137th Street went to R. L. Clelard for $1,650. Two adjoining lots on the Drive were bought by David Fry for $930. J. Kleibert and William McDonald secured four lots on 141st Street, about sixty feet west of Bayside Drive, for $1,770. Three lots on 138th Street, near Newport Avenue, were purchased by the Hatch Gozon Company for $1,320, and the northeast corner of Newport Avenue and 128th Street was knocked down to F. L. McGarrett at $2,850.

The two-story dwelling, at 65 Hammels Avenue, Hammels, Long Island, was sold to A. I. Merkel for $3,250.

Westchester County.

The Scarsdale Estates has sold to Walter Scott Ryan of Manhattan a lot on Claremont Avenue, Greenacres. The buyer will erect a $7,000 dwelling on the property for his own occupancy.

J. M. Fallon has bought a lot 75 by 150 at Greenacres, Scarsdale Estates, on Brayton Place, and is building a typical Colonial residence costing about $10,000.

Commercial Leases.

Pease & Elliman have leased for a term of twenty-one years to Samuel Geneen, for the Postal Life Insurance Company, the large basement in the building at the southwest corner of Nassau and Liberty Street. After alterations the premises will be opened as a lunch room and restaurant.

As a site for a restaurant the Horn & Hardart Company has leased for a long term of years the property at 604 and 606 Sixth Avenue, between Thirty-fifth and Thirty-sixth Streets. The old buildings on the property, 29 by 100 feet, will be demolished and a new structure erected by the lessees next May. The owners were represented by Adolph and Henry Bloch, attorneys, associated with Fred V. Mayforth. Thomas L. Reynolds was the broker in the transaction.

Private Dwellings Leased.

Pease & Elliman have let, furnished, for Stephen Baker, President of the Bank of the Manhattan Company, as trustee, the four-story and basement dwelling, on a lot 21.6 by 100, at 40 East Seventieth Street, to Arthur Mitchell.

Douglas L. Elliman & Co., in conjunction with William B. May & Co., have leased 55 East Seventy-seventh Street, a five-story American basement house, on a lot 21.6 by 100, for J. Magee Ellsworth to Thomas Crimmins.

William B. May & Co. report the rental of 47 East Fifty-third Street, furnished, for Mrs. John Larkin to Augustus Van Cortlandt; 52 West Fifty-second Street, furnished, for Mrs. Walter Watson to Dr. William E. Wheelock, and 44 East Thirty-fifth Street, for Dr. V. P. Gibney to Theodore L. Van Norden.

Information Wanted About Steinway Tunnel Work.

At a meeting of the Transit Committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the Borough of Queens yesterday, a committee composed of John Adikes, Chairman; John J. Kindred, E. J. Rickert, E. A. MacDougall, and J. M. Briggs was appointed to call upon the proper authorities and ascertain when the contract for the reconstruction of the Steinway Tunnel would be completed; when operation of shuttle service through the tunnel will start, and when the connection will be made with the new station of the Long Island Railroad near the mouth of the tunnel so that passengers from all parts of Queens Borough will be able to use the tunnel.

Dine Retiring Governors.

A complimentary dinner was tendered last evening by the Real Estate Board of New York at the New York Athletic Club to the board's three retiring Governors, Warren Cruikshank, E. A. Tredwell, and J. W. Van Pelt, and the reelected President, Laurence M. D. McGuire.

Real Estate Notes.

Arnold W. Brunner and Buchman & Fox are the architects of the new $200,000 private pavilion to be built for Montefiore Home on Gun Hill Road, Bronx.

L. Tanenbaum Strauss & Co. were the associated brokers in renting the store, basement and first floor in the Cuyler Building, 116-120 West Thirty-second Street, to Steinfeld Brothers.

A meeting of the Washington Heights Taxpayers' Association will be held Friday evening at 558 West 158th Street, which will be addressed by Park Commissioner Cabot Ward.

Justice Davis has appointed Chester J. Byrne receiver for 112 and 138 West 105th Street, occupied by a garage and vaudeville theatre, on a plot 171.10 by 100.11.

Plans have been filed for installing stores in the old Cosmopolitan Hotel, on the northeast corner of West Broadway and Chambers Street, which was recently leased on a long term by Joseph Weintraub from the Huggins estate. The alterations are estimated to cost $35,000 by the architect, Oscar Lowinson.

LEGAL NOTICES.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS OF TOLEDO, ST. LOUIS AND WESTERN RAILROAD COMPANY.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN That the undersigned was, on the 22nd day of October, 1914, duly appointed receiver of TOLEDO, ST. LOUIS AND WESTERN RAILROAD COMPANY by the United States District Court, for the Northern District of Ohio, Western Division, in a suit in equity pending in said court, wherein Horatio C. Creith is plaintiff, and Toledo, St. Louis and Western Railroad Company is defendant, and that the undersigned was also, on the 23rd day of October, 1914, duly appointed as receiver of Toledo, St. Louis and Western Railroad Company by the United States District Court, for the Southern District of Illinois, Southern Division, in an ancillary suit in equity pending in said court, wherein said Horatio C. Creith is plaintiff, and said Toledo, St. Louis and Western Railroad Company is defendant, and that in pursuance of said orders of appointment, the undersigned has duly qualified and given bond as such receiver, and that he is now the duly qualified and acting receiver of said Toledo, St. Louis and Western Railroad Company, and of all of its property and assets, of whatsoever kind, nature and description, wheresoever the same is situated or may be found, and is now in possession thereof.

All creditors of Toledo, St. Louis and Western Railroad Company, excepting those hereinafter specified, are hereby notified that they, and each of them, are required, on or before the 4th day of January, 1915, to file their respective claims with the undersigned, or to file in the above suit, in the United States District Court, for the Northern District of Ohio, Western Division, bills of intervention setting forth their respective claims, and upon their failure so to do, said creditors shall be barred and not permitted or allowed to participate or receive any payments upon their respective claims, either from the income of the property of Toledo, St. Louis and Western Railroad Company, or from the proceeds of the sale thereof.

The above provisions as to filing verified copies of claims or bills of intervention thereon shall not apply to creditors holding prior lien bonds or first mortgage gold bonds or equipment trust obligations, heretofore issued by Toledo, St. Louis and Western Railroad Company, or to creditors whose claims have arisen on account of services, labor, material or supplies furnished to Toledo, St. Louis and Western Railroad Company within a time not exceeding six months prior to the 22nd day of October, 1914, and which have been approved for payment by the receiver and included within the list of creditors furnished by the receiver to the master appointed in said suit.

The undersigned has furnished to the master appointed in said suit, Guy W. Kinney, Esq., No. 1,319 Nicholas Building, Toledo, Ohio, a list of such creditors, as of the date of the 22nd day of October, 1914, whose claims have been so approved by him for payment. Creditors whose claims are included in said list are not required to make proof thereof, but such list will be taken by the master as correct as to all items which are not contested by the defendant or other creditors or stockholders of the defendant.

This notice is given and published by order of said courts.

WALTER L. ROSS, Receiver,

STEVENSON PORTRAIT BOUGHT FOR $14,800

Brisk Bidding for Likeness of the Novelist by Sargent at Anderson Sale.

OTHER RELICS BRING $26,955

$2,000 Paid for Bronz Replica of the Famous Plaque of the Writer by St. Gaudens.

The celebrated portrait on canvas of Robert Louis Stevenson, by John S. Sargent, inscribed, "To R. L. Stevenson, his friend, John S. Sargent, 1885," brought $14,800 at last night's sale by the Anderson Auction Company of relics of the famous novelist from his home at Vailima, Samoa. The chief bidders were a collector from Washington, who asked that his name be withheld, and George D. Smith. It was sold to Mr. Smith, who said that he had bought it on his own account.

It was the highest price paid for anything at the sale. This has lasted for two days, and $40,755 has been obtained.

The hearing on the injunction obtained by Mrs. Katherine D. Osbourne in the Supreme Court, Special Term, restraining Mrs. Salisbury Field, formerly Mrs. Isobel Strong, Stevenson's step-daughter and owner of the relics, from selling 122 letters and sketches written or sent by Stevenson to his father and mother, was adjourned yesterday to Friday morning by Justice Newburger.

St. Gaudens Replica Sold.

At the sale yesterday Mr. Smith obtained also for $2,000 the portrait of Stevenson, cast in bronze from the design made by Augustus Saint-Gaudens.

The original plaster group, "Le Printemps," by Auguste Rodin, which was presented by him to Stevenson in 1885, also went to Mr. Smith for $1.500. On the bust is the inscription "A R. L. Stevenson, au sympathique artiste, fidèle ami et cher poete Rodin."

Mr. Smith likewise obtained for $950 two original manuscript versions of Stevenson's unpublished farce, "An April Day; or, Autolycus in Service." Dr. A. W. S. Rosenbach of Philadelphia paid $485 for the original manuscript of the "Fables" and $385 for the manuscript of the Hawaiian story printed in "Island Nights Entertainment" under the title of "The Isle of Voices."

James F. Drake gave $875 for the autograph manuscript of "St. Ives," differing from the printed book throughout. Five interesting holograph letters of George Meredith, addressed to Stevenson and referring to their writings, went to Mr. Smith for $405. A manuscript copy in Stevenson's autograph of "Vailima Prayers" was bought by C. Tucker for $350. Mr. Smith paid $560 for Stevenson's manuscript journal containing his "Observations on a Voyage to the South Seas," and $300 for a blank book used by the novelist for writing his first drafts of poems published under the title of "Underwoods."

Purchases in the Afternoon.

The highest price of the afternoon session was $1,450 paid by E. H. Wendell for a manuscript, "The Sunbeam Magazine, Nos. 1 and 2," Stevenson's most elaborate attempt at editing a periodical, made while he was a student at Tomlinson's day school in Edinburgh. The two issues consist of twenty-four pages each. It is believed to be the only copy of this magazine. It was passed from hand to hand at a charge of one penny a night. The proceeds were devoted to the Sealkote Orphanage. It contains five colored drawings and two pen-and-ink sketches by Stevenson.

William Sloane gave $85 for a small Bible, presented to Stevenson on his sixth birthday, Nov. 13, 1856, by his nurse, Allan Cunningham, to whom, in after years, he dedicated his "Child's Garden of Verse." Mrs. Payne Whitney obtained for $50 Stevenson's copy of Lord Byron's "Childe Harold's Pilgrimage," with marginal pencillings. Mr. Sloane paid $137 for Stevenson's copy of "Little Arthur's History of England," by Lady Callcott. A message written in Arabic at Khartoum on both sides of a piece of cigarette paper by Gen. "Chinese" Gordon, supposed to have been the last message sent by him previous to his death, and presented to Stevenson by a relative of Gordon, was knocked down to George D. Smith for $110.

The original manuscript of "The History of Moses" in the handwriting of Stevenson's mother, but with his autograph inscription at the end, went to Mr. Wendell for $130. It was accompanied by a Bible inscribed: "R. Lewis B. Stevenson. A Reward for His History of Moses, with Illustrations, from His Affec. Uncle David."

Manuscripts Bring High Prices.

Gabriel Weis paid $180 for the original manuscript of one of Stevenson's earlier stories, "In the Windbound Arethusa"; $365 for early poems, sonnets, and essays in Stevenson's autograph; $265 for fifteen pages of the original manuscript "On the Art of Literature"; $190 for the original manuscript of "Reminiscences of Colinton Manse"; $465 for a manuscript notebook of "An Inland Voyage"; $500 for the original manuscript diary of Stevenson's honeymoon days, which formed the groundwork of his published book, "The Silverado Squatters"; $200 for manuscript draft of poems for the Child's Garden of Verse, and $300 for the original manuscript of "Lay Morals."

Mr. Smith gave $300 for a draft for a life of Stevenson's father, headed, "Thomas Stevenson"; $320 for a manuscript notebook, containing autobiographical notes, poems, &c.; $170 for the original manuscript of "Notes on Childhood"; $130 for a manuscript fragment of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," and $260 for the original manuscript of "The Young Chevalier."

The first draft of "Travels with a Donkey" was sold to J. W. Arnott for $550. F. P. Garvin gave $405 for the original draft for "Moral Tales."

The sale will be concluded this afternoon.

MAY HAVE SEEN A MIRAGE

American Museum Explorer Asserts His Party Was Misled Also at First by Land Image.

Crocker Land, the famous unexplored continent supposed to exist in the north polar regions, isn't there at all, notwithstanding the fact that Admiral Peary thought he saw it and gave a name to the supposed continent in 1906, according to a report received yesterday by the American Museum of Natural History through Edmund Otis Hovey, one of the committee in charge of the Crocker Land Expedition. It may have melted or moved from the position where Peary located it, but it is a fact, according to Mr. Hovey, that the strange land is no longer where everyone thought it was, namely, in longitude 100 west and latitude 83 north.

Donald B. MacMillan, leader of the expedition, has reported that he journeyed 125 miles northwest of Cape Thomas Hubbard with Fitzhugh Green, the engineer and physicist of his party, and failed to find the lost continent. For two days he and his companion thought they did see land, but this proved to be a mirage, and they were forced finally to the conclusion that Crockerland no longer exists, at least within the confines set by Admiral Peary.

The Admiral described the land as one of mountainous heights, and described it fully, so that the explorers whose report has just been received are certain that they did not miss their directions. Their trip was a perilous one. They crossed thirty-eight leads on thin ice and lost most of their dogs on the trip. They had a hard time getting back to Cape Thomas Hubbard, and on the day they reached it "the ice on the Polar Sea broke up and became a hideous, grinding chaos of broken ice, on which they would certainly have perished had they not got back as they did."

The news of the failure of the expedition was obtained from W. Elmer Ezblaw, geologist and botanist of the party, who is in Winter camp below Etah, where he had gone in search of walrus meat for food. Men of Knud Rasmussen's Polar expedition met Ezblaw, and it was through the kindness of the Danish explorer that the news was relayed to this city.

HAD HIS "MAP" STAMPED.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—Jack Johnson, accompanied by his white wife and attended by his usual retinue of managers and sparring partners, invaded the American Embassy today and clamored to have "my map stamped."

The English lackeys failed to understand this novel request, and Johnson's words remained unintelligible until Elbridge Gerry Greene, the Third Secretary, translated them into a request to have the photograph on the pugilist's passport stamped with the State Department seal.

Johnson and scores of other Americans went through that ceremony as a result of the embassy's announcement that all passports must have the likeness of the bearer adorned with the seal, thus demonstrating that the document is not being used by some one other than the person for whom it was issued.

BRYAN BACK AT HIS POST.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—Secretary of State Bryan, who had been at his villa in Miami, Fla., for a week, returned to the State Department to-day. Before going to Miami Mr. Bryan spent a week in Washington catching up with the drift of diplomatic affairs after a month's absence. Mr. Bryan will remain at his post until Friday afternoon, when he will leave to address some school children at Ann Arbor, Mich. He will also speak to a religious gathering in Chicago on Sunday.

"Suzi" to Move to Shubert Theatre.

"Suzi" will move from the Casino to the Shubert Theatre next Monday night, and Lew Fields will take "The High Cost of Loving" from the Thirty-ninth Street Theatre for a road tour. The same evening a new set of moving pictures of the war, taken in Belgium under the direction of The Chicago Tribune will begin an engagement at the Thirty-ninth Street house. The pictures were taken by Edwin F. Weigle of the Chicago newspaper and show actual fighting between the Germans and the Allies at Antwerp, Alost, and other Belgian cities.

Show in Honor of Mgr. Murphy.

A minstrel show and musical farce will be given by the younger members of the parish of the Church of the Immaculate Conception at the School Hall, 504 East Fifteenth Street, tonight, in honor of the pastor, Mgr. William G. Murphy, who has just completed twenty-five years in the priesthood. There will be performances tomorrow and Friday night also.

Theatre Ticket Service at the

BROADWAY AT 100th ST.

New Innovation a Big Hit!

Since the "CABARET LUNCH, Gratis" was introduced to Broadway by the CARLTON TERRACE, "The Restaurant of Ideas," New Yorkers have been guessing what CARLTON TERRACE would do next.

While dining, you decide to see "The Miracle Man," (for example.) Tell the headwaiter you would like to have seats. He telephones the theatre and procures the tickets. You pay for the tickets at the Carlton Terrace,

AT BOX OFFICE PRICES

You are not even charged for the telephone call—and you can dine at your leisure until theatre time, and save the annoyance and delay of standing in line at the theatre. Isn't that a convenience?
